Sea Flyers Miss Death by 5 Minutes

...RCED DOWN ...ISLAND OFF ...GLISH COAST

...nd as They Find Gas Line Choked.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The Atlantic has ...been flown by airplane from west to ...east for the tenth time. Capt. J. ...Boyd, Canadian, and Lieut. ...Harry P. Connor, formerly of the ...American navy, today landed the his... seaplane Columbia at 4:30 p. m. ...(8:30 a. m., Chicago time] on the ...coast of Tresco, one of the Scilly ...isles off the southwestern tip of Eng... after a 24 hour flight from New ...foundland. It was the Columbia's sec... ...transAtlantic flight.

The airmen were forced to come ...down because of a defect in the gas ...supply. They had just sighted ...the islands, which are about 25 miles ...off Land's End, when they discovered ...that their gas line was choked. They ...immediately decided to land, and ...brought the plane down without ac...cident.

Missed Crash by Minutes.

The flyers missed what might have ...been a tragic accident by a matter of ...minutes. Had the defect in the gas ...line developed five minutes earlier or ...later they would have crashed, there ...being no place to land.

The sandy beach where the flyers ...landed is less than 300 miles from ...Croydon, near London, their goal. The ...point, however, was about 150 miles ...off its course. The airmen had ...planned to fly via Ireland, but strong ...winds over the ocean had forced them ...to the south.

Resume Flight Today.

Although the defect in the plane ...was quickly repaired, the airmen de...cided to postpone the continuance of ...the flight until tomorrow. It is under...stood that they were both anxious to ...continue to Croydon tonight, but at ...the insistence of Maj. Dorrien Smith, ...governor of the islands, they stayed ...overnight. They retired early, fa...tigued. Their present plan is to leave ...Tresco at 11 a. m. tomorrow for ...Croydon.

Both men and the machine were in ...good shape and no assistance was re...quired after the forced landing, accord...ing to brief messages from the airmen. ...Much of the flight over the ocean ...and at the ending of the flight are ...misty. There are no direct means ...of communication between the main...land and the islands, except wireless, ...and the messages from Tresco were ...meager.

First Canadian Flight.

The Columbia is the famous ma... in which Clarence Chamberlin ...and Charles A. Levine, owner of the ...plane, crossed the Atlantic three years ...ago. The present flight is the first ...to go west to east flight of the At... since Alcock and Brown's in ...1919, and is the first time a Canadian ...has flown the Atlantic.

The Columbia was last sighted be... the landing at 2:39 p. m. about ...200 miles west by south of Croydon, ...and was reported seeing her. This ...point is about 30 miles south of ...the coast of Ireland.

News of their safe landing ...at Croydon airport just before ...5 p. m. Earlier reports from ships ...near the plane had led the author... to expect it at about 6:30 p. m., ...and a crowd of welcomers gathered ...at the airport for its arrival went ...away disappointed.

In Air 24 Hours.

The seaplane was in the air about ...24 hours and 5 minutes. It left Har... ...Newfoundland, yesterday ...at 4:25 p. m., G. M. T., and landed at ...Tresco today.

Earlier before was a crossing of the ...Atlantic been made so late in the year. ...Aviation experts are delighted at the ...success of the flight but are sympa... with the pilots' inability to ...get in direct contact with Croydon. ...As darkness fell huge flares were ...lighted at the airdrome and the build... were illuminated with red lights. ...A searchlight flashed intermittently ...and the whole of the huge landing ...field was lighted by the blaze of ...myriad lights.

Wife Is Overjoyed.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Mrs. ...Paul Boyd, wife of the pilot of the ...seaplane Columbia, was overjoyed at ...learning her husband and his flying ...companion had successfully completed ...the trans-Atlantic crossing.

"I've been anxious," she said, ...

A judge who, with vigor and independence but lacking in judicial temperament, at least makes an effort to rescue a lady in dire distress?

Dancing Girls Strike Against Corsets; Win

That cardinal principle of the stage—"the play must go on"—was violated for some 50 minutes at the Great Northern theater last night. The audience waited, not knowing that a chorus girls' strike was on, that three dancers had been fired as ringleaders, and that the theater managers here were telephoning to J. J. Shubert in New York in an effort to start the show.

No, nor did the audience realize that a feminine contraption, a survival known as the corset, was being tossed aside in a revolt of modern womanhood.

Worn in Middle Ages.

"A corset," according to Webster, "is a close fitting corsage, stiffened by strips of steel or whalebone, and usually tightened by lacing. It is a garment fitting closely to the body. Worn in the middle ages."

And it was this device, "worn in the middle ages," which caused last night's strike. The chorus girls, 35 of them, refused to wear corsets despite the scenic episodes which required their wearing.

"They spoil our shapes," protested several of them. "Besides, they're not necessary."

Anyhow, the curtain in the Great Northern remained down at 8:15, when it was supposed to raise. At 9:05 the show opened. In the meantime Harry Puck, comedian of the operetta, "Three Little Girls," appeared on the stage, kidded the audience, and managed to keep the house intact until the strike ended.

Girls Give Ultimatum.

Dissension over the corsets followed the show here from New York. Finally the leading objectors, Lillian Lane, Patricia Allen, and Artennis Faque, announced the chorus would no longer perform with corsets.

The three girls were given two weeks' notice of dismissal. That was a week ago. Last night the strike was called, and when the chorines remained firm, Frank Dare, local representative of the Actors' and Chorus Girls' Equity, was summoned. He ordered the girls to squeeze into the corsets. They refused. A hurried phone call was made to Mr. Shubert.

Mr. Shubert settled the walkout on the phone by eliminating the corsets and the show went on.

BANKER BOUND FROM CHICAGO TO NEW YORK BY PLANE IS MISSING

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Business associates of Charles V. Bob, New York banker and mining engineer, expressed concern tonight over his failure to arrive here following his departure in his plane from Chicago on Thursday.

Accompanied by his pilot, Col. Dean Lamb, Mr. Bob flew to Chicago on Monday, and on Thursday, in a telephone conversation with members of his New York staff said he was leaving that night and would arrive the following morning.

When he failed to appear today his assistants and attorneys became alarmed. One of his representatives declared that effort had been made to locate Mr. Bob, but at a late hour tonight nothing had been heard from him.

Mr. Bob was one of the supporters of the Byrd antarctic expedition.

BURGLAR GANG RAIDS GROCERY HOUSE; FOILED

Twelve armed burglars entered the plant of the John Sexton company, wholesale grocers, 500 Orleans street, early this morning, tied up a foreman, several workmen, and ten clerks, roamed through the plant for two hours, and finally departed without obtaining any loot.

The burglars jimmied their way into the plant through a rear door at 350 Illinois street. They bound Thomas Kent and several workmen in the stockrooms, then compelled the watchman, Albert Post, 6213 Giddings street, to punch his time clocks as usual. Then the clerks working upon the second floor were tied up.

Learning from the clerks that safes were equipped with burglar alarms, the gang left the plant without attempting to open them.

Divorces "Flip-Flop Girl," Licensed to Wed Another

BATTLE RAGES 210 MILES FROM RIO DE JANEIRO

Heavy Losses Mark Capture of Town.

BY HAROLD TATAM.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Oct. 10.—Brazilian federal troops operating from Sao Paulo were reported late tonight to have captured the town of Ouro Fino from the revolutionaries after inflicting heavy casualties. This town is almost 210 miles west of Rio de Janeiro and its capture indicates that the government's claims that it has the revolt situation in the state of Minas Geraes well in hand, are not unfounded.

Earlier in the day the Brazilian government announced that it had overpowered the rebel defenders at Barbacena on the central railroad leading to Bello Horizonte, the state capital of Minas Geraes. Less than 100 miles from the capital, where a small band of loyalists has been putting up a heroic defense ever since the outbreak of the revolt, Barbacena is considered to be the key to the situation as it was the principal depot for the rebel stores and ammunition.

Rebels Win in South.

In the meanwhile fighting went on in the state of Santa Catherina where the revolutionists claimed victories. Their communiques also said that they were advancing into the state of Sao Paulo and meeting more encouragement than resistance from the populace.

Travelers arriving here from the state of Rio Grande do Sul and others hailing from Minas Geraes, describe the situation as critical and assert that present indications point to the probability of a long and bitter civil war unless there is a landslide in favor of the rebels in the two most thickly populated states of the republic, Sao Paulo and Rio Janeiro. This, they say, might dishearten the federal forces who are better equipped than the insurgents.

They describe Dr. Getulio Vargas, the revolutionary leader, as possessing a strong personality and as being the holder of a remarkable ascendency in southern Brazil. The populace there is likely to support him to the last ditch should his movement be checked and he be forced to retreat. This would carry the war into mountainous regions where only rudimentary communications exist.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

SAO PAULO, Oct. 10.—Military reports from federal sources today state that the 12th regiment of federal infantry, together with six mountain guns, continue to hold the emplacements they are defending at Bello Horizonte, capital of Minas Geraes, although they have been subject to constant rifle fire and sniping since the revolutionary outbreak a week ago.

Foodstuffs ran low yesterday, but six federal planes from Rio de Janeiro carried them an ample supply, dropping packages in the encampment, together with messages carrying cheerful news of federal progress along the railroad.

Planes Bomb Rebels.

During the morning hours federal planes flew low over the city, bombing the revolutionary army dumps and strafing the rebel groups, which hunted cover and replied with ineffective rifle fire. The returning aviators reported hitting a number of rebels and said the bombs caused considerable damage to revolutionist headquarters.

Widow of Yale Treasurer and Servant Wed

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 10.—The luxurious automobile which Vincent Ardenghi, a French chauffeur, has often piloted about the romantic countryside of France for Mrs. Anna Fitch Farnam, widow of the former treasurer of Yale university, rolled out through the gates of Paris today with Vincent lolling in the back seat beside his wealthy 43 year old American employer.

The pair were secretly married last Tuesday in a civil ceremony after a steering wheel courtship lasting several months. Following the wedding Vincent turned over his chauffeur's cap and uniform to a comrade and took up residence with his bride at the fashionable Hotel Lotti, just around the corner from the Ritz, where he had often come to take his employer driving and where he had often returned in answer to the command, "Home, Vincent."

May Sail for U. S.

Today the couple left on their honeymoon. Their destination was not revealed. While hotel employés stated that they were expected back early next week, an intimate friend of Mrs. Farnam told THE TRIBUNE tonight that they were driving through Normandy on the way to Cherbourg, where they will board the Aquitania tomorrow.

In other quarters it was suggested that the pair headed for Vincent's ancestral domicile at St. Maximin, a village of shepherds up in the hills back of Grenoble.

Bridegroom About 30.

"Naturally Mrs. Farnam did not want it known that she had married her chauffeur," said Mrs. Farnam's friend, "but some malicious person spread the news. I think he had been working for her several months, and I am told that he is really a nice young man from a good family which was impoverished by the war. I think he is about 30 years old."

At the hotel it was impossible to learn anything about the wedding. The gold braided functionaries in the Rue Castiglione hostelry, where the Infanta of Spain and other members of European royalty often stop, seemed to consider it a painful subject, and declared they were forbidden to discuss the matter with newspaper men.

Mrs. Farnam is the widow of William Whitman Farnam, former Yale treasurer, and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Brewster Fitch of New Haven. She has been living in Paris for some time, but despite her wealth and social prominence in America, she is virtually unknown in the American colony here.

REALTY DEALER KILLS HIMSELF IN LINCOLN PARK

Max Kerns, north side real estate dealer, shot himself while in Lincoln park yesterday afternoon, supposedly because of ill health and stock market losses. He died late last night in the Columbus Memorial hospital. Kerns was found at Fullerton parkway and Lake Shore drive, a bullet wound in his right temple and a revolver at his side. According to his widow, Kerns injured himself on the head two years ago, had been in ill health since, and had lost heavily in the stock market. His home was at 3857 North Leavitt street.

Speeds 73 Miles an Hour to Enter Marathon; Jailed

Fred Czarnecki, 20 years old, of 4879 North Mason avenue, was arrested last night while driving 73 miles an hour in Green Bay road in Waukegan and locked up for the night in the Lake county jail there. Czarnecki explained that he was in a hurry to reach Milwaukee with the two girls and three other youths who were with him in the car in order to enter a marathon dance contest.

WHO TOOK COPS' LIST? ALDERMEN TRY TO FIND OUT

Slot Scandal Rises in Stormy Hearing.

Three hours of acrimonious debate yesterday brought the city council police committee no nearer to a solution of the theft of a secret police list of hoodlums from the detective bureau. The hearing, however, revived an old departmental scandal—the charges against six police captains in connection with the operation of slot machines.

The theft of the secret police list was discovered when federal agents seeking Frank Nitti, raided the Carleon hotel, 2138 South Wabash avenue, and found a list of forty-one gangsters under the pillow of a Capone bondsman, Tony Tagenti. The police department had intended to seek vagrancy warrants for the men named in the list.

Aldermen Hear Capt. Ryan.

The council committee heard from Police Captain John P. Ryan, who caused the list to be made and who was demoted from deputy chief of detectives to the miscellaneous division after the theft. Another witness was Patrolman William Balswick, Ryan's secretary, who ordered the typing done and placed the list in his desk after it was completed. Both denied knowledge of who took it from that unlocked hiding place or how it got into the hands of the Capone gang's henchman.

Nor did they explain the making of a second list, wherein the names of ten of the hoodlums—most of whom had Capone affiliations—were left out. This slip was attributed to a lapse of memory.

"It was a coincidence and nothing else," said Capt. Ryan.

"I had destroyed my notes and forgot the other names," said Balswick.

Recalls Slot Machine Case.

Ald. Arthur F. Albert [43d], who did most of the questioning during the session, went as deeply into the matter as he could and finally turned the attention of his fellow councilmen to the slot machine matter. He recalled that six commanding officers—Capts. Hugh McCarthy, Patrick Collins, Michael Tobin, Michael Delaney, Richard Gill, and Dennis Malloy—faced prosecution on charges of conspiracy. This trial was ended by the state's nol pros motion when a witness, David Rockola, refused to repeat his grand jury testimony.

"No captain in that scandal," Albert shouted, "has a right to be on the pay roll of the city or be pensioned when he is eligible. They were tried under the most peculiar circumstances, and we have a civil service commission here who could hear the charges against them now.

Wants Shoemaker Called.

"Capt. William Shoemaker was transferred from the bureau after he got the evidence on these captains, and we should question him to find out why. That was a police department matter and this committee has the right to inquire into it."

Albert tried to argue the committee into adjourning to an early date, when they could hear Shoemaker and also Chief of Detectives Norton, whom Albert said he wishes to question on the disappearance of the list. This move failed, overruled by a number of aldermen known to be friendly to the city hall machine, and the committee hearing ended, subject to the call of the chairman, Ald. Thomas Byrne.

Capt. Ryan Takes Stand.

Capt. Ryan took the stand first, and it was brought out during his testimony that three copies of the stolen list are still unaccounted for.

Ryan said Chief Norton instructed him to compile the list, and Ryan made some notes, in consultation with Balswick, which were given to a junior stenographer, John Lane. Lane did the typing. Ald. Albert questioned Ryan as follows:

Q.—After the list was typed, to whom did Balswick give it? A.—I never saw it.

Q.—Did he show it to Norton? A.—No, I hardly think so.

Q.—When did you learn it had disappeared? A.—Next morning about 10 a. m., when I walked in. Balswick asked me, "Did you get the list?" I said "No," and he said, "I can't find it." I told him the only thing to do was to make a new one.

Q.—Did you tell Chief Norton it had disappeared? A.—No, I thought it might have been mixed up in the mail.

Q.—Who dictated the subsequent list? A.—Balswick called out some names to me and he wrote up the list.

Q.—After Mr. Converse, the federal agent, found the first list [during the hotel raid] did any one at the bureau

Men's Clothing Values Attract Critical Buyers

When Edward VII. was Prince of Wales the royal valet pressed creases into the royal trousers to make them different from the pantaloons then in style. The practice has persisted through the years. No man today feels well dressed unless his suit has had the wrinkles ironed out of it.

That is one of the ways a new style gets its start. Some one gets an idea, other people see it, like it and adopt it. It may be the vent in a coat to make horseback riding possible without bunching and wrinkling the coat. It may be a pocket near the waistband so that a watch can be worn with the fob displayed. Whatever it is, if people like it, it has a good chance to become the rule.

Clothing styles each year are a little different from those of the preceding year. It may be in fabric design, width of trousers, or length of coat, but it's there.

Fall styles in men's clothing this year are particularly good looking. Now is a good time to make selections while displays are most complete.

make an inquiry about the theft?
A.—Yes, Chief Norton and I.

Q.—Don't you think it hard to steal something from the detective bureau, a police building? Do you think Balswick was negligent? A.—No.

ALD. OSCAR F. NELSON—They rob the poor boxes in churches.

ALD. ALBERT—Didn't you think it strange that names were taken off the list and the remaining ones left in chronological order? Names taken out like Ted Newberry, Sam Hunt, and others? A.—It could be a coincidence.

Interjection by Alcock.

COMMISSIONER ALCOCK — The first list had forty-one names and the second thirty-one.

ALD. ALBERT—Didn't you think this was strange? A.—It was a coincidence and nothing else.

Q.—Did you tell Norton of the disappearance when you took the second list to him? A.—No, he was very busy. He said, "Take it to Luthardt."

William Luthardt is attorney for the police department.

Q.—You were demoted from the detective bureau after this theft? A.—Yes.

Capt. Ryan said he had been transferred to the miscellaneous division at 2138 North Halsted street with six other captains and a sergeant. Capt. John Stege and Capt. Richard Gill are among the officers there.

Q.—What do you do up there? A.—Report at 8:30 a. m. and leave at 5 p. m., waiting for a call from the commissioner in the meantime.

A VOICE—Easy job.

Asked Reason for Transfer.

Q.—Why were you transferred? A.—You'll have to ask the commissioner.

Q.—Is there any reason for you captains to be there?

ALD. B. A. CRONSON—This is sort of embarrassing. The commissioner is here.

Alcock was seated near Albert.

ALD. ALBERT—I'm trying to be fair. There are cobwebs on the window up there at that place. Now, captain, is Capt. Shoemaker a good officer? A.—Yes.

Q.—Before he was transferred from the bureau what did he do? A.—He had charge of the zone squads.

Q.—Who got the evidence on those police captains? A.—The police.

Q.—But who chiefly?

The committee here became embroiled in a wrangle as to the propriety of this inquiry and the questioning of Ryan was dropped. Ald. Albert said Capt. Shoemaker obtained the slot machine evidence and was then transferred.

Balswick Called to Testify.

Balswick was then called and repeated that part of Ryan's testimony which dealt with the inception of the list, saying he had placed it in his desk when it was typed. 'He had the list retyped from memory, he said, and did the best he could in remembering the names.

Aldermen Albert, Nelson and John S. Clark then began a three-cornered dispute as to whether Balswick should be required to answer questions bearing on a talk he had with Commissioner Alcock. During this argument Albert read a letter written to him by a policeman, which said that Shoemaker had been transferred because he obtained the slot machine evidence and that he was the only captain who could be trusted to get the facts on the alleged graft payments. Shoemaker is now at Warren avenue district.

"And it's a God's blessing he is there," said Ald. James B. Bowler. "Part of my ward is in that district."

Demand Trials for Captains.

"But," went on Albert, "every captain in that scandal should be tried by the civil service commission before he is allowed to draw his pay. A witness in that trial refused to repeat his grand jury testimony."

"What do we accomplish by all this?" demanded Ald. Nelson.

"We do lots of funny things in this town," replied Albert. "We have parades every few days. But it is true that the man who was paraded was much greater than any of those who paraded him."

Then Albert pleaded for another session of the committee before election, but he failed.

SUPREME COURT TO RULE ON HIGH VAGRANCY BONDS

Writ Issued in Case of Fur Sammons.

The Illinois Supreme court yesterday decided to rule upon the validity of high bonds for gangsters prosecuted as vagrants when it issued a writ of habeas corpus for James [Fur] Sammons, one of Chicago's "public enemies" and a robber, burglar and convicted murderer whose criminal career began thirty years ago.

The success of the campaign to drive criminals from the city under the vagrancy act was declared to hinge upon the future action of the Supreme court. The writ was directed against the bailiff of Muncipal Judge John H. Lyle's court and it commanded an answer showing why Sammons was held in $50,000 bonds on a vagrancy charge. The answer probably will be filed early next week and the court will then decide whether the bond was excessive.

Ordered Held by Lyle.

Sammons, who once was given a reprieve upon the eve of his hanging for murder and was later paroled, was ordered held on a high bond by Judge Lyle because of his lengthy criminal record. The judge declared that Sammons was a menace to the peace of the city and intimated that if an attempt were made to furnish the $50,000 bond, he would raise the amount still higher. Sammons has since been held in the county jail.

Attorneys Everett Jennings and W. W. Smith, who filed the petition in behalf of Sammons, asserted that the bond was excessive and that it should be reduced to a reasonable amount. The Supreme court made no comment upon this assertion in allowing the writ.

Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne declared that the state would fight the petition as soon as official notice of the writ is received. He and Q. J. Schott, habeas corpus expert, will go to Springfield for the hearing. Sammons will probably be brought along so that the high court judges may see for themselves the appearance of the man they are asked to release.

David Foils Gun Toter.

Judge Joseph B. David yesterday refused to suppress the evidence in a gun toting case and sent the offender to serve fifty days in the county jail. Last week Judge David refused to hear a concealed weapon case with a declaration that such misdemeanors should not take up the time of Criminal court judges. The case before him yesterday was assigned to his court after a justice of the peace had ordered the defendant to be held.

The defendant was Edward Elslager, 22 years old, of Fort Wayne, Ind., who was picked up in Elmhurst with a revolver. His attorney asked that the charge be dismissed because the arresting policeman had no warrant. Judge David ruled that a policeman had the right at any time to search a man for concealed weapons and imposed sentence.

Lyle Replies to Bar.

Judge Lyle yesterday commented upon the action of the Chicago Bar association which, in its report on candidates for the bench, declared that the judge, although exhibiting "vigor and independence," lacked "judicial temperament," and should not be re-elected.

"If 'judicial temperament' means that I should be lenient with these gangsters instead of severe, then I am glad that I am lacking in it," he declared. "I don't think my worst enemy can deny that I have been calm, impartial and just in meting out punishment, but I have refused to molly-coddle criminals with lengthy records."

James Iardo, 801 Miller street, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $12,000 on a charge of manslaughter by Judge Lyle. He is charged with having stabbed and killed his cousin, Guido Russo, 47 years old, 817 Loomis street.

OPEN VERDICT IN POLICE DEATH.

An open verdict was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the fatal shooting of Policeman Thomas Stanton, 1044 West 80th street. The circumstances did not indicate whether he had killed himself accidentally or otherwise.

CLUB WINS PARTIAL VICTORY IN U. S. COURT OVER LOCKER RAIDERS

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Federal Judge Charles I. Dawson today ruled that search of private lockers during a raid on the Pendennis club was illegal unless dry agents had definite reason to believe they contained liquor. The court sustained a motion of Walker H. Bowman Jr., to have the search of his locker declared unconstitutional.

Judge Dawson indicated that prosecutions would hold against individual owners in whose lockers agents were prepared to swear they had seen liquor in advance of opening. Since the agents testified they could remember only four lockers definitely in which they saw liquor before unlocking, the ruling was expected to benefit the majority of the locker owners.

Judge Dawson criticized the club management for operating under a system which he said permitted law violation. The court threatened to take all the evidence in the 47 other cases to the grand jury and procure individual indictments or indict the club on 48 counts unless the club changed its system and the members waived immunity.

ARKANSAS HUNTS PERRY; A FIFTH WIFE REVEALED

The search for George W. E. Perry, wanted in Wisconsin in connection with the murder of his bigamous wife, Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett of Chicago, shifted to Blytheville, Ark., yesterday with the finding there of the tan sedan once owned by Mrs. Hackett. Perry had left the car with a Blytheville man as security for a $150 loan, the Arkansas authorities said.

This news was wired to Chicago and at the same time Chief of Detectives Norton received information that Perry had married a fifth woman in Carmi, Ill., on Aug. 16. At that time he was driving the tan sedan. The fifth wife, the fourth Perry married illegally is Mrs. Lida Downey of Eldorado, Ill. She told State's Attorney D. F. Ramsey at Harrisburg that Perry first saw her early in July and said that after their marriage they would go to California, where Mrs. Hackett, whom he described as his aunt, was living.

He left El Dorado on Aug. 23 after borrowing $45 from a friend of his new wife and said he would be back in a week. He never returned nor has Mrs. Downey heard from him.

ILLINOIS GETS A SUMMER DAY; 80 DEGREES HERE

Chicago and other parts of the state experienced summer weather yesterday. The mercury rose to 80 degrees here, 15 degrees above the normal temperature. The outlook for today, according to Forecaster W. P. Day, is for fair weather and little change in temperature, but possibly not quite so warm.

"This warm spell is unusual in a way," commented the forecaster. "However, Chicago has had such days before. The highest reading for Oct. 10 was 83, in 1913. Only two years ago, on Oct. 11, the mercury rose to 87."

The October heat wave was due, Mr. Day said, to long, continued winds from the south.

STANTON FIGHTS EXTRADITION TO WISCONSIN TRIAL

Defense Wins Delay to Make Bullet Tests.

Proceedings were begun yesterday to extradite Danny Stanton, public enemy, to Wisconsin, but a delay was granted to permit his attorney, Thomas D. Nash, to attempt a refutation of the ballistics evidence that Stanton's gun was used in the murder of Jack Zuta, another public enemy, near Delafield, Wis.

Attorney Nash said he wanted to make tests with the gun taken from Stanton and compare bullets fired from it with a bullet taken from the body of Zuta.

Dewitt Billman, secretary of the legislative reference bureau, acted as the agent of Gov. Emmerson at the hearing, which was held in Springfield.

Salen Appears for Wisconsin.

District Attorney Herman Salen of Waukesha county, Wis., presented an affidavit setting forth that Stanton was branded as a public enemy in Chicago, that he was accused of the Zuta murder, for which there was information and belief that he was guilty, and that ballistics evidence was available as proof.

Attorney Nash called one witness, John Deegan, 5206 South Peoria street, an employé of the sanitary district. Deegan testified that on Aug. 1, at the time of the slaying of Zuta, he was at the home of Stanton's mother, along with a dozen other persons, for a fish fry and that Stanton was there. Nash said he wouldn't name the other alibi witnesses because the police would annoy them.

Wisconsin Has Witnesses.

District Attorney Salen said he had witnesses who would prove that Stanton was at Delafield at the time of the murder, but he would not name them either—because they might be killed, he said.

"The state of Wisconsin isn't particularly happy to be here asking the return of one of Chicago's public enemies to stand trial in Wisconsin," Mr. Salen said. "I am convinced that under Wisconsin law we can try him without identification, but one witness almost identically described Stanton as the leader of the men who killed Zuta."

"There are 10,000 men in Chicago answering that description," Nash remarked.

"If counsel for the defense has such a perfect alibi he shouldn't object to facing a jury in Wisconsin," Salen answered.

It was then agreed that the hearing would be continued until next Thursday.

3 Feet of Hail in Bogota, 300 Miles from Equator

BOGOTA, Colombia, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The Colombian capital, 300 miles north of the equator, today suffered the worst hail storm in its history. Under a strong wind from the mountains, the hail stones drifted three feet deep in many of the streets. Many adobe houses were wrecked and traffic was brought to a standstill. No lives were reported lost.

THREAT TO DYNAMITE N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE BRINGS EXTRA GUARD

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—As a result of a letter threatening the dynamiting of the New York stock exchange, extra police have been detailed to guard that building and other structures in the financial district. About fifty uniformed men and detectives have been added to the normal force in the area, according to Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney.

The commissioner said that he understood that the letter had been received by some one in the stock exchange building, but that it had not yet been turned over to him. The letter, which was almost illegible, was postmarked Lewiston, Me., and was signed "Tony," it was said.

KUNZ ACCUSED BY WOMAN IN LARCENY CASE

Congressman Stanley H. Kunz of the Eighth Illinois district was charged with larceny by bailee in a warrant issued by Judge John H. Lyle, Oct. 6, it was learned yesterday. The congressman has not yet been served with the warrant.

Mrs. Anna Rogal, 1224 Augusta street, who signed the warrant charged that she paid the congressman $850 to help obtain passports for the entry into this country of her mother and two sisters from Budapest. She possesses a receipt for the money signed by the congressman on his official stationery, dated May, 1928, she said. After waiting for months without the promised aid, she asked for her money, but was refused.

Congressman Kunz was acquitted with his son, Stanley Jr., last February of a confidence game charge resulting from allegations that he accepted $400 for his influence in obtaining a police job for a candidate.

216 LIVES LOST IN TEN YEARS OF DRY LAW FIGHTS

54 Citizens Die; Only 5 Agents Convicted.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Efforts to enforce the national prohibition laws have cost the lives of 54 citizens and 62 prohibition officers since Jan. 16, 1920, when the act went into effect.

These figures are from the latest revised reports of the prohibition department, and concern that unit only. There have been hundreds of others killed by state officers and others by the federal coast guard, customs, and other units, the records of which have never been gathered unless by the special law enforcement commission. There is at least one case missing in its report.

Most Killed in 1925.

A study of this report of the prohibition department yields many interesting facts. The years 1922 to 1927 saw the greatest number of citizens killed, with 1925 the banner year, when 35 fell under prohibition bullets. During the last three years there has been a sharp reduction in these killings, but more agents have been shot than at any time since 1923. This is probably due to the more severe laws that were adopted during this later period.

In all these killings of citizens there have been only 57 criminal prosecutions resulting, with 48 acquittals and 5 convictions. The other cases were dismissed, dropped because of the death of the agent in another battle, or there was no prosecution.

Juries disagreed in four cases.

The report not only gives the names of persons shot, and time and place, but purports to give a fact outline of each case, with disposition.

Shoot in Self-Defense.

These fact outlines are merely the digested reports of the agents involved. They show, probably with justice in most cases, that 94 deaths were inflicted in actions where the agents were forced to fire in self-defense. Fifty-two men were shot while fleeing from arrest. In 22 cases the agents reported an accident of some kind, a rifle shot at tires, a foot slipped, or something else of that character. In nine of the cases the agents shot when they interpreted a move of the person arrested or raided as a move toward a gun. Under the Texas law, at least, this gives the officer a right to shoot.

As prohibition officers have, by act of congress, been taken under the protection of the federal laws relating to revenue agents, most of their trials have been transferred from state to federal courts. Under the federal laws a liquor violator is a felon, and when he attempts to escape may be shot as a fleeing felon. This accounts for many of the acquittals.

Give Case as Example.

The department, in all but a few instances, makes out a justifiable case of shooting. Take the case of Curtis Tidmore, which is reported as follows:

"Facts of the Case: On the evening of Sept. 28, 1921, Prohibition Agent Thomas C. Dews with other officers having a search warrant for the person of one Elmer Hufstutler and one Kirk Lewis, alias Curtis Tidmore, attempted to search the same in Jefferson county, Alabama. They drew their car up beside the wagon and asked the occupants to hold up a minute as they were government officers, whereupon shots were fired from the wagon into the car of the agents. The agents returned the fire and Tidmore was wounded. He was hurried to a hospital, but his life could not be saved."

That follows the lines of a great majority of the cases, where a justifiable homicide is decided. It would seem that there would be no trouble even for these agents. They had a warrant. They had given notice that they were officers. They had been fired upon and had returned the fire in self-defense.

Sent to Prison.

Now comes the "Disposition of the case," with no other comment or explanation, as follows:

"Indicted in State court to second degree murder. Tried in U. S District court in Birmingham and Dews convicted and sentenced to three years in penitentiary."

Something vital must have been left out of that report, for it takes a tough case indeed to bring a conviction of a federal agent in a federal court.

Here is another case with an unusual ending:

"Facts of the case—On Dec. 3, 1926, Prohibition Agents Ernest L. Benway and George B. Pratt were assigned to patrol work in the vicinity of Silver creek and Huron river, Mich. While watching the course used by smugglers a motor boat came into view which appeared to contain kegs of beer. The boat was hailed and told to come in.

"Two men in the boat failed to pay attention to the officers and Agent Benway then fired across the bow of the boat three times [an old pirate custom]. After the third shot one of the occupants of the boat, who was ascertained to be one Crooks, shut the motor off and advised that they would come in.

Dry Agents Open Fire.

"Crooks then called to the other man in the boat, who it was afterwards learned was William Niedermeier, to hand him one of the guns that were visible in the front part of the boat. Niedermeier made a motion as if to reach the guns back to Crooks. At the same time Crooks leaned forward as if to receive the guns.

"These actions caused Agents Benway and Pratt to anticipate that Crooks was going to fire upon them, therefore they fired at the boat simultaneously, resulting in Neidermeier being hit and fatally wounded. He was taken to a hospital where he died Dec. 21, 1926.

"Disposition of the case—Benway and Pratt arrested Dec. 24, 1926. On March 30, 1927, Pratt was dismissed by the court. Benway found guilty of assault and battery, sentenced to 6 months to 3 years, with recommendation for the minimum term. District attorney's office requested authority to appeal case. Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed conviction of Agent Benway May 16, 1928."

TO TRY MATRIMONY AGAIN

VIOLA DANA.

Third Venture

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Viola Dana, at one time one of the best known stars in motion pictures, has announced she will leave here Monday for Colorado Springs, where on Wednesday she will wed Jimmy Thomson, professional golfer of the Broadmoor Country club of the Colorado city.

"I am going to try to be happy," she said. "I have had so many bad breaks I think my luck ought to change."

Miss Dana, whose real name is Flugarth, has been married twice before. Her first husband, John Collins, film director, died during the 1919 influenza epidemic. Several years later she married Maurice "Lefty" Flynn, former Yale football player. The marriage was dissolved by divorce Feb. 15, 1929. Motion picture records give Miss Dana's age as 31. Thomson is 21 years old.

O'BRIEN DENIED PARTICULARS OF TAX INDICTMENT

Move Seen as Test of U. S. Strength.

A move on the part of State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien, described by prosecutors as an effort to find out the strength of the government's income tax case against him, was unsuccessful before Federal Judge Woodward yesterday.

O'Brien appeared with his attorney, James O'Callaghan, of the firm of Litsinger, Healy & Reid, and sought a bill of particulars. The government had indicted him, charging that he owed some $100,000 in taxes and penalties for 1926, 1927, and 1928, but the indictment said nothing about the source of the alleged income, O'Callaghan declared.

Judge Denies Motion.

"He knows more about his income than anybody else," said Assistant United States Attorney Jacob Grossman.

"I will deny the motion," said Judge Woodward.

"This is the first time I ever heard of such a petition being denied," O'Callaghan protested.

"It's the first time I ever heard of one being asked." Assistant United States Attorney Cassius Poust interposed.

"Well, this should be some kind of a precedent," said the court.

O'Callaghan asked that his motion be taken under advisement, but Judge Woodward replied: "The ultimate decision would be the same, so I will deny it now."

Trial Set for Nov. 17.

O'Brien's trial is set for Nov. 17, but indications were yesterday that he will not be tried until after the case against Jack Guzik, "public enemy" and Capone gangster, is disposed of. Guzik's case was set for trial Nov 12 by Judge Woodward. The case of Sam Guzik, brother of Jack, is to be tried immediately after Jack's.

Terry Druggan, former beer baron, is scheduled for trial on Nov. 10 on income tax charges, but even the prosecutors have no hope of his being able to leave the hospital by that time.

Attorney William F. Waugh, counsel for the Guziks, was allowed until Tuesday to file a demurrer to the government's indictments, and arguments on the demurrers were set for Friday.

KILLING OF MATE IS RE-ENACTED BY MRS. LEENEY

Gives Jury Her Version of Shooting.

CRIMINAL COURT.

James D. Condon, forgery, sentenced to twenty years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Philip Finnegan.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

"He said again, 'I'm going to kill you.' He raised his hand with the black gun in it—and I shot."

That was the crux of the version Mrs. Florence Leeney yesterday gave a jury in Judge Joseph Sabath's courtroom of the death last New Year's night of her husband, Maurice Leeney, a teaming contractor. On her contention that she saved her own life after hours of profanity and abuse from her husband, only by "beating him to the draw," Mrs. Leeney's attorneys base their hopes of saving her from the electric chair.

From 11 o'clock yesterday morning until twilight last night the blonde widow sat in the witness chair in a jammed and stifling courtroom, going over the details of the scene.

Reenacts Scene for Jury.

Not even when Prosecutor George Lavin took her through the entire dramatic action of the tragedy was the defendant visibly shaken. Not even when, at his request, she went across the courtroom into the miniature room set up as a state's exhibit. Not even when Lavin, impersonating the slain man, had her take her place beside the blood stained divan where Leeney fell, and, standing opposite him, reenact the gestures. Nor when he suddenly snapped the trigger of the revolver he held four times, indicating the four shots she fired.

Her voice grew lower and weaker gradually after that episode, however, and at 5 o clock she requested a brief recess. Later she resumed the stand to continue with the cross-examination, which probably will be concluded this morning. Defense Attorneys Charles Dougherty and Samuel A. Hoffman will then try to qualify "Kewple," her six year old daughter, as a witness. It was through the child that Maurice Leeney's relations with his wife's cousin, Mrs. Dorothy Langley, were first revealed.

Tells of Two Marriages.

Attorney Dougherty summoned Mrs. Leeney to the stand, and on direct examination she gave her address as 7634 Cornell avenue, said that she was first married to James Donegan, by whom she had two children Florence and Robert, and that she was married to Leeney 18 years ago after obtaining a divorce.

"How did your husband treat you during those years up to Oct. 1, 1929?" Dougherty asked.

"He was wonderful,' was her reply.

It was at about that time, she went on, when Dorothy Langley had trouble with her husband, Norman, and was invited by Mrs. Leeney to stay at her home until the trouble was settled. Dorothy, she went on to testify, then began an affair with Maurice Leeney. Worry over their conduct brought on a nervous breakdown which sent the defendant to the hospital, she asserted.

Says Cousin Made Confession.

Contradicting the previous testimony of Mrs. Langley, Mrs. Leeney declared the former had visited her in the hospital and confessed to intimacies with her husband. She strenuously denied that she had ever threatened her cousin, or taken a revolver to her home and exhibited it with the declaration that "it was to use." She further denied the statements of Leeney's relatives that she had declared she "would like to see a lily in his hand."

On being confronted with her knowledge of his clandestine romance, Mrs. Leeney testified, Leeney flew into a rage, blaming her and Kewple for "making trouble for a man in business," and ordering her to take Kewple "out of here or I'll throw her out the window."

CUSTOMER OF BROKER KILLS AN EMPLOYE AND ENDS OWN LIFE

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Edwin W. Sprankle, 32, member of a socially prominent family and a confidential clerk of Carstairs & Co., stock brokers, was shot to death today at the company's offices by a former customer, who then shot himself, dying later in a hospital.

Sprankle was shot three times while he talked with the former customer, Adam Jakus, a barber of Oakview, a suburb. The shooting occurred on the ground floor of the stock exchange building and caused some alarm there.

James B. Carstairs, senior member of the brokerage firm, said Jakus had closed out his account on Sept. 15 and received a check for his balance. Carstairs said he was not known to have had further dealings with the company and could offer no motive for the shooting.

Police said Jakus recently had taken a friend to the company's office and the friend had lost heavily in the stock market slump. They indicated the shooting might have resulted from an argument over the friend's account.

Marshall Field Party on Way After Forced Landing

NAIROBI, British East Africa, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Marshall Field III, and his party, forced down yesterday at Nimulo, on the Uganda frontier, by the failure of their airplane, proceeded toward Injuba today in an aerial survey plane. They are expected here tomorrow. Mr. Field is on a honeymoon with his bride, the former Mrs. Dudley Coats.

VOTE TRUE BILLS AGAINST NINE IN WAR ON RACKETS

Sheet Metal Employers' Association Accused.

Indictments were voted by the grand jury yesterday against nine alleged racketeers on charges of conspiracy to extort money by threats.

The indictments were obtained by the special anti-racketeer staff of the state's attorney's office, headed by Assistant State's Attorneys Charles J. Mueller, Charles E. Lounsbury, Edwin Duffey, and Donald Thompson, as a result of their investigation of the Sheet Metal Employers' association, whose offices at 350 North Clark street were raided Thursday.

Complaints Are Received.

The prosecutors said thirty-six sheet metal contractors had been coerced into joining the association and paying tribute of 5 per cent of their yearly revenue. The penalty for not joining was to have their employes called out on strike by union business agents, Mr. Lounsbury explained.

The evidence against the association was presented to the grand jury yesterday morning, the names of the complainants being kept secret. True bills were then reported to have been voted against the following men:

George Krutchkopf, president of the association; Richard Mansfield, vice president; Fred Rysdon, secretary; Fred Puschow, business manager; T. A. Stirton and Peter Biegler, executive committee members, and Joseph Allen, James Close, and John J. Gillan, union business agents.

Ordered to Vacate.

While the police of the new staff were seeking to take the indicted men into custody the four prosecutors had to hunt new quarters. They had been notified to vacate offices in the Home Insurance building, 137 South La Salle street, which they occupied early this week for downtown headquarters. At first the prosecutors resisted the order to vacate and Franklin Whiston, manager of the building, was subpenaed before the grand jury to tell what was back of the order.

Whiston relented, according to Mr. Mueller, and said they might stay, that he didn't want it to appear he was hampering an important service to the community. The county's credit wasn't good for the rent of $225 per month he said, and the presence of the prosecutors and plain clothes policemen in the office building was an annoyance and inconvenience, Whiston declared, but there was no other objection to them.

Yesterday morning Attorney John D. Black of the law firm of Winston, Strawn & Shaw, representing the Marshal Field estate, owner of the building, requested State's Attorney Swanson to move his men from the building. Swanson complied.

MINNEAPOLIS CHICAGO ST. PAUL

LOTTIE O'NEILL'S PLACE ON BALLOT IS LEGAL PUZZLE

Officials Unable to Find Precedent as Guide.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Cook county and Chicago election officials were at sea yesterday about the column on the Nov. 4 ballot in which they will place the name of Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, independent dry candidate for the United States senate.

The Chicago election board makes the decision for the city and the five suburbs under its jurisdiction. County Clerk Sweitzer prints the ballots for the rest of the country towns and therefore makes the decision so far as they are concerned. Neither the county clerk nor the election board had decided the matter yesterday. It was said that Mr. Sweitzer may consult on the matter today with County Judge Jarecki, who appoints the city election board and retains to some extent a veto power over its decisions.

No Precedent Found.

There is nothing in the election statutes, it is said, that settles the O'Neill question. Her name may be placed as far forward as the head of the fourth column or it may go at the top of the eighth column, and there is nothing to prevent it being placed in the last or tenth column of the big ballot.

Attention was called to this situation by reports that the Democratic officials already had decided to place Mrs. O'Neill's name as near to the left hand side of the ballot as possible as an effort to aid their senatorial nominee, James Hamilton Lewis. This report, however, was denied.

Amendment in First Column.

Under the Emmerson amendments to the ballot act adopted by the legislature last year the first column on the ballot will be occupied by the income tax amendment to the state constitution. The Democrats will occupy the second column and the Republican ticket the third column. Therefore if the Democratic officials were to follow the plan that gossip said they had adopted, the three senatorial candidates would appear at the top of the ballot in this order: Mr. Lewis, Mrs. McCormick, Mrs. O'Neill.

But there are six other candidates for the senatorship. The names of four of them were filed with Secretary of State Stratton before Mrs. O'Neill's petition was filed. The secretary of state certified them in that order to County Clerk Sweitzer—Mrs. O'Neill's name appearing in seventh place. If that order were followed her name would head the eighth column.

In that event the order of the nine candidates and the designations under which they are running would be as follows:

Democratic—James Hamilton Lewis, Chicago.
Republican — Ruth Hanna McCormick, Byron.
Socialist—George Koop, Chicago.
Liberty—James J. McGrath, Chicago.
Anti-League World Court, Anti-Foreign Entanglements—C. Emmet Smith, Chicago.
Peace and Prosperity — Louis Warner, Chenoa.
Independent—Lottie Holman O'Neill, Downers Grove.
American National—Ernest Stout, Chicago.
Communist—Freeman Thompson, Springfield.

Thus, it is pointed out, Mrs. O'Neill's name would be almost lost among those of several politically unimportant candidates, and for that reason some of the Democratic leaders admit, it was proposed to disregard the order in which the names were certified at Springfield and to give her increased prominence.

So far as could be learned there has been no protest entered by any representative of Mrs. McCormick to advancing Mrs. O'Neill's column even to fourth place beside the Republican ticket headed by Mrs. McCormick's name. But County Clerk Sweitzer said he had been reminded that the Socialist ticket has a claim to the column following the Democratic and Republican columns which has been recognized for years.

In downstate counties, so far as could be learned, the order certified by Secretary of State Stratton is to be followed.

39 Take Examination for Post of Police Operator

A civil service examination for the position of assistant chief police operator was taken yesterday by 39 candidates, one of whom was John P. Reed, who recently failed of reappointment to the position after he had held it for sixty days as a temporary appointee. Reed, who was sponsored by Building Commissioner Paschen, was refused reappointment by Acting Police Commissioner Alcock after civic organizations had called attention to his record as a lawyer. In that capacity he was charged with taking exorbitant fees from widows of policemen killed in the line of duty.

DOYLE ANNOUNCES MRS. M'CORMICK IS CERTAIN OF VICTORY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—C. J. Doyle, Republican state chairman in Illinois, assured President Hoover today that Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick will be elected United States senator. Mr. Doyle reported on conditions in Illinois after conferring with Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, and other party leaders at national headquarters.

The situation affecting contests for seats in the senate and house in other states as well as Illinois was discussed at a general conference of Republican leaders. In attendance besides Mr. Lucas were J. R. Nutt, treasurer of the national committee, Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.], chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, Representative John Q. Tilson [Rep., Conn.], vice chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee, and Earl Venable, secretary of the congressional committee.

It developed that the leaders have become concerned over the possibility that the Democrats may gain control of the house or at least gain sufficient members to give the radicals the balance of power. President Hoover also is understood to be troubled over the possibility that he may lose all control over congress in the session which will precede his campaign for reëlection.

Difficulty of raising funds was reported by Mr. Nutt. It is understood that Mr. Doyle was told that no money is available to be sent into Illinois.

Senator Moses said that the Republicans will hold the senate seats in Illinois, Delaware, and New Jersey; that the outlook is improving in Kentucky and Rhode Island, but that the contests are close in Ohio, West Virginia, and Oklahoma. He thought the Republicans have a good chance to gain a seat in Montana.

MRS. McCORMICK POINTS VOTERS TO CONSTITUTION

Its "Spirit" Attacked by Referendum Foes.

Mooseheart, Ill., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Objections to holding a prohibition referendum in Illinois were criticized by Ruth Hanna McCormick tonight as "an attack upon the spirit of the constitution."

"We have even heard it said that such a referendum is illegal," said the Republican senatorial nominee in a radio address. "Such an argument is an assault upon the whole structure of popular government.

"Not only that, but it is contemptuous of the public policy laws of the state of Illinois which provide that the people may vote upon questions of public policy if ten per cent of the legal voters of the state formally petition for such a referendum."

Mrs. McCormick said the Illinois referendum on prohibition complied with all legal requirements as well as with the spirit and letter of the constitution and that there could be "but one answer" to the question of whether a representative of the state should abide by the result of the referendum.

Her speech, which took the constitution for its subject, also included a brief reference to "a senate committee" which has been holding public hearings and "treading upon individual rights" as though there had never been a bill of rights incorporated into our constitution."

HEAVY CAMPAIGN BILLS ATTACKED BY MRS. O'NEILL

Newberry Case Cited from Stump.

Marshall, Ill., Oct. 10.—Briskly attacking corrupt politics and the Republican senatorial nominee, Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, in an address discussed campaign expenditures.

Referring to campaign expenditures "so large as to necessitate a senate investigation," Mrs. O'Neill brought up the Newberry case and read the resolution adopted by the senate condemning Mr. Newberry.

"Mr. Newberry resigned immediately after the adoption of this resolution," said Mrs. O'Neill, "yet his expenditures ($195,000) were scarcely more than half of what Mrs. McCormick is known to have spent.

"That in itself shows that the Republican nominee has not one chance in a hundred of being seated even if elected.

"But there is a coincidence here that is very interesting.

"One of the senators who voted to pass the resolution condemning Mr. Newberry was Medill McCormick, husband of Ruth Hanna McCormick.

"Thus, Senator Medill McCormick rises up today to condemn Ruth Hanna McCormick for using vast sums of money to buy a public office.

"By voting 'yes' to the resolution against Mr. Newberry Medill McCormick says to Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, 'Your course is contrary to sound public policy. Your conduct in attempting to buy a public office is harmful to the honor and dignity of the senate. Your expenditure of huge sums is dangerous to the perpetuity of a free government."

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, commanding officer of the Quantico, Va., marine corps post, may leave the service shortly to accept an attractive position in the business world.

The general, who was passed over by President Hoover when he filled the post of commandant of the marine corps a few weeks ago, said today that he plans to go to Cleveland within the next few days to negotiate with unnamed interests.

Marine corps circles are inclined to give credence to reports that Maj. Gen. Butler is planning a lecture tour. He has had a colorful career in the corps and holds two congressional medals of honor.

COST OF BONDS IN TAXES IS PUT AT $40,498,400

Estimate Increase in City, County and Park Levies

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The voters will be asked on Nov. 4 to approve fourteen bond issues totaling $40,560,000. One is a state bond issue of $14,000,000 to be spent for roads and game preserves and recreational areas throughout Illinois. It is endorsed—although the claim has not been advanced the Civic federation—that the fishing and hunting license fees will pay off this proposed indebtedness.

It is admitted that the other thirteen issues, totaling $28,560,000, will be payable in both principal and interest from taxes. If all of these bonds are issued, $40,498,400 will be required to pay off the debt with interest at 4 per cent. This is neither higher nor lower, relatively, than the local governments pay for cash or short credit bonds, and no opposition to the bonds is expected therefore on the basis of the rate of interest.

Debts of Local Governments.

One of the chief arguments for nearly every bond issue in recent years, in addition to the merits of the improvements proposed, has been that Chicago's bonded indebtedness is low in comparison with other large American cities. Federal government figures are usually presented to prove this.

For the information of the electors, the controller, auditor or other responsible official of each of the principal local governments was asked yesterday to give the amount of the present bonded indebtedness of his government. The following table gives the answers, together with the added bonds it is proposed to issue:

	Funded Debts.	Proposed Bonds.
City	$142,332,700	$20,670,000
Cook county	27,290,000	2,350,000
Forest preserves	16,200,000	2,500,000
Sanitary district	114,487,500	None
South parks	62,810,000	None
Lincoln park	13,965,000	3,000,000
West parks	13,250,000	None
Totals	$390,335,200	$28,520,000

If all the proposed issues are approved at the polls the bonded indebtedness of these governments will be increased to $418,855,200, a boost of about 7.3 per cent.

Paying for the Bonds.

The paying of the city bonds falls exclusively upon the property owners within the corporate limits. The two county issues, totaling $4,850,000, are spread out over all the property in Cook county. The Lincoln park issue is confined to the residents in that north side district where the property owners are generally credited with being most able to bear the burdens of taxes.

The advocates of the bond issues say that the $28,560,000 can be paid off with interest in 20 years with an annual per capita tax of only 60 cents. That is the approximate average, because the paying of $40,498,400 in 20 years is an average of $2,024,920 a year. This sum distributed among the

But it was pointed out yesterday that taxes are levied on property, not on a per capita basis.

Tax Increase Estimated.

The Civic federation has estimated that the tax increase, if all the bonds are issued, will be about 2 cents on each $100 valuation in the county outside of the city, and 6 cents in the city, except in the Lincoln park district, where it will be about 11 cents.

These rates, applied to the areas indicated, will be sufficient to raise an average of $2,024,920 a year to pay interest and principal on the proposed bonds. In the first few years the amount to be raised annually will be larger. It decreases annually as one-twentieth of each bond issue is paid off.

Honor Scholar

Dr. James Laurence Laughlin, who, at 80 years of age, is awaiting the publication of his sixteenth book, "Money, Credit and Prices," was the guest of honor yesterday at a luncheon given at the Union League club by a group of his friends. Dr. Laughlin joined the faculty of the University of Chicago at the time of its founding in 1892, and organized the department of political economy there. Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the university, and Martin A. Ryerson were among those present.

In 1878, as a member of the faculty of Harvard college, Dr. Laughlin had Theodore Roosevelt as a student. He taught at Harvard for 10 years and then went to Cornell after several years as president of the Manufacturers' Mutual Fire Insurance association in Philadelphia. Since his retirement from the University of Chicago in 1916 he has lived in the east. His forthcoming book, a resumé of his findings in the field of economics, is to be published by the University of Chicago press.

GEN. DAVIS URGES BOND ISSUE FOR COUNTY FORESTS

Needed to Guard Health of Visitors, He Says.

The inadequate sanitation of the Cook county forest preserves was described yesterday as a danger to the health and personal safety of hundreds of thousands of picknickers who spend their Saturdays, Sundays and holidays seeking recreation in the wooded beauty spots.

Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, chairman of the Cook county forest preserve citizens' advisory committee, in a talk before the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs at the Hotel Sherman told why the commissioners will submit a proposition to the voters for an issue of five year bonds totaling $2,500,000 to make the forest preserves a safe playground.

Stresses Value of Forests.

"Metropolitan Chicago now owns one of the greatest natural recreational centers in the world, almost 35,000 acres of forest preserve in Cook county alone," he said. "Thousands of persons go to the preserve daily.

"The forest preserve commissioners and their advisory committee have a definite responsibility for providing for the health and personal safety of these people. With the present equipment they cannot do so.

"Drinking water is available for the most part only from old farm wells and cisterns. Many of them are so polluted that they have been condemned. Many of the comfort facilities are highly insanitary and are inadequate in number.

"Thousands of people are swimming in the streams and quarry holes, which are contaminated. Wooden shelters are used, many of which are rotting and falling to pieces. Certain marsh lands are breeding mosquitoes and are producing offensive odors."

The proposed bond issue provides for:

New drilled wells or municipal water supply at 63 locations.

Three large pavilions with comfort facilities, water supply, and a cafeteria.

Thirteen large shelter buildings.

Twenty-five large comfort stations, with women's rest rooms and limited shelter room, wells and sewage disposal.

Twenty small comfort stations, with rest rooms, water supply, and sewage disposal.

Fifty parking areas, including drainage, grading, surfacing, barriers and approaches.

Construction of ten dams to make clear lakes out of present swamps.

Foot path structures under or over railroads and highways and across streams.

Grading and draining of open lands for play fields.

High Standards of Living to Stay, Curtis Declares

Yellow Springs, O., Oct. 10.—(AP)—The American standard of living will remain at its present high standard, Vice President Charles C. Curtis told students at Antioch college today.

Mr. Curtis left tonight for Indianapolis.

MURDER WRIT VOTED AGAINST MYERS FOR APPEL GIRL'S DEATH

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—George S. Myers today was indicted for first degree murder for the slaying of 9 year old Marvine Appel.

While the grand jury was preparing its report Myers was brought from the Michigan City state prison, arraigned, and pleaded not guilty. He was returned to the prison two hours later after conferring with County Poor Attorney Edwin Sommerer, assigned by court to defend him.

The jurors had spent nearly two weeks hearing witnesses in the case. No date has been set for trial. Prison doctors have already declared Myers insane.

The Appel child was raped and killed Aug. 27. Her body was found in an alley near her home about thirty hours after she had been reported missing. Authorities say Myers, who was arrested several weeks after the crime was discovered, confessed the crime shortly after his arrest.

CUBA REVOLUTION IS POSTPONED; "NOT READY YET"

Must Wait Until Public Says It Wants One.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 10.—The foes of President Machado's government decided today not to stage the demonstration scheduled for tomorrow because they are not yet ready to begin a revolution. Today all Cuba was peacefully blowing horns, waving flags, and shooting firecrackers in honor of the 62d anniversary of the beginning of the war against Spain.

The leaders of the Nationalists said they had tried their best to prevent a general outbreak of bloodshed and now it was "up to the people to solve Cuba's problems and if the people decided that a revolution was the only way they would go with them." A group of opposition leaders gathered at the home of Col. Carlos Mendieta received American newspaper men and told them: "We are proud there has not been a revolution yet."

Says Marchado Is Dictator.

When asked point blank if he thought there would be a revolution Col. Mendieta replied:

"I cannot say. We only try to follow the will of the people. The Machado government is a dictatorship and the people are most unhappy under it. Conditions are bad politically and bad economically, but we must correct it politically first."

Nationalist leaders told reporters: "The reign of terror continues in Cuba. Men are being shot in different sections of the republic for political reasons, and men are being deprived of their homes and forced to leave the country."

"Government Is Afraid."

"Certainly the government is afraid something will happen," said Col. Mendieta. "Else they would not be taking the extraordinary precautions they are. Everybody knows that tarpaulins hide machine guns placed at strategic points. The police are patrolling the city in couples, which they have never done before, and there are soldiers everywhere.

"Why has Machado built up such a big army, which is costing $14,000,000 a year, if he does not need it to keep him in office? Cuba is a dangerous place for some men these days, with American type of sawed off shotguns being used to shoot them in the back."

Exhibits Some Buckshot.

At this point Col. Mendieta went into another room, returning with a small matchbox, which he told THE TRIBUNE correspondent to look inside. It was filled with buckshot.

"These bullets were taken out of the back of Col. Blas Maso, who was shot and killed at his home several weeks ago," said Col. Mendieta. "Abelardo Pacheco, editor of the Nationalist weekly, was recently shot to death in his home and now, in Saniago, José Lora, editor of a publication, the Voice of Reason, is dying from gunshot wounds.

"Still nobody is punished. There is no protection nor liberties in Cuba under the Machado government. Matters will come to an issue, but it takes time for public sentiment to grow."

Col. Mendieta compared the methods of his enemies to those of Chicago gangsters and talked at length on how "Machado destroyed all the liberties of the people with unconstitutional acts." He compared the fight of the Nationalist group, of which he is the leader, with the Republicans' fight against Tammany in New York, citing the alleged corruptness of the Machado government.

Then the opposition leader told how he had tried all legal methods to try to break down the Machado rule without success. He said he could not get action in the higher courts or congress because they belonged to Machado.

Will Keep on Fighting.

"What is your program now that the United States has indicated it is not likely to interfere in any way and that you have exhausted all legal means to get the elections postponed?" Col. Mendieta was asked.

"We will keep on attacking Machado and his unconstitutional acts," said the Nationalist chief. "But there would be no use in starting a revolution until public opinion has fully decided that it wants one. Even if we had a revolution and won we have no assurance as to what action the United States would take."

parently well in hand, more forces are now concentrated on the southern Sao Paulo border, to check any northward movement of the rebels in Parana, and also preparatory to starting a federal movement upon Curityba, from where the rebels are reported to be operating.

Exact information as to the state of affairs and the number of rebel troops in Parana cannot be obtained here, but the rebel hold is believed weak in view of the presidential elections last March, which were overwhelmingly favorable to Dr. Julio Prestes, President Washington Luis' choice.

Rebel Contingents Few.

As yet there has been no contact between the opposing forces, while federal planes have been flying continually over the suspected territory looking for the rebel column, but no large contingents have yet been sighted, although small bands were seen from time to time.

The rebel frontier posts in northern Parana were reported bombed by federal planes, offering little resistance.

Enlistment for five regiments of infantry is being actively carried on by Gen. Costa on the Santa Catharina seacoast. He plans circling back from Florianopolis through the interior and making contact with the northern federals now stationed in Sao Paulo, and then concentrating his forces upon Curityba.

Expect Decisive Battle.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

MONTEVIDEO, Oct. 10.—Brazilian revolutionary sources report that the federal and rebel armies are face to face in the state of Sao Paulo tonight, ready for what both sides expect will be the decisive battle of the civil war which began a week ago tonight.

Revolutionists from the southerly states of Rio Grande do Sul, Santa Catharina, and Parana have pushed 40,000 well trained, well equipped troops into the state of Sao Paulo where the federal government has decided to make its stand against the rebel advance.

One column of 5,000 revolutionists has invaded the state of Sao Paulo and other armies are located along the line separating Sao Paulo from Parana. These armies, having attained their objective, the three popular revolutionary leaders of Rio Grande do Sul, Gen. Osvaldo Aranha, Gen. Juan Antonio Flores do Cunha, and Dr. Vargas, president of the state, left the revolutionary headquarters at Porto Alegre this afternoon for the front.

Revolutionists from Minas Geraes, claim rebel reports, have also entered the states of Rio de Janeiro and Espirito Santo, so that the federal capital is completely surrounded and its fate depends on the outcome of the fighting about to begin in Sao Paulo.

Rebels Storm City.

PORTO ALEGRE, Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Brazilian federals and rebels today fought a battle at Joinville, a Santa Catharina city, which is one of the two government holdings in southern Brazil. The clash resulted in two civilians and one rebel killed, 13 rebels wounded, and the surrender of part of the defending forces.

A communique, sent from Curityba by Caldas Braga, revolutionary chieftain who led the assault on Joinville, said the eighth battery of artillery and a naval battalion of two officers and 190 men had surrendered before the rebel onslaught.

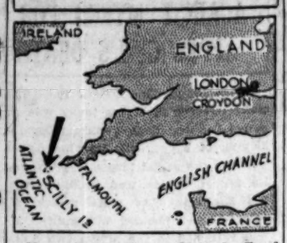
Despite the surrender of two units, Capt. Treglido and a force of Santa Catharina state police held out.

Hold British Cruisers Ready.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Two British cruisers in the West Indies have been ordered to stand by in readiness to sail for Brazil and protect British interests during the civil war there, if necessary.

The admiralty stated that the cruiser Delhi, now coaling in Trinadad, and the cruiser Dauntless, at Kingston, Jamaica, were being held ready for emergencies. Each is of 4,650 tons, carrying six inch guns.

END OF SEA FLIGHT



Map shows where Capt. J. Errol Boyd and Lieut. Harry P. Connor landed in Scilly islands, off Land's End, England, after flight across Atlantic from Newfoundland. The flyers were more than 150 miles off their course, but less than 300 miles from Croydon, near London, their goal, when they landed.

CROWDS CHEER AS VON HINDENBURG VISITS RHINELAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AACHEN, Germany, Oct. 10.—An old time Rhineland welcome was accorded to President von Hindenburg today when he drove through the streets of Aachen, which were decorated with gay flags and lined with tens of thousands of cheering inhabitants.

The liberation celebration was climaxed by an official reception at the rathaus, after which the president appeared on the balcony to be wildly greeted by demonstrators massed in the rathaus square.

President von Hindenburg declared that the German people could be assured of a happy future if they maintained that spirit of true coöperation they had displayed in the time of heavy trouble.

Port Huron Policeman Is Killed by Bandit Suspect

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 10.—(AP)—A policeman was killed and his companion wounded tonight by one of two suspected bandits whom they were taking to police headquarters. The slain policeman was Roy Shambleau. He was shot when Russell McComis, 18, Detroit, drew a gun which he had concealed.

ATLANTIC FLYERS ESCAPE DEATH BY FIVE MINUTES

Make Forced Landing on Isle Off England.

"but we never doubted for a minute they'd make it."

Mrs. Boyd, her two young daughters, and the flyer's parents followed the flight closely from the time of the takeoff at Harbor Grace yesterday.

During his flying career, said Mrs. J. T. Boyd, the flyer's mother, Erroll has had more than one narrow escape. In a bombing raid during the war enemy craft scored a direct hit on Boyd's plane over Zeebrugge, the German naval stronghold. The cylinders of his machine were punctured during the bombardment and one wing showed five bullet holes. He crashed after a dizzy fall from 12,000 feet, but landed just inside the Holland border and tumbled from his plane unhurt.

Attacked by Air Bandits.

Two years ago, as a commercial flyer, he cracked up on a New York field soon after a takeoff and his ship fell 300 feet. Veteran pilots who hurried to his assistance were amazed when he crawled out of the wreckage without a scratch.

Some time before that, while he was carrying pay roll funds by air in Mexico for an American company, he was attacked by bandits from the air and from the ground. His ship was riddled with bullets, but he reached his destination unharmed.

It is not generally known that Capt. Boyd also is a composer. Twelve years ago a New York publishing house sponsored his patriotic song, "For Land and Liberty."

MYSTERY KILLING VICTIM A THIEF, SCIENCE REVEALS

Patsy Carrino, whose bullet riddled body was tossed in front of the University hospital on Sept. 25, supposedly by rival gangsters, died a burglar, and at the hands of an unknown friend of the law.

This was revealed in effect at an inquest yesterday by Lieut. Col. Calvin Goddard, ballistic expert and head of the Northwestern university crime detection laboratory. Col. Goddard laid two bullets on the table before Deputy Coroner Jacob Schwell. One of the bullets, he said, was taken from Carrino's body, the other from a dress shop at 2519½ Devon avenue.

Other evidence showed that burglars entered the shop the morning Carrino's body was found, and that some unknown outsider, probably a neighbor, fired into the shop and at the burglars. That man, declared Col. Goddard, killed Carrino.

The old floating restaurant and clubroom, Rotarian, sank to the bottom of the Chicago river at the foot of Clark street yesterday, and last night the mystery of its sinking was a subject of lively speculation among the men Cook county Democrats on the roll of the political club which occupied the converted sidewheeler.

The Rotarian started sinking at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. A crowd soon gathered along Wacker drive. Capt. Dan Gilbert and his police squad, answering a call, climbed aboard and looked through its cabins, shouting "Fellows" and "Ship ahoys," but only echoes came back to them. By afternoon the boat had reached the bottom and rolled over on its side. Harbormaster Charles Agnew said the boat does not block the river, but that it will have to be removed.

Some believed that it was just old age that caused the craft to spring a leak and settle feebly to the muddy bottom of the river. But there were others who whispered that some one had scuttled the aged boat.

Is Owner Is Suspicious.

They had no suspicion as to who it was, nor could they ascribe a motive for the sinking. But Miles Devine, owner of the boat and president of the Cook County Democracy club, is certain that some one bored a hole in it. "It's a Democratic boat," he said. "Maybe the Republicans did it."

The mystery was further heightened by the fact that Devine and his other members, after a day's search, were unable to find Walter J. Powers, brother of the late Ald. John Powers, and proprietor of the fish and chop house which was connected with the club. Devine said Powers was suffering from lumbago when the latter last saw him early in the week and said he was going to enter a hospital.

"The boat was closed because Powers said he wouldn't trust anybody to run it while he was away," Devine said. "But he said he was leaving a trusted employé on board to watch the boat. The boat was dark last night and nobody could be found when it started to sink this morning."

Sinking Ends Long Battle.

Whatever the cause, the sinking ends a long battle to remove the boat from the Clark street dock, which it has occupied without benefit of city license. Three years ago the 46 year old excursion boat was brought here, its engines were removed and the boat elaborately remodeled for entertainment purposes.

At one time it was used as a taxi dance hall and yesterday Devine disclosed that negotiations had been under way to convert it into a minature golf course.

PEARSONS LOSES ALIMONY FIGHT; MUST PAY WIFE

Debate on Poverty Won by Woman.

Harry P. Pearsons, former mayor of Evanston, and his estranged wife debated the question, "Who is the poorest?" in the courtroom of Superior Judge Harry A. Lewis yesterday. After an hour's questioning and cross-examination the judge ruled that Mrs. Elizabeth Pearsons, 2752 Garrison avenue, Evanston, had won by a shade and granted her temporary alimony of $40 a week.

Mrs. Pearsons is suing for separate maintenance, charging misconduct and nonsupport. The Pearsons were married June 16, 1928. Pearsons recently filed an answer to his wife's suit in which he makes a categorical denial of her charges and declares their marriage was merely a business arrangement.

Wife Tells of Poverty.

"I haven't a cent to support myself and my three children by a former marriage," Mrs. Pearsons said from the witness stand. "I have pawned all my jewelry and owe money. I have often loaned my husband money which he has not repaid."

Questioned by her attorney, Milton Sabath, Mrs. Pearsons said her husband owns six houses in Evanston, farms and other real estate, and belongs to four clubs. She declared she had lost an inheritance of $15,000 in the stock market last year.

"If that's the case," the judge remarked, "you ought to be in an insane asylum instead of in court."

Pearsons on Stand.

Pearsons was called to the stand by his attorney, State Senator James J. Barbour. He served five successive terms as mayor of Evanston. He declared his wife had signed a prenuptial contract whereby she waived all dowry rights for the sum of $30,000.

"I owe $52,000," Pearsons testified. "The only assets I have are $300 in cash in a bank and two lots in Evanston which I can't sell. My 12 room home was given to me by my mother. I haven't paid an income tax in five years."

"I guess I'd better send both of you to Oak Forest," the judge interposed. "You are both broke. Maybe Pearsons could become mayor of Oak Forest."

Will Appeal from Ruling.

The judge gave it as his opinion that both had spent their money in "riotous living and plunging on the stock market." Senator Barbour announced he would appeal the alimony order and was instructed to post a $5,000 bond.

Pearsons has declared in his answer that his wife had agreed before their marriage that she was to act only as his business agent and to show the home in which he installed her to prospective buyers. He said she has violated their contract by coming to his home and demanding admittance. The hearing was continued until Nov. 7.

MINNESOTA STARTS MOVEMENT TO REPEAL NEWSPAPER GAG LAW

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 10.—(AP)—A move for repeal of Minnesota's newspaper suppression law received new impetus today.

R. E. Tillquist, St. Paul, representative of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen of the joint legislative board of the railroad brotherhoods in Minnesota, announced he had received a letter from State Senator George H. Lommen, Eveleth, Minn., in which the latter said he would support a move for repeal in the next legislature.

Lommen introduced the law in the house of representatives several years ago. His letter, Tillquist said, followed a conference last week with the joint legislative board.

National attention was focused on the law when a Minneapolis weekly publication was suppressed several years ago. The case was appealed to the State Supreme court, which upheld the lower court.

REWARD POLICE OF LAKE FOREST FOR CAPTURES

Citizens Give $500 After Arrest of Robbers.

A group of Lake Forest residents, asking that their names be withheld, yesterday sent to Mayor A. B. Dick Jr. a check for $500 with a request that he divide it among the police officers responsible for the capture of the robbers of the Leverett Thompson and the William V. Kelley homes.

A letter which accompanied the check said that a similar amount would be paid by the citizens "for equally efficient and energetic police work in the future," and pointed out that the two robberies were the only major disturbances of the peace in the recent history of the suburb.

Send Reward for Police.

The letter to Mayor Dick read as follows:

"A group of citizens interested in the safety of our community send you inclosed herewith a cashier's check for $500 with the request that you divide this as a special reward among the police officers who took part in the arrest of the bandit who entered the Leverett Thompson home and the men who robbed the home of the William V. Kelleys.

"The prompt and energetic work of the Lake Forest police force, shown by the immediate apprehension of these criminals, is, we think, deserving of this special reward.

"Will you divide this reward among the police officers in such manner as may be decided upon by you, together with the chairman of the police committee, Ald. James Griffin, and the chairman of our group?

"It is the intention of this citizens' group to pay a similar reward under your direction to police officers of Lake Forest for other equally efficient and energetic work hereafter.

"LAKE FOREST CITIZENS' COMMITTEE."

Trio Captured; Confess.

The three men who robbed the Kelley home were captured by Police Chief Lester Tiffany of Lake Forest with the aid of Evanston and Chicago police, and made complete confessions. They are Anthony Staropoulis, 34 years old, of 2461 North Clark street; Martin Ertel, 35 years old, of 1832 North Wells street, and Issy Curtis, 1106 Dodson avenue, Evanston. All three are being held temporarily at the Chicago detective bureau in the belief that they may be identified with other robberies.

GIVEN 40 YEARS AS BANK ROBBERS.

Fullerton, Neb., Oct. 10.—(AP)—John Giles and J. G. Fisher today pleaded guilty to charges of having robbed the First National bank at Genoa, Neb., of $6,000 last Sept. 22 and were sentenced to serve forty years in the state penitentiary.

BISHOP CANNON RESIGNS AS HEAD OF GIRLS' SCHOOL

Successor Is Named at M. E. College.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 10.—(AP)—The Times-Dispatch tonight received by telegram from Bishop Cannon Jr., at Washington, a copy of his letter of resignation as chairman of the board of trustees of the Blackstone College for Girls, Blackstone, Va., submitted to the trustees.

N. P. Angell of Rocky Mount, Va., was elected today to succeed Bishop Cannon as board chairman.

The copy of the bishop's letter follows:

"To the board of trustees of Blackstone College for Girls, Blackstone, Va.

"Dear brethren:

"I went to Blackstone in 1894 and was president of the college until 1918 with an interval of four years, from 1910 to 1914. During that time thousands of girls were trained there and I consider those years among the happiest and most useful of my life.

Quits to Help College.

"Since 1918 I have been president of the board of trustees, but my duties elsewhere have been such that I have rarely been able to attend the meetings of the board of trustees or to give much time or thought to the important affairs of the college.

"Since 1926 there has been a division of sentiment among the people in the territory from which the college naturally draws its support. A number of those people disagreed with my views and my activities during the last two years.

"At this time, when the college is endeavoring to increase its patronage and endowment, it is vital that there shall be decided results. I have decided, therefore, without any suggestion from any person or any committee of the college, to present my resignation as the president and as a member of the board of trustees, and I desire that this resignation shall be accepted promptly.

Puts in Plea for School.

"I appeal to all my friends to stand by the college in its efforts to increase its patronage and endowments. Those who have given my connection with the college as a reason for their failure to give it their support will now have the opportunity to indicate their interest by giving to the college their immediate, enthusiastic, effective support.

"I wish, above all things, that the college shall continue to do the effective work which it has done since 1894 in training the girls who have come to it to be efficient workers and fellow helpers to the truth."

Bishop Cannon virtually established the Blackstone institution in 1894, when it was known as the Blackstone Female institute.

DRY SENTENCED FOR 'FRAMEUP' OF FATAL RAID

Houston, Tex., Oct. 10.—(AP)—D. R. Cheatham, federal prohibition agent, today was convicted of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws in connection with an alleged "frameup" case against W. L. Edwards, aviator, who was slain here mysteriously last May.

Federal Judge J. C. Hutcheson Jr. sentenced Cheatham to from one to two years in prison.

C. H. Smith, who admitted being a liquor dealer, testified he had been employed by Cheatham to place liquor in an automobile belonging to Edwards in a "frameup" scheme. Cheatham denied Smith's testimony.

Edwards, manager of a Houston airport, was shot to death May 18. His body was thrown from an automobile in a fashionable residential section. The killing occurred a few days after Edwards had denounced as a "frameup" liquor charges brought against him following seizure of a quantity of liquor in his car which had been parked.

MANUEL HERRICK.

HERRICK DRAWS 6 MONTH TERM AS BOOTLEGGER

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Manuel Herrick, former Oklahoma congressman, left on a boat late today in company with three other white men and four Negroes for Centreville on the eastern shore to start serving a sentence of six months for the manufacture and possession of liquor.

"I got a dirty deal," Herrick said as he left to begin his term. He added that he would not appeal.

Herrick was arrested Aug. 8 while working at a 500 gallon still in St. Mary's county.

His defense at the trial in federal District court, conducted by himself, was that he took the job at the still to gain evidence which he planned to turn over to the prohibition department at Washington.

4 ORGANIZATIONS QUIT CLEARING HOUSE OF VOTERS

Three more withdrawals, making four in all, of organizations listed as having joined in the recent political indorsements of the "Voters' Clearing House," was indicated in communications to THE TRIBUNE yesterday.

President Everett L. Millard of the City club of Chicago said his organization, although having sent a representative to an early conference of the "clearing house," never makes any indorsements of candidates. In this he followed the language used by Mrs. Murry Nelson of the Woman's City club in a similar announcement on Tuesday.

The name of the Young People's Civic council was stricken with pen and ink from a circular issued by the Better Government association as a presentation of the "clearing house" recommendations. And the name of the Anti-Saloon league was omitted from the printed list of organizations appearing in the circular.

This was taken to indicate that the organizations remaining active in the coöperative reform movement headed by Dean Shailer Mathews of the divinity school of the University of Chicago are the Better Government association, the Civic Safety commission, the National Civic council, and the Chicago Church federation, four out of the original eight.

FESS OUTLINES HOOVER ACTION TO AID BUSINESS

Buying Power Preserved, He Declares.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—President Hoover has guided private enterprise through the throes of a great crisis and has preserved American buying power in the face of world wide depression, Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, Republican national chairman, told a Republican rally at the Armory here tonight which threw the Hoosier G. O. P. campaign into full gear.

Appearing on the same platform with Fess was Vice President Charles Curtis, who spoke briefly.

"The President," Senator Fess said, "met the situation as an emergency demanding immediate as well as drastic action, mobilized the forces of labor and capital, and planned a program of uninterrupted production and distribution. Immediately following the debacle of the stock exchange, the President instructed the heads of the departments to speed up construction work.

Democrats Are "Flippant."

"These are steps which the Democrats, in their program to 'smear Hoover,' dismiss by a wave of the hand or a flippant reference, couched in the language of ridicule.

"If the carping critics would withhold their direful prognostications; if the desire for quick and large returns in the field of speculation would give way to that of honest investment; if the partisan leaders would be satisfied to stay within the facts instead of employing exaggerations, quite a different situation would present itself.

"Our banking resources are abundant, more than found in all the balance of the world. Our credit system is sound. Our manufacturing plants are intact. Our national production is one-third of the world's production and we consume 90 per cent of that production at home. Our gigantic equipment and unparalleled organization for production and distribution are in some ways stronger than two years ago. Our transportation system is the very best, so as to permit quick delivery and avoid heavy inventories.

Points to Farm Aid.

"Our agricultural possibilities are present, save for the drought. For the first time this industry has government aid to assist the farmer in solving his own problems. Our labor was never on a more efficient scale, and never has there been a better spirit between labor and capital. We have the same leadership in industry. There is a more equitable showing of profits of business among labor, capital, and the consumer through increased wages and decreased prices, due to greater efficiency in production. Only confidence is necessary to insure normal conditions."

Wandering Engine Goes Through a Brick Wall

With ease born of 100,000 pounds in motion, a locomotive pushed its way neatly through the brick wall of the Milwaukee railway roundhouse at Chicago and Grand avenues yesterday and buried its cowcatcher in the soft earth just short of the sidewalk. Attracted by the crash, hostlers and helpers came running from all over the yards, but none among them had seen any one in the cab of the boisterous engine. Another engine was run in to retrieve the wanderer, bricklayers were summoned to repair the gaping wall, and an investigation was instituted by officials.

FAKE DRY AGENTS SEIZED; REVEAL "FIXING" RACKET

Caught with Stars and Forged Warrants.

Three men and a woman, including Joe Fiore, 3224 Polk street, reputed Capone hoodlum and well known police character, were seized by West Chicago avenue police yesterday, after their racket of posing as prohibition agents to shake down saloonkeepers allegedly netted "many thousands of dollars."

The quartet included Mrs. Mary Fiore, said to be the wife of Joe Fiore; Jack Sherman, 1934 Jackson boulevard, and Ted Virgilio, 901 Loomis street. They were seized in a high powered automobile in front of the Wicker Park hotel.

Carry Dry Agents' Stars.

Assistant Prohibition Administrator George Hurlburt, who took over the investigation, said the fake drys had operated for a year and that their racket had made them a small fortune. When arrested they carried regulation six point gold stars such as are used by prohibition agents, bona fide search warrant forms, with the names of prohibition agents and United States Commissioner Walker forged, and purported certificates of appointment to the dry service, with the forged name of James M. Doran, former commissioner of prohibition.

In addition to their credentials they carried a list of saloonkeepers, presumably to be approached.

Hurlburt said their method of operation was the most audacious of any impersonators ever discovered here. A prospective victim would be shown a search warrant, and then told to "take a ride to the Transportation building, where things may be fixed up."

The saloonkeeper would be asked for a "grand" in the corridor of fifth floor of the Transportation building, where the prohibition department has its offices, and if he didn't oblige he would be taken to the federal building. While the victim waited on the eighth floor, one of the impersonators would ostensibly call on Commissioner Walker or United States Attorney Johnson. Returning, he would report that "everything was fixed."

The last prospective victim to be taken to the federal building led to the capture. He refused to pay and obtained the license number of the automobile. This man has identified the impersonators and Hurlburt said he expected dozens of others to do so today.

Warrants will be obtained today charging the fake drys with impersonating federal officers.

Fiore was one of the twenty-six hoodlums whose names were on the secret police list of vagrants to be arrested on sight which was found under the pillow of Tony Tagenti, Capone bondsman, during a raid at the Carleton hotel.

Find Police Records.

The prisoners were questioned at the detective bureau last night by Chief John Norton. Mrs. Fiore, whose maiden name was Gladys Hoover, was found to have a record for shoplifting, and Sherman has been arrested twice for robbery, it was said. Virgilio is a robbery suspect, and Chief Norton said he would have all the prisoners examined by holdup victims.

Chief Justice McGoorty of the Criminal court issued a writ of habeas corpus for the prisoners, returnable at 9:30 this morning, but they will not have to be produced if they are turned over to the government.

COMSTOCK CALLS FOR REPEAL OF DRY LAW AND STATE CONTROL

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 10.—(AP)—A declaration for repeal of the 18th amendment and restoration of state control of intoxicating liquors was made last night by William A. Comstock, Democratic candidate for governor.

Recalling that the Republican state platform ignored prohibition after leaders of that party had said it is not an issue, Mr. Comstock declared the voters of the state are entitled to know where each candidate stands.

"The Democratic convention declared for a referendum on repeal at an election where this is the only question to be decided," he continued. "Personally I have never been in favor of national prohibition."

POISON RUM KILLS NINE IN NEWARK WITHIN 48 HOURS

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—An epidemic of poison liquor deaths has struck Newark, N. J., Dr. Harrison S. Martland, chief medical examiner for Essex county, reported today. In the last forty-eight hours, Dr. Martland said, there have been nine deaths. Three were reported today.

None of the three cases today has been identified. The first victim was found about noon. The police were called and as the man appeared to be alive they started to take him to the hospital. A few blocks away they saw another form lying in the gutter. They gathered this victim into the patrol wagon also. When they reached the hospital with their charges both were declared dead by physicians. Within half an hour two victims had been pronounced dead at the hospital. The firemen brought in a third victim.

The verdict was the same as in all three cases: "Death from poison liquor."

Legion Rum Deaths Denied.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Vigorous denials that there had been any deaths or cases of alcohol poisoning at the recent national convention of the American Legion here were issued tonight by convention officials.

O. L. Bodenhamer, retiring national commander of the legion, took exception tonight to newspaper reports that four persons had died and several hundred had been made ill by poison alcohol during the convention. He said:

"Throughout the convention attention has been called to the legion's determination that our organization stands squarely for law and order. In the convention itself, a resolution was adopted, calling attention to rowdyism by others than legionnaires, but disguised as legionnaires, and the Boston police were requested to stop it.

"A letter addressed to me by Eugene C. Huitman, police commissioner, stated that this was an exceptionally well behaved gathering, and the legion was congratulated by him as to the men's good behavior."

COLORADO MAY SEND DEMOCRAT TO U. S. SENATE

Harmony Torn to Shreds in Republican Party.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Denver, Colo., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Colorado is a decidedly doubtful state in the election of a United States senator next month. Ordinarily Colorado goes Republican much more frequently than Democratic in national elections, but this year the G. O. P. in this state is badly disorganized as the result of a senatorial primary contest that tore harmony to shreds and left two powerful factions filled with hatred of each other.

What with hard times, which are as much a liability as prosperity formerly was an asset to the party in power at Washington, with Republican disorganization, and with the anti-prohibition leanings of the Republican candidate, George Shaw, in an orthodox prohibition state, the Democrats have an excellent chance of electing their bone dry candidate, Edward P. Costigan.

The Democratic managers, however, are not allowing themselves to be carried away by the roseate aspect of affairs nearly a month before election day. As one of them put it, "The Republicans have a way of getting together, even when they're all shot to pieces."

Shaw's Rival Backs Him.

William V. Hodges, rich corporation lawyer and former treasurer of the Republican national committee, who was defeated by Mr. Shaw for the senatorial nomination, has put aside personal feeling and called upon every worker in his faction to turn out and put Shaw over. He personally has undertaken the financing of the canvass in Denver county, which will cost not less than $50,000. He has told his followers that the welfare of the state and of the nation require the defeat of Mr. Costigan, whom Mr. Hodges regards as a radical far more dangerous, because abler, than Norris, Brookhart, and La Follette.

The defeat of Mr. Hodges represented the first reverse suffered in many years by the faction headed by Senator Lawrence C. Phipps, with which the powerful Morgan and Rockefeller industrial interests represented by Mr. Hodges are identified. Mr. Shaw was supported by Senator Charles W. Waterman, who is identified with the beet sugar interests, and by Clarence Hamlin, Republican national committeeman, and John R. Otes, state chairman. Curiously enough, however, while Mr. Hodges was defeated the Hodges candidates for county and precinct committeemen were pretty generally elected.

Blame It on Democrats.

This phenomenon of the primary result is deemed to lend color to the charge that Mr. Hodges was defeated by Democrats voting in the Republican primary for the purpose of naming Mr. Shaw as Mr. Costigan's opponent. The Democratic managers are said to have regarded it doubtful that Mr. Costigan could beat Mr. Hodges. Mr. Shaw defeated Mr. Hodges by 14,000 votes.

Mr. Costigan has been in and out of all the parties. He started out as a Republican, being sent to the legislature when a young man at the instance of Mr. Hodges and denied a seat therein by the Democratic majority in deciding a contest of his election. In 1912 he was defeated as the Bull Moose candidate for governor, but supported Wilson in 1916 and was rewarded therefor by appointment to the tariff commission as a Progressive. By 1920 he was classing himself as a Democrat.

Mr. Costigan says he is a Liberal, but not a radical. In the 11 years he spent in Washington, however, he worked hand in glove with the senate radicals by whom he is being aided in the present campaign.

The radicals could not have been better pleased with the political situation that obtains in Colorado if it had been made to order. For several years they have been depicting the water power trust as the menace of the hour and the water power magnates as the latest brand of malefactor of great wealth. They have been charging the water power trust with plotting to seize control of the government.

Now, just when the radicals were in need of some substance for this charge the Colorado Republicans nominated Mr. Shaw, who is general counsel for Henry L. Doherty's public service corporation of Denver, one of the largest public utilities and developers of hydro-electric power in the country, a veritable limb of the water power trust, according to the radicals. It was Mr. Shaw, a 40 year old go-getter, born in Maine, who had procured the public service corporations electric light and power franchise from the Denver city council under which Mr. Costigan charges the consumers are paying 5 cents per kilowatt hour in excess of a reasonable charge.

Water Power Trust in It.

"We are greatly overtaxed under the franchise taken from the people of Denver by dubious means three years ago," said Mr. Costigan, "and we now have the spectacle of our so-called 'public service' corporation boldly using our money, taken from us in excessive rates, to control governorships and senatorships, no doubt with an eye on the presidency of the United States itself. This is the threat of our local branch of the electric power combination of America, which aims to hold forever in its grasp the illimitable developments of our country's electric resources."

The Republicans cite this and other attacks on capital and his advocacy of old age pensions as proof that Mr. Costigan is a radical. As to his views of the water power trust Mr. Costigan retorts that Mr. Hodges charged in the primary campaign that the public service corporation of which he was attorney and former director had "spent money like water" to nominate Mr. Shaw. Mr. Hodges had resigned from the public service corporation, the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, and other interests in order not to involve them in political attack.

Labor is solid for Mr. Costigan who defended the mine workers in the Ludlow massacre trial in 1914. The battle for capture of the sugar beet growers is waxing hot. Mr. Shaw is advocating a higher sugar tariff. Mr. Costigan stands for reduction of the tariff in harmony with his position when on the tariff commission, but he advocates in addition a bounty of 1½ cents a pound which he says would enable the growers to get $3.90 more per ton for their beets.

NEW YORK TOLD OF "FIXERS' RING" WITH GUARANTY

Raid on Suite in Big Hotel Follows.

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Isidor J. Kresel, special counsel for the appellate division in its investigation into the magistrates' courts, today received information that there exists in a Broadway hotel a "clearing house for fixers," who claim to be able to kill any sort of criminal charge from misdemeanor to felony, if the defendant can pay enough.

One report reaching the special counsel was that a certain fourth offender, facing a life sentence under the Baumes law, bought his freedom for $50,000, of which $5,000 went to the magistrate who sat in the case.

Ben Miller, head of the Ben Miller association, Hotel Claridge, was questioned today at Mr. Kresel's office. The special counsel refused to say whether the Miller association was the alleged clearing house.

Lawyer Also Questioned.

Jacob Solot, a lawyer with offices in a building said to be owned by Miller, was also interrogated. He is reported to be a member of the association. The books of the organization were produced under subpoena.

The association occupies a five room suite on the second floor of the Claridge. There is a well furnished lounge. In an adjoining room is a ping-pong table. The place has a cigar stand and a few telephone booths.

Mr. Solot denied that there was any traffic in penal immunity. The lawyer, who is junior vice president and chairman of the house committee, said that most of the members came from the garment district to the south of the hotel.

"Missing" Magistrate Found.

Earlier in the day the investigating attorney had provided a sensation by announcing that Magistrate Abraham Rosenbluth of the Bronx was missing from his home and that his whereabouts were a matter of especial concern, but the magistrate's wife later promised to produce him tomorrow at the latest. Mrs Rosenbluth told the prosecutor her husband has been recuperating in Atlantic City from an illness. Kresel, in reporting the magistrate's "disappearance," said he was looking into a report that money had been paid at the time of the Rosenbluth appointment.

Judge Amadeo A. Bertini today refused to sign a waiver of immunity and testify before the extraordinary grand jury concerning his appointment to the General Sessions bench. As a result a transcript of his bank account, his wife's, the records of his backer, Charles L. Kohler, Tammany leader of the Tenth district, and of the corporation through which the judge controls the apartment house where both he and the leader live will be subpoenaed

Britain Gets $4,860,000 Tax on Estate of Duke

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Property valued at $12,198,000 was left by the duke of Northumberland in his will, which was made public today. The estimated death duties amount to $4,860,000. The duke left $14,580 and his personal chattels to his widow, and the use during her life of his gold and silver plate. The residue of the property is left in various trusts for the 18 year old heir to the dukedom.

HIRAM JOHNSON PREDICTS FIGHT OVER RESOURCES

Boulder Dam Is Hailed as Great Project.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 10.—(AP)—A conflict in the near future between proponents of privately developed natural resources and "those who hold the public's rights paramount" was predicted in an address here today by United States Senator Hiram Johnson of California.

Addressing the Commonwealth club, Senator Johnson said the conflict had been foreshadowed in the senate in its battle over the nomination of Circuit Judge John J. Parker and Charles Evans Hughes to the United States Supreme bench. The nomination of Judge Parker failed of confirmation.

Sees Power Controversy.

Senator Johnson said the senate battle "sharply defines what is to be the irrepressible conflict of our times. The two philosophies of government are at war. The not far distant future will witness them at grips, and doubtless in connection with the generation of electrical energy."

Litigation instituted in the United States Supreme court by Arizona against the Boulder dam project is destined to be "neither as long nor as difficult" as the six year congressional fight for authorization of the big undertaking.

The senator heralded the dam as the "greatest constructive work of our generation," praised the recent change in the state department's attitude toward revoluntionary governments, censured the farm board, and excoriated the London naval treaty.

Refers to Arizona's Action.

Referring to the original action instituted in the United States Supreme court by Arizona, Senator Johnson said:

"It is not impossible that there new trials will be blazed in jurisprudence as the congress wrote a new and novel statute into federal law."

The government opposed development of Muscle Shoals, he said, "and at the same time, while decrying government development of what actually belonged to the people, the farm board was going into the Chicago wheat pit blowing in millions of the people's money in the greatest gamble on earth."

Senator Johnson assailed the naval armament treaties of recent years. He said each agreement saw United States diplomats bow to the demands of Great Britain and Japan.

"In the guise of limitation of navies and disarmament," he said in referring to the London pact, "a treaty has been imposed upon the American people which neither disarms the parties to it nor reduces American naval armament below the American program, but which to be effective requires an American navy to be built in its most important elements according to British specifications and which, if built, will cost American taxpayers more than one billion dollars."

U. S. MARINE CORPS PERSONNEL CUT TO FOLLOW NAVY SLASH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Hoover economy has hit the United States marines as well as the blue jackets of the navy, it became known here today. Just forty-eight hours after Secretary of the Navy Adams announced that enlisted personnel would be cut by 4,800 men, it was learned that a proportionate cut is planned for the marine corps.

Orders have been issued stopping all recruiting of new men for the present and only marines desiring to remain in the service after their terms expire will be permitted to reinlist.

About 300 names are expected to be dropped this month from the marine rolls. The total cut will run about 500 and may reach above a thousand men. The enlisted strength of the marine corps allowed by law is 18,000.

As a result of the Hoover retrenchment move, the total reduction from the navy and marine corps will run up to approximately 6,000 before the end of the next fiscal year. A number of civilians employed at shore establishments are slated to go, but the exact number affected will not be made known until after a survey now in progress is completed.

No cut in officer personnel is contemplated. A survey is being made to explore the possibility of trimming down the naval shore establishments.

THOUSANDS WEEP BEFORE BIERS OF 48 AIRSHIP DEAD

Great Memorial Held for Victims in R-101 Crash.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Londoners today had brought home to them the stark reality and the enormity of the R-101 disaster. Hitherto the population, although shaken by the tragedy, had thought of it only in numbers. Today England was mourning in a different manner.

At 8 o'clock this morning the doors of Westminster hall were opened to the public. The 48 dead lay in narrow flag covered coffins in two unbroken ranks, stretching far into the dimness of the famous hall. A long line of people, many of whom had waited all night, started to file slowly past the coffins, piled high with flowers from all over the world. There were wreaths of laurel and hether from the king and queen, wreaths from the prince of Wales and the duke of York, and one from the king of Spain. Twenty-six of the coffins had names affixed, indicating that the bodies had been identified. The remains of Lord Thomson, air minister, were not identified.

Hundreds Faint in Jam.

The line continued moving through all day and tonight and at midnight was still moving through. It had been originally planned to close the hall at 10 p. m., but at that time there were still thousands lined up and it was decided to keep the doors open until 12:30 a. m.

The public was passing through at the rate of 200 per minute, and it was estimated that 100,000 visited the remains during the day and night. At 9:45 p. m. the crowd began to get excited, fearing the hall would close before they reached it, and police reinforcements had to be rushed to the scene in flying squad cars.

Hundreds fainted and ambulances being brought the pavements were utilized for temporary hospitals. Traffic became chaotic. Barriers were erected and lined with red lights and warning notices that the streets and roads were closed.

A memorial service was held also today at St. Paul's.

The streets were lined with thousands watching the arrival of notables at the famous cathedral, which only a few weeks ago was the scene of a joyous thanksgiving service for its restoration, attended by the royal family, diplomats, and the who's who of the social world.

Prince of Wales Attends.

Several carriages moved to the cathedral steps and then swung into the barricaded enclosure. Weeping figures stepped down, dressed in black. They were the relatives of the R-101 dead. Attendants led them to their seats near the altar.

A few yards behind them came the prince of Wales, representing the king. He wore a black overcoats, a silk hat and a black tie.

Every available inch of space in the great cathedral was packed with diplomatic representatives from all the countries in the world, members of parliament, the entire cabinet, members of the royal family, dominion prime ministers, delegates to the imperial conference, representatives of public bodies and the genral public.

Simplicity Is Keynote.

Simplicity was the keynote of the service, which was conducted by the Bishop of London, assisted by the chaplain of the royal air force and other dignitaries. The hymns, "Rock of Ages," and "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," brought profound emotion to the assembly, and there was hardly a dry eye in the great throng.

Finally come the benediction by the Archbishop of Canterbury, "The Dead March in Saul," and then intense silence. With startling suddenness the silver trumpets of the royal air force trumpeters sounded "Last Post." The service was ended.

The last chapter of this tragic story will be told tomorrow when the funeral procession starts from Westminster hall through London to entrain the bodies for Cardington for burial.

Blame Lack of Preparation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BEAUVAIS, France, Oct. 10. — A French member of the committee of experts investigating the R-101 disaster tonight said it is the opinion of all the investigators that it was no structural fault of the dirigible that was responsible for the tragedy, but a lack of scientific preparation for the flight and almost complete ignorance of weather conditions.

The experts' investigation is finished. Commander Holt is going to Paris to arrange for the disposal of the wreckage, which it is understood will be sold to a junk dealer. The rear control gears, the engines and the three mooring cables from the nose will be shipped to the air ministry in London for a more careful examination. All hope of finding the log has been given up.

2 BANDITS ROB RESTAURANT.

Three young bandits late yesterday afternoon held up a restaurant at 1600 Prairie avenue and took $583 from the proprietors, Walter Bresowski and Harry Yan. They escaped in a small car driven by a fourth bandit.

NEW YORK CLOSES TWO STREETS TO GET PARK SITE OF ROCKEFELLER

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—The board of estimate today accepted the offer made months ago by John D. Rockefeller Jr. to give the city the fifty-six acre Billings estate on Washington Heights to be used for park purposes, in return for the closing of East 64th and East 65th streets, between York avenue and Exterior street, for the respective purposes of expanding the Rockefeller institute and the erection of the New York hospital.

The territory in the Rockefeller gift borders on upper Riverside drive and Broadway. Four acres in the plot, but not included in the gift to the city, are to be used for the erection of the American Art museum.

Mr. Rockefeller offered, in addition, to carry on at his own expense, the landscaping and rough grading of the roadways in the park site at a cost estimated at $2,000,000; to cede the title to one block of Bennett avenue and a short section of Fort Washington avenue; the land required for widening Exterior street and East 63d street, the latter in connection with the closing of East 64th street and East 65th street, and also to expend about $35,000 for improving Claremont park, opposite Grant's tomb.

The city will receive land with an assessed valuation of $2,000,000 and in return will give up land with an assessed value of only $300,000. It is estimated that additional work will cost Mr. Rockefeller $2,065,000, against the city's $700,000. In sum the cost to Mr. Rockefeller will be about $4,000,000 and the city only $1,000,000.

BRITAIN TO LOOK OUT FOR ITSELF, DOMINIONS TOLD

"Empire Is Second," Minister Says.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON Oct. 10.—Further evidence that all is not well with the dominions at the imperial conference was supplied in a speech by J. H Thomas, British dominions secretary, at a lunch today to the dominion delegates. All the dominions, he said, had declared their policy was that their own commonwealth came first and that of the empire second, "so I say in behalf of Great Britain, that that must be our policy and our paramount consideration.

"They place themselves first and the empire second and, in sporting parlance, say: 'We hope theirs will be among the also rans.' I say this in behalf of the British government: 'Our first thought must be our own country.'"

Row Over Food Tariff.

It is reported that the Labor cabinet has decided to turn down the proposal by Prime Minister Bennett of Canada for a British food tax, with preference for empire supplies. This decision will be formally communicated to the heads of the dominion delegations Monday morning.

Considerable irritation is felt in Labor and Liberal circles over yesterday's action of the British Tory party, which is out of office and has, therefore, no standing in the present situation. I learned that Stanley Baldwin's statement yesterday, accepting in behalf of the Conservative opposition Mr. Bennett's offer, and promising to carry it out if the Conservative party is returned to office, was submitted to Mr. Bennett and revised by him two or three times before it was issued to the public over Mr. Baldwin's signature.

Resent Dominion Interference.

Such interference by a dominion in the politics of Great Britain is greatly resented.

It is also learned that at a meeting of the delegation heads yesterday Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, told the Canadians plainly that Great Britain intended to buy her wheat in the cheapest market, and expected Canada and the other dominions to buy their manufactured goods where the prices are most favorable.

The active work of the conference was almost suspended today on account of the R-101 memorial services, which all the delegates attended. In the afternoon the constitutional committee, headed by Lord Sankey, met and considered questions relating to exequaturs of consuls and the form and ratification of commercial treaties. At the present it is the custom to send the exequaturs of foreign consuls of the dominions to London for the royal signature. The dominions want this right themselves.

BOOKS

Norton's Book Offers Religion as Day's News

Discusses the Churches and Public Relations.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

"Church and Newspaper," by William Bernard Norton [Macmillan].

Clergymen of all faiths face the hard job of understanding the world of human beings. Unless they know people and what people face in the human world they may anticipate little success, no matter how apostolic or authoritative their ordinations were. It is possible that the workings of divine forces are no more mysterious nor baffling than human activity. It may be that understanding of man is more elusive than knowledge of God. And who can know much about mankind who does not understand the most human of all institutions—the newspaper?

So it is with a bit of a gloat that I urge my ministerial brethren to get and absorb Dr. Norton's book. Next to actual experience as a news reporter, "Church and Newspaper" is the best route toward understanding daily journalism. Dr. Norton's quarter of a century experience as religious editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE gave him grasp of the newspaper world to which few clergymen ever attain. At the same time his relationship with his own communion as well as with all others was impeccable throughout the years.

It is as easy for a newspaper man to be annoyed by the foibles of parsons as it is for parsons to decry newspapers. But there is not one unsympathetic line in Dr. Norton's book. It is made very clear, however, that few ministers know what news is. It is pointed out that Christianity was launched as news column material and not editorial matter.

"The gospel was first preached as news," Dr. Norton quotes Halford Luccock of Yale divinity school as saying. "Whenever the gospel has been preached with power it has been preached as news. Whenever it has dwindled down to mere advice, become merely editorial Christianity, it has evaporated into a cloud as vague as the Newfoundland fog."

It is unquestionably true that the reason most sermons are not interesting news copy is because they are merely spoken editorials or propaganda.

"Anybody can write propaganda, but it takes achievement to produce news," Dr. Norton writes.

The great editorial writers of pre-Christian days—the Hebrew prophets—had long been dead and their influence had waned when the greatest and most influential news story of all time "broke." It was front page material from the start, because it involved mystery, conflict, ecclesiastical and civil court actions, execution, death and a return from death to life, and divine revelation through a Man.

The front page, however, does not mean page 1 of a contemporary daily paper. Rather, front page material is that which most excites people's tongues.

BOOKS FOR SAILORS; CHICAGO WOMEN ASKING YOUR HELP

October 20-25 has been set aside as the week when books are to be collected for the American Merchant marine. Mrs. John Bordeñ, author of "The Cruise of the Northern Light" [Macmillan], is chairman of the Chicago committee which hopes to collect 30,000 volumes.

A simple task it will be if all of you who are always complaining about how little room you have for books will go through your accumulations and weed out the books that you do not feel a passionate desire to keep for all time.

In other words those books that are no longer thrilling to you probably will be manna to somebody. Two birdies you can kill with the one stone of giving your old books to the sailors—you can give your bookshelves reason for rejoicing by putting them into the position of being able to be hospitable to all those brand new books you've been intending to buy, but haven't had room for, and you can give yourself rejuvenating pleasure by doing something nice for somebody else. It's a swell way to start the autumn. Mark your book plainly "for seamen" and deliver them to any branch of the Chicago public library or the Newberry library. Let's make that 30,000 a good round 50,000! F. B.

"Mosaic" Tells Modern Story of Tribal Life

With Woman as Despot in Paris Home.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Mosaic," by G. B. Stern [Knopf].

Readers who remember G. B. Stern's "The Matriarch" as one of the most delightful, rollicking, zestful novels that they ever read, will consider "Mosaic" a luxurious gift of the gods. It is another "Matriarch." Instead of Anastasia Rakonitz, Berthe Czelovar rules her household with all of the panoply and arrogance of an empress.

Through the rooms of Seize rue Caumont, Paris, an endless stream of Czelovar and Rakonitz relations flow past the grandstand of Berthe. They admire [or deplore] her, but always she is the general to whom they all must dip their swords in salute. Nothing, her whole life long until she is sixty two, shakes for a moment her confidence in her beauty, her wit, her charm and her artistic glory.

Then an awful thing happens and she is almost, for a few hours, convinced that perhaps it is true that no one can live with her—for her two favorite nephews—who were to her the sons which she never had—both have deserted her. The wife of one of them has made it very plain to her why, and her world, so gorgeously trapped with her self-confidence, almost is tumbling round her. But the little Letti, her sister who always has been looked on as a weakling, proves her strength—as she has proved it again and again during the years—and the book ends with old Berthe her old, incorrigible, self-complacent self.

Like "The Matriarch," "Mosaic" is the story of a vast family life with countless births and deaths, so many that it is almost impossible to keep track of them. Out of the helter-skelter of the mad life that is characteristic of the Czelovars, there emerge old Berthe and her sister Letti, unforgettable figures. Etienne, Letti's son, and Rudi, the Viennese composer who is the nephew of Berthe's dead husband, are Berthe's passion, but both of them escape from her overpowering possession.

"Mosaic" is a rich, full, luscious book, as nearly like "The Matriarch" as any two books ever could be, no better, I should say, without rereading "The Matriarch," yet no worse, except that the novelty of the family is not so keen after one has known so intimately one branch of it as one did in "The Matriarch."

G. B. Stern has a genius for making her characters rootedly racial. No matter in what country the Czelovars and Rakonitzes and the Bettelheims lived they were tribal, they were genre Jewish. Vienna, Paris, London, San Remo, might be their birthplaces or their homes, but they were not Viennese, Parisian, English, Italian half so much as they were essentially of their race and their tribe.

"Mosaic" is a long, generous book, beginning with the moment when Berthe at the age of fourteen burst upon the eyes of Konrad, who was to be her husband, and ending with a buxom, hard working, hard playing, passionate Berthe of sixty-odd.

Less things happen than seem to happen in the book, for the state of ferment that was Berthe's mind, the excitability, the thrill of living, is in each page, even when the excitement is about nothing more than a new hat worn at exactly the right angle, or an English "pouding" to celebrate the arrival of the young English cousins.

There is a bitter rivalry between Berthe and the sister of her husband that never disappeared, only ebbed and flowed, with now one and then the other on the crest of the wave.

It is a grand book, "Mosaic"—you'll like it.

Tea Talk Stirs Centuries' Dust Off Crusaders

Harold Lamb Tells of Holy Land Trip.

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The literary tea party season again is in full swing. First of the four Oolong events in the last seven days introduced Harold Lamb, just returned from two years spent in Rome and the Holy Land writing the second volume of "The Crusaders."

HAROLD LAMB.

Tall, fortyish, a hint of the scholar in his aspect, he has handsome iron gray hair and—though not related to the late Charles—a twinkle in his blue eyes which denotes mental kinship with our favorite essayist.

Wednesday at the Ritz gave glimpse of Virginia Hersch, dark eyed, spirited author of "Bird of God" and of "Women Under Glass," her second novel just off the press. She is a native Californian. Her frock—authentically Parisian—and the manner of wearing it come from nine years' residence in France. There she has lived since her marriage to Lee Hersch, an artist. A tour of museum cities and a great quantity of leisure started her writing novels, she says.

Summers the Hersches spend in the south of France, "an ideal place to paint and to write, because you are so beautifully taken care of." Full twenty writers were clustered this summer in the vicinity of her village, among them Margaret Wilson, Eric Hatch, George Seldes, Don Levine, Francis Hackett, Clarence Darrow, Nat Ferber, H. G. Wells, and Jerome Blum, who has turned from painting to literature.

On Friday Stanley Rinehart of Farrar and Rinehart staged an "at home" in honor of Dawn Powell, who now follows "She Walks in Beauty" and "Bride's Night" by a direct and convincingly undrab story of a small Ohio town entitled "Dance Night." Miss Powell is petite and plump, with a dimple high up on her cheek where dimples usually don't grow.

She is as inane, with energy as a whirring dynamo, a waywardly charming, gamin sort of dynamo. She is to burst on Broadway soon under the Theater Guild banner with a play entitled "The Party."

Over the fluted yellow tea cups of the Town Hall club we learned from Dhan Gopal Mukerji that "there is a kindness of heart in the American people found nowhere else on earth." "Disillusioned India" is his latest book, following "Visit India with Me," "A Son of Mother India Answers," and "Cast and Outcast."

Mr. Mukerji came to America when he was twenty and has lived here that many years. Sixty acres in Connecticut's highest hills give him a retreat where he writes and roams the woods.

He speaks English as he writes it with an intimate appreciation of its beauties; his voice is rich.

"THE SEAS BETWEEN" RECEIVES PRAISE FROM SWINNERTON

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—I think there can be no doubt that George Blake's "The Seas Between" is going to be one of the important novels of the season. It is a full length book, and a close, clear cut study of character.

More than that, it is a romance which should delight those who felt enthusiasm for such a book as Mr Tomlinson's "Gallion's Reach." The scene shifts from Scotland to the West Indies; the book is full of intense, sober feeling, and one has throughout the sense of quiet power.

As Mr. Blake has been more than two years in writing the book, and as he admits to the fact that it has cost him more effort than any other book he has written, "The Seas Between" represents his talent and his conscientious artistry as nothing else could do.

Mr. Blake has had an interesting career. He had a rough war experience, and since his recovery from the consequences of that he has done a great deal of able journalistic work. He was for a time acting editor of a London literary weekly. Until recently he has been acting editor of "The Strand Magazine." And now he has turned publisher. He has joined the board of a young firm, Faber & Faber, a board which already includes two literary men of note, T. S. Eliot and Frank Morley [brother of America's own Christopher Morley], and the son of a third very distinguished writer, Mr. de la Mare.

Another book which is making a good deal of talk is a new kind of crime novel—and a most amusing and entertaining one. It is called "When No Man Pursueth." The author's name is given as David Sharp, and the book is apparently his first effort. If in fact it is a first book, the literature of crime has a recruit of importance, for Mr. Sharp has a very engaging air, and he has a new method. But I am inclined to doubt if it is a first book. It would not surprise me to learn that the author is already known for excellently humorous detective fiction under another name.

The tale moves lightly from its first astonishing sentence to its last. Wit sparkles upon every page; preposterousness is not shirked; and the story of a professor of philology who discovers that many attempts are being made on his life will be widely popular among those who enjoy humor in the midst of danger.

Negro Writes His People's Story, New York Style

"Black Manhattan," by James Weldon Johnson [Knopf], is the history of the Negro in New York, his physical environment, his mental and spiritual development and his place in the arts of the years since the civil war.

It is written with understanding and distinction by a Negro who never, however, takes on himself the task of complaining about his people's treatment. There is nothing pathetic about his record—he glories in the opportunities for social and intellectual betterment which have been the privilege of his race. He writes soberly and more like a scholar than a reporter.

In his discussions of the artistic successes of his race he modestly merely mentions the name of one of their outstanding men of letters—James Weldon Johnson. He has made a thorough survey of Negro life in Manhattan and converted his findings into a volume of historical importance.

Here's John Falstaff in Rollicking Recent Novel

"The Good Sir John," by Phoebe Fenwick Gaye [Liveright], is one of those lusty, buxom tales that delight historical novel fans. It is about Falstaff, of course, and his roistering, bolsterous age and self. Success through wit and weight was his; no work nor worry for him. The author has made it as jolly and as picturesque as her "Vivandiere," which brought her fame on both sides of the Atlantic.

MEMORANDUM ON TRACTION DELAYS.

Mr. Insull has issued a statement of progress toward a traction reorganization in Chicago. In the light of the difficulties inherent in the task, he thinks, satisfactory results are being achieved. Mr. Insull has mustered his facts ably, as might be expected of him. There are many thousands of security holders and the federal court to be won over to any financial settlement. An engineering staff has had to be thrown together for purposes of subway design and construction, and, difficult as such tasks would be for a veteran organization, they are complicated by the newness of the organization, and so on.

All this may be conceded, but it must be remembered that Mr. Insull speaks ex parte. He is the leading negotiator on one side of the table. The public of Chicago is on the other. The inference from his remarks that hesitation and delay at this juncture cannot be avoided and in the interest of the public should be accepted tolerantly is not the thought of a disinterested observer of Chicago traction.

Experience of the last twenty years teaches that those responsible for the conduct and improvement of Chicago's transportation lines need no encouragement to procrastinate. Delay and postponement may not be their deliberate policy, but it has become their habit. Traction negotiation has become a kind of mental gymnastics to be indulged in for the sake of the exercise. It seems to be great fun for those who are addicted to it, but meanwhile the street cars are crowded, the service is grossly inadequate and uncomfortable, the healthy growth of the city is being retarded, and jobs are not being provided as plentifully as they might be if the work of construction were in full swing.

We do not counsel undue haste in reaching decisions. We say merely that undue haste is so remote from all the probabilities that it can safely be ignored. Spurs can be applied to traction negotiations in Chicago without any danger of a runaway. That horse is galloping when it walks.

THE MULTIPLICATION OF TONGUES.

George Malcom Thomson, writing for the London Spectator on "The Triumph of Mistral"—in the revival of the Provençal tongue and literature, extinguished by the crusades against the heretical Languedoc—refers to the other revivals of tongues in Europe. "At the congress of Vienna there were eleven European languages used in the official interstate correspondence. Today there are twenty-six."

Breton has been made a literary speech. Erse is an official state language. The Frisian dialects have gained against Dutch intolerance of the language in the schools. The peasant majority in Norway has put Landsmael in use in internal administration, Landsmael being a synthesis of peasant dialects. There is a dictionary of the Jutland dialect. Since 1918 Gaelic may be taught in the schools of the Scotch highlands. "The aftermath of the war has rescued from different degrees of submersion Finnish, Lettish, Lithuanian, and Esthonian. During the century the retreat of Turkey from the Balkans and the resurgent nationalism in the dual monarchy added Croat, Slovak, Slovene, Ruthene, Czech, Serb, Bulgarian, Rumanian, and Albanian to the list of educated tongues."

The rebirth or recovery of these distinctive tongues for literature or government use must be adjusted to the integrating programs such as Briand's or such as are cultivated in the league of nations. If economic reality is seeking unity in Europe sentimental attachment to the fundamental differences of nationality does not show any weakening. The love of a native language is supposed to be one of the most powerful national instincts and a diversity of languages one of the greatest impediments to union. The dominion of Canada is bilingual and a union. The dual empire of central Europe was multilingual and a precarious synthesis.

One assumption would be that if Europe had welon tendencies of a substantial character they would be revealed in a leaning toward a common tongue and not in an affectionate and arduous cultivation of a distinctive speech, but some pan-Europeans conclude that this and union are congruous with a bilingualism, each group to have the language dear to its heart, all to have a language common to their minds and actions.

The durable English language has proved that it can adjust itself to two methods of treatment. In England it gives a language of literature and administration and then breaks up into dialects which make a colloquial interchange difficult if not impossible between various counties and sections. In the United States the same language has produced an idiom which is serviceable and understandable the country over. Such a common understanding has been taken as the basis of union. Possibly English in England proves the contrary.

ELECT JUDGE LYLE.

With all proper respect to the prominent lawyers constituting the bar association's committee on candidates, their recommendation against Judge Lyle will not go very far with a community fighting with its back to the wall against forces which have made a mockery of law and government a scandal. In this dire emergency the strict formalities of procedure have been persistently used to entangle and defeat justice. They have defeated their own end and reason for being until the failure of our social defenses has become a crying scandal. Judge Lyle has had the courage and determination to make his authority formidable to the powers that prey upon us. He holds to the intent of law and to the purpose for which it was declared. He refuses to permit the abuse of the safeguards of law for the protection of habitual and ruthless criminality, and the public is grateful.

Furthermore, it may be said that a deprecation of summary measures in dealing with existing conditions of brazen lawlessness would be more impressive if it had been preceded by a vigorous and resourceful effort by the bar to correct the weaknesses of our criminal law and procedure and the long continued and notorious weaknesses of our judicial personnel and administration. The public has a right to look to the bar for alert and militant leadership and will support it when it appears. But the long process of demoralization which has overtaken the administration of criminal justice in Chicago has met no such challenge. Rank weaknesses in the jury system, in judicial proceeding, in the method of selecting judges, in procedural and substantive law, have persisted for years without arousing bar leadership to a campaign of determined and unfaltering reform. It is laymen who have started such a campaign and are leading it today. It is the public that realizes it is confronting not a theory but a condition, a situation steadily growing worse and rapidly approaching a stage in which the law of self-preservation must overrule all other laws. To that tragic crisis we have not yet arrived and shall not arrive if the danger is met now with courage, determination, and the full resources of public authority.

PACIFISM IN NATIONAL OBLIGATIONS.

The controversial case of the Rev. Douglas C. Macintosh of Yale has been taken to the United States Supreme court. The United States District court held that Dr. Macintosh, an applicant for citizenship, disqualified himself for it by exceptions he required to the oath. The Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the lower court and held that an applicant reserving the right of conscience in national defense did not disqualify himself. The solicitor general asks the Supreme court to review the case.

The principles involved have no prospective application in the case of Dr. Macintosh. The chances of his being even permitted to bear arms for the country whose nationality he desires to assume are too remote to be considered. Nevertheless they are principles and they seem to be finding their way into the theories of the nation. A general application of them would permit any one to make a duty to the country a matter of his own decision rather than of obligation.

It is not to be thought that such a principle merely takes into account occasional eccentricities of conscience. It is a declaration that the individual decision is paramount over the requirements of the nation and the decisions of its government in acts needing the support of the people to determine whether they shall mean national welfare or possible national disaster. A conscientious opinion can be any opinion. It can't be assumed that the individual has any particular genius for reaching a right decision when the national decision is contrary. It is assumed that he has a right to his own way of thinking in wartime, and it must be respected by authority. It must give him exemption and the right to withdraw his support from effort essential to the country.

The only way such a principle and a nation could exist together would be found in the possibility that the principle would never be of consequence. Nationality and that freedom of individual action are inconsistent in their essence. The oddity of the matter is that the doctrine is being introduced by pacifists in behalf of aliens who apparently think sufficiently well of American nationality to desire to possess it.

Editorial of the Day

BOSTON AND THE GREAT LAKES COUNTRY.
[Detroit News.]

Lately Massachusetts has gone through the not uncommon experience of one who drops out of sight and comes back to read his own obituaries. But its death, like Sam Clemens', seems to have been exaggerated. In August, with the tercentenary of the founding of Boston well under way, that ancient city reports the arrival in its district of 15 new manufacturing enterprises. This is hardly an evidence of mortality, or even desuetude.

The history of Boston and its changing position among the greater cities of the land is an interesting chapter in the story of the effect of accident on the destiny of communities. Before the age of railroads and interior waterways Boston quite properly had visions of commercial supremacy in America. Its difficulty, though it could not know it then, was the rugged hills which lay between it and the west. While Americans were still a tidewater people its port facilities and commercial skill made Boston master of the coast. But New York, in gaining access to the expanding west, was favored by a natural waterway that reached north and by a flat terrain through which the Erie canal could be laid with comparative ease.

Before Boston could discount this advantage by boring the Hoosac tunnel through the Berkshires, New York had risen to a dominant place as the terminal of routes to the interior, and has never lost that advantage. Yankee art in manufacture and trade, however, has never deserted Massachusetts, and through the last century it has contrived to surmount to a great extent the disadvantages which position and circumstance have laid upon it.

We are hopeful that Boston, particularly, will some time realize the full possibilities of the St. Lawrence waterway as they relate to its prosperity. This highway from the rich and populous midland country, through the lakes and the river, would find in Boston its first large station on its course down the Atlantic coast. The advantage to Boston in the old days of being nearer Europe than any competing port would be repeated in its relation to the St. Lawrence route. To that extent it can overcome the disadvantages of land geography which first cost it its leading place in commerce and with which it has contended for a century.

CHEST COLDS AND VACCINE.

A STUDY of chest colds has convinced Drs. I. C. Walker and June Adkinson that vaccines are of considerable service. In the cure of such colds they found vaccines were about as effective as any available remedy. They were also of service in prevention, provided a series of injections were given. A single vaccine treatment was not of service.

This study was limited to people who had three or more chest colds a season and were therefore assumed to have the cold catching habit. Nearly half of the number were found to be asthmatic. There is some relation between chest cholds and asthma, though just how much of it is cause and how much effect it is not easy to say.

The chest colds they studied did not appear to be related to influenza or even to the common nose colds. That influenza is something other than the common cold of either the chest or the nose appears to be pretty well established. Even if an influenza epidemic is built up out of the common colds that prevail perpetually, it has qualities that are different. Whether it be imported or evolved out of a common disorder, influenza is in a class by itself.

The investigators were not able to discover much relationship between sunlight, or absence of it, and chest colds.

In studying the bacteriology of the chest cold they found a variety of streptococci. Whether this coccus is the principal cause of the chest cold it is difficult to say, but its general presence indicates that it is an outstanding factor. The vaccine is built largely out of this coccus.

The principal value of this paper relates to the nature of the chest cold and will interest especially laboratory investigators and physicians. Its interest to the people who have the colds—and they have a right to be interested—lies in three points:

First, there is a connection of some sort between chest colds and asthma.

Second, vaccines are of some value. They should be made of greater value.

Third, the chest cold is something more than the tail of a nose cold and it is not influenza.

WHAT A VITAMIN IS.

W. E. J. writes: What is a vitamin? Please, will you tell us how a chemist knows when he has a vitamin. Also, how can he say it is an A, B, C, etc.? We cannot find a treatise on the subject. Is a vitamin detected by sight, odor, or what?

REPLY.

Vitamins are detected by what is called biologic methods. There are no chemical methods for either detecting them, differentiating between them, or measuring them. All these processes are carried out by biologic methods.

HARDENING OF ARTERIES.

A. R. R. asks:

1. The cause of hardening of the arteries?

2. Is there any danger in having a woman, who is a consumptive, cook for adults?

REPLY:

1. Heavy drinking, excessive use of condiments and sauces.

2. There is not much danger to the adults. There is more danger to the cook.

CLAIM LATE, BUT VALID.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A girl friend and myself were seriously injured in an automobile accident in August, 1929. The owner of the car carried insurance at the time, but neither he nor the insurance company paid any of our doctor bills, which ran pretty high. They let the case slide. Is is too late to collect some of our expenses? I still suffer from the effects of the accident. M. McN.

It is not too late. Your chances of recovery would depend on the facts as to negligence.

LOCATING THE MAIL BOX.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—[Friend of the People.]—The mail box at the corner of Lincoln avenue and Lill avenue has been placed across the street on Lincoln avenue. This necessitates children and others compelled to mail a letter crossing a street heavy with traffic almost all hours of the day. Lincoln avenue has a street car line, and that with automobiles makes it dangerous. The mail box for years was located on the northwest corner [at least 25 years] and as a resident and property owner I wish to protest before one of my children or others are killed in mailing letters.

T. O. H.

The letter box referred to was installed at the present site in order to conform with traffic rules and regulations by being placed on the right side of traffic for collections.

This box provides ample mailing facilities for the vicinity and is located at the logical point, as the majority of patrons are in business on the west side of Lincoln avenue.

REAL ESTATE DEAL.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Some time ago I paid on two vacant lots by payments as agreed on my contract. Later it became hard to keep up, so fell behind. I got threats of foreclosure. The best I could do was a trade when trying to dispose of it, for a lot with less payments. This real estate company credited me for the equity paid on first contract to the other firm, saying it is legal to transfer equity in that way by not telling first company of new deal and letting them foreclose. The second firm then took the old contract and foreclosure papers—which is said to be handled by their brokers. I was told to just forget the first contract, since I have no more claim or responsibility of same. Can this be done without any trouble or loss to me?

K. D.

The first company is in a position to hold you for the balance of the purchase price unless they have affirmatively released you. It seems probable that the second company is merely canceling a portion of their profit and that the second transaction has no effect on the first.

MUSKET, FOOT AND BASE BALLS.

The wise guys who know everything now tell us that the revolution in Brazil and the near-revolution in Cuba is all due to price-fixing. And as we have some price-fixing arrangements now proceeding in these United States, the question might be propounded as to why we don't grab guns and start marching around and upsetting things generally. The trouble with that here in the U. S. A. is that if anybody wanted to start a revolution he couldn't get a corporal guard of revolutionists together, because like as not it'd be just the time when the baseball season starts. Nobody is going to revolute when he has a chance to go out to the park and cheer his head off for the home team. And if he gets real mad he can throw pop bottles at the umpire. Baseball lasts all summer, and when it's over and we might think of getting Illinois out of the Union and marching across Indiana and Ohio and laying waste Indianapolis and Cleveland, up jumps the football season. No one gives a whoop about rebelling if he's got a chance of seeing two football elevens piling all over each other and some muddy player streaking it down the field for a touchdown. Revolution is a grand outdoor sport only for those nations that can't work their enthusiasm off some other way.

PENITENT.

There stood I at darkness
Naked in Your sight,
Chilled with revelation
Of Your awful might.

Charged with all the sinning
Of a dying year,
Small and weak and lone I cringed
At Your listening ear.

"Is it so?" You thundered.
How could I answer You?
Shamed to suffocation,
I could but whimper, "True."

Then Your outspread fingers
Lifted to declare
Vengeance upon my guilt—
More than I could bear.

"Dear God," I cried, "my rightful
Sentence is to die;
But let me prove my ardor
Somewhere in Your sky."

"Child," you chided gently,
"Your destiny's to live."
"Then, Lord," I humbly pleaded,
"Is Yours not—to forgive?"

And lo, a single sunshaft
Threw a golden beam,
Healing all the anguish
Too bitter for a dream,

And suddenly my terrors
And my fears had gone.
Purity descended
Upon me with the dawn.

We were just tickled pink t'other day when we read that the Department of Agriculture had revealed that Vitamin G, growth promoting factor for animals and man, was found to be from five to eight times more abundant in beef liver than in a beef roast. We remember away back when the butcher used to give us a piece of liver for lagniappe, so we hustled right over to market after we read that piece in the paper. "A nice piece of beef liver," says we lightly to the butcher as he cut us off a chunk, "and thank you very much." "Whadaya mean, 'Thank you very much'?" asked the butcher suspiciously. "Oh," says we lightly, "you're giving liver away like the old time butchers used to do, aren't you?" "Likell," says the butcher, "that piece o' liver'll set you back 65 cents." . . . O, if we could only meet the Department of Agriculture face to face . . . what we would say! Tck! Tck! Tck!

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 11, 1914.

LONDON.—It was admitted in an official statement from the admiralty office that British marines and naval troops were among the defenders of Antwerp when it was captured by the Germans, and that at least 300 of the 8,000 men were lost by wounds or captured. Two thousand others were cut off in retreat and interned in Holland. The Belgian army abandoned the city before the surrender and is intact. It is supposed to have retreated toward Ostend. King Albert is said to be with it. Queen Elizabeth is reported on her way to London.

LONDON.—All day long and until nearly midnight tonight special trains have unloaded in London burdens of horror stricken refugees from shattered Antwerp. There was an endless procession of victims, all with the same story of panic and devastation.

LONDON.—The Rumanian legation officially announced the death at Bucharest of King Charles I., the first king of Rumania. A week ago there were reports that the monarch contemplated abdication. He, a Hohenzollern, was for Germany, while the ministry stood united for the allies.

PHILADELPHIA. — Scoring the only run of the game in the ninth inning with two men out, the Boston Braves won the second world series contest with the Philadelphia Athletics, 1 to 0. The batteries—for Boston, James and Gowdy; for Philadelphia, Plank and Schang.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 11, 1900.

NEW YORK.—The counting of votes to determine provisionally whose names shall be placed on tablets in the hall of fame is on. When officers of the senate of the University of New York had adjourned they had selected the names of four authors, four inventors and two philanthropists. They are Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Washington Irving and Nathaniel Hawthorne, authors; Robert Fulton, Samuel F. B. Morse, Eli Whitney and Elias Howe, inventors; Peter Cooper and George Peabody, philanthropists.

PARIS.—President Kruger of the Transvaal desires to land at Marseilles and go to Holland by way of France. Minister Delcasse has not yet replied to the request. The question is delicate and Delcasse fears complications with England if he allows the Boer ex-president to land in France.

NEW YORK.—Former President Benjamin Harrison in a formal interview gave his reasons for favoring the reelection of President McKinley. He declared that Republican policies have been vindicated and that there would be peril in any change.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 11, 1880.

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — Twenty-four persons were killed and at least thirty-six fearfully scalded here in one of the worst disasters in the history of the Pennsylvania railroad. The engine of one section of a train plowed into a coach of a second section at 28th street. Steam from the locomotive filled the coach, which was jammed with passengers, and most of the deaths and injuries were from scalding.

PARIS.—The Emperor Alexander of Russia, whose morganatic marriage with the Princess Dalgorouki is believed to be an accomplished fact, is not, it seems, much more faithful to his new wife than he was to his old one. He has, it is stated, already formed a fresh liaison with a pretty Polish lady.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Justice Clifford of the United State Supreme court was taken seriously ill while on his way from home in Maine to this city and now lies at the National hotel in a critical condition, apparently stricken with paralysis. He is nearly 80 years old.

CHICAGO.—The communists held a massmeeting at 54 West Lake street with quite a large attendance. There was a strong disposition to revolutionize things generally. Resolutions adopted ask the council to pass ordinances for the "suppression of gambling on the Board of Trade," for the "suppression of all sinecures under the city government," for electing members of the board of education by popular vote bienally.

WOMEN AS JURORS.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—It is to be hoped that the proposal to grant to women the right to serve on juries will be defeated at the November election.

It is well for those who favor it to contemplate the prospect of being locked up several days or a week on a murder case; of listening, for instance, to full discussion of venereal diseases by specialists as a basis of determining the sanity of a defendant and considering such testimony in the jury room by men and women; in civil cases of importance, factory girls with little education and business judgment passing intelligently on involved litigation, influenced by the hurt look in the defendant's eyes and his counsel's throbbing appeal.

Woman suffrage failed to purify our politics and mixed juries will not improve the meting out of justice.

School teachers would doubtless be exempt. Property owners would seek to evade service. Yet these, with club women and welfare workers and similar groups, are the ones needed. Most of those serving, however, would be the poor, who need the money, but who are unsuited by lack of education, ideals and experience.

An expression by the Bar association would carry weight. What do California jurists say about it? Are we to be chivalrous or sensible? Give us some interviews for guidance.

SAVING THE CONSTITUTION.

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 29.—The voters of Illinois should not forget that Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, in her assumption that the Bill of Rights is endangered by Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill's candidacy, and her statement that "We are going to get back to the constitution and stay there," ignores the fact that the eighteenth amendment is just as much a part of the constitution as is the Bill of Rights. In upholding the eighteenth amendment Mrs. O'Neill is "staying" by the constitution that much more than is Mrs. McCormick, since none of the first ten amendments, often called the Bill of Rights, is in any degree menaced by Mrs. O'Neill's attitude, and the eighteenth amendment is menaced by Mrs. McCormick's attitude.

LUCY S. STEWART.

AUTUMN FISHERMEN.

Lampson, Wis., Sept. 26.—The author of the editorial, "Autumn Touring in Wisconsin," must have been in northern Wisconsin in the fall of the year or he could not describe it so perfectly. It isn't only that the lakes and woods seem more beautiful in the fall and the roads and resorts are not crowded, but the big fish actually bite better and there are more of them caught by what few fishermen come up at this time of the year than during the hot months of the summer.

SECRET SIX.

Bedford, Va., Sept. 24.—If the "Secret Six" in their kindergarten methods should ever discover that there was no Santa Claus [or anything else], would they turn this information over to the prosecutor's office so that it could be broadcast over the world to destroy the faith of thousands of other innocent children?

What Chicago wants is more conviction and less evidence and swan songs.

H. E. FORD.

AFRICA SPEAKS.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—For the benefit of a lady who wrote about "Africa Speaks" in the issue of Oct. 7, I offer this information sent to me by the Smithsonian institution in answer to a letter I wrote me on the subject of who was the [illegible] camera man and asking something about the "killing," etc.

The reply states that there were four camera men on that expedition, although no one seems to be given credit on the film. Also, the man who was really killed, but it was an accident that one of the camera men turned his camera on the native just then and caught it. They afterwards reenacted the scene to lead up to that killing.

In no criticism have I seen any assure of the men who ordered the natives to go for the rifles when they were to have had revolvers in their hands all the while and must have known that the native would attract the attention of the lions, which was certain after. Hunters are usually not careless with guns in Africa, especially when in pursuit of lions. They are too dangerous. It is a pity that the impression has been made that the picture is faked, for it is the most wonderful collection of pictures I've ever seen.

CHALLENGE.

Highland Park, Ill., Oct. 8.—[To the issue the other day the writer stated that the replies received and your comment relative to these replies from the representatives as to what stand they would take should the majority vote in favor of the repeal of all laws pertaining to the control of liquor. If [illegible] one of these representatives my vote would be as follows:

"If the majority vote on this [illegible] endum for the repeal of laws pertaining to liquor traffic, I would vote with them providing The Tribune company will rent me space on the ground floor of the 23d floor of The Tribune building for the purpose of dispensing liquor in whatever manner liquor may be distributed to the public upon the repeal of our present laws.

"The dispensary shop on the ground floor would be of easy access to all pressmen and the public transacting business in your building. The only [illegible] your elevator operators and those tenants above the 23d floor, including, of course, visitors to The Tribune [illegible]. However, the real purpose of establishing such liquor dispensary shops would be for the convenience to your subscribers in obtaining ready liquor."

HARRY I. THELE.

SECRECY.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—In a Paramount news reel which I saw last evening [illegible] and detailed explanation of the method of laying a smoke screen for the protection of Manhattan island we observed. If the smoke screen was invented purposely for protection of New York, why advertise the method in what is being done? It is just possible that other more secretive and unfriendly powers will greatly appreciate knowing the United States' method of defense.

Then, too, it seems a very simple and innocent procedure to permit [illegible] dirigible or airship to fly over the whole United States, following the important air lines and thoroughly surveying the greatest metropolises and their strategic means of defense in case of war.

PLEASED

MARY McCORMIC.

News that Pola Negri had started divorce proceedings against Prince Serge Mdivani in Paris was received by Mary McCormic, Civic opera singer, as she arrived in Chicago from Europe yesterday. She left the station beaming, frankly elated at the development.

Miss McCormic's name had been mentioned frequently with that of the prince before Pola withdrew her first divorce suit last November. The singer revealed that she had met him five years ago in the Oklahoma oil fields and that the acquaintance had been renewed three years later on an ocean voyage.

"Do I still love him? Maybe. He took me from Paris to Cherbourg when I left Europe seven days ago," she said.

Miss Negri appeared personally yesterday before the president of the Seine tribunal in Paris to file her suit. The reconciliation meeting at which, under French law, the justice attempts to reunite estranged couples, will be held in about two weeks. Her retirement from pictures came shortly after the death of Rudolph Valentino. She said at the time: "My love for him was the greatest in my life."

CUNEO FAILS IN PLEA TO REOPEN BUILDING CASE

An attempt by John F. Cuneo, millionaire printer, to renew his fight for permission to erect a sixty story building at the northeast corner of Randolph street and Michigan avenue failed yesterday when the Illinois Supreme court denied a rehearing sought by him in the consolidated case brought by the Michigan Lake Building corporation, the John Crerar library and H. C. Edmonds.

Cuneo secured a permit from Building Commissioner Paschen on July 8, 1929, to construct the building and an appeal by the objectors, who claimed that their property would be damaged, to the zoning board of appeals failed. A further appeal to the Circuit court brought a reversal of the zoning board's decision, revocation of Cuneo's permit and a decision that the amendment under which Cuneo obtained his permit was illegal. This judgment was affirmed by the Supreme court at the April term this year.

Under the amendment declared illegal Cuneo would have been permitted to construct a building rising 440 feet at the street line, instead of 264 feet, without a setback.

Detroit Municipal Agency Locates Jobs for 1,114

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 10.—(AP)—During its first week, which ended yesterday, the municipal employment agency founded by Mayor Frank Murphy found jobs for 1,114 men and women, James N. Duncan, manager of the agency, announced today. Registration of the unemployed was resumed today after a lapse of several days. A total of about 81,000 have signed up, but about 100 applicants for registration have been applying daily.

FLAYS LEADERS FOR FAILURE TO PREVENT SLUMP

Senator Wagner Speaks at Labor Convention.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—The American people "cannot live by optimism alone," declared Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York today before the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, in a speech bristling with criticism of business and governmental leaders, to whom he ascribed responsibility for unemployment because of their failure in time of prosperity to prepare for periods of depression.

In contrast with the optimistic address yesterday of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, the speech of Senator Wagner emphasized steps that he said the federal government and the states might have taken to relieve unemployment by timing the introduction of large building projects so as to provide a flow of wages when other sources were dry.

"But instead we stubbornly refuse to put any such plan into systematic and efficient operation," he added.

Criticizes Public Men.

Without mentioning by name President Hoover and Secretary Davis, who condemned the "dole" in addresses to the delegates this week, the New York senator criticized "public men who have with much self-satisfaction repeated their own praises for having fended off the dole from the American people."

"Have we in fact kept the dole from America?" he asked. "Is not the dole in use today in every industrial community in the country? What else can we call the disbursements for unemployment relief by every charitable organization and even by many municipalities?"

"When the American workman reads the official assurances that our fundamental national assets are undiminished, knowing that he lives in a land of plenty which he had in the past shared in the making, these facts only aggravate the rancor in his heart that he must nevertheless go without work and wages.

"Optimism" Not Enough.

"The American people will not submissively accept these recurrent and lengthening periods of joblessness. They have learned they cannot live by optimism alone. They accept as true the presidential declaration that the economic fundamentals of the country are unimpaired, but that only serves to emphasize the mystery of their own misfortune.

"It seems to me that one of the reasons the unemployment problem has gone so long unsolved is that men in public life and in positions of authority have been unwilling to take the risk of preventive action."

BROKER'S SUICIDE LAID TO WORRY OVER HIS WIFE

Ferdinand J. Sohm, secretary of Gorrell & Co., investment securities house at 209 South La Salle street, shot and killed himself early yesterday at Briar place and Sheridan road. He is thought by friends to have become deranged from overwork and worry about the ill health of his wife, Selma, with whom he lived at the Edgewater Beach hotel. He was 47 years old.

When police found the body in his automobile, he had been dead several hours. A revolver lay near his hand on the floor of the car. He had been missing since departing for work Thursday morning.

"He was a devoted associate," said Warren Gorrell, president of the firm which Sohm had been connected with for 15 years, "and one of the finest men I have ever known. I can explain his act only on the basis of despondency from overwork and worry about Mrs. Sohm's health."

INSTALLMENT XLVIII.

THE CONSTABLE CALLS.

"Let us, dear Mr. Clement," Miss Marple said, "just go over it again. ... Protheroe comes to the window and she thinks the room is empty—she ... have thought so, because otherwise she would never have gone down to ... studio to meet Mr. Redding. It wouldn't have been safe. The room must ... been absolutely silent if she thought it was empty. And that leaves us ... alternatives, doesn't it?"

"You mean—— "

"Well, the first alternative would be that Col. Protheroe was dead already ... I don't think that's the most likely one. To begin with he'd only been ... about five minutes and she or I would have heard the shot, and secondly ... difficulty remains about his being at the writing table. The second ... is, of course, that he was sitting at the writing table writing a ... but in that case it must have been a different note altogether. It can't ... to say he couldn't wait. And the third—— "

"Yes?" I said.

"Well, the third is, of course, that Mrs. Protheroe was right and that the ... was actually empty."

"You mean that, after he had been shown in, he went out again and ... back later?"

"Yes."

"But why should he have done that?"

Miss Marple spread out her hands in a little gesture of bewilderment.

"That would mean looking at the case from an entirely different angle," ... said.

"One so often has to do that—about everything. Don't you think so?"

I did not reply. I was going over carefully in my mind the three alterna... that Miss Marple had suggested.

With a slight sigh, the old lady rose to her feet.

"I must be getting back. I am very glad to have had this little chat—... we haven't got very far, have we?"

"To tell you the truth," I said, as I fetched her shawl, "the whole thing ... to me a bewildering maze."

"O, I wouldn't say that. I think, on the whole, one theory fits nearly

... That is, if you admit one coincidence—and I think one coinci... is allowable. More than one, of course, is unlikely."

"Do you really think that? About the theory, I mean," I asked, looking ...

"I admit that there is one flaw in my theory—one fact that I can't get ... O, if only that note had been something quite different—— "

She sighed and shook her head. She moved towards the window and ... mindedly reached up her hand and felt the rather depressed looking ... that stood in a stand.

"You know, dear Mr. Clement, this should be watered oftener. Poor ... it needs it badly. Your maid should water it every day. I suppose it ... who attends to it?"

"As much," I said, "as she attends to anything."

"A little raw at present," suggested Miss Marple.

"Yes," I said. "And Griselda steadily refuses to attempt to cook her. ... is that only a thoroughly undesirable maid will remain with us. ... Mary herself gave us notice the other day."

"Indeed. I always imagined she was very fond of you both."

"I haven't noticed it," I said. "But as a matter of fact, it was Lettice ... who upset her. Mary came back from the inquest in rather a ... mental state and found Lettice here and—well, they had words."

"O," said Miss Marple. She was just about to step through the window ... stopped suddenly, and a bewildering series of changes passed over ...

"I beg your pardon."

She turned a worried face upon me.

"Nothing. An idea that has just occurred to me. I must go home and ... things out thoroughly. Do you know, I believe I have been extremely ... almost incredibly so."

"I find that hard to believe," I said gallantly.

I escorted her through the window and across the lawn.

"Can you tell me what it is that has occurred to you so suddenly?" I ...

"I would rather not—just at present. You see, there is still a possibility ... I may be mistaken. But I do not think so. Here we are at my garden ... Thank you so much. Please do not come any farther."

"Is the note still a stumbling block?" I asked as she passed through the ... and latched it behind her.

She looked at me abstractedly.

"The note? O, of course that wasn't the real note. I never thought it ... last night, Mr. Clement."

She went rapidly up the path to the house, leaving me staring after her. ... didn't know what to think.

Griselda and Dennis had not yet returned. I realized that the most ... thing would have been for me to go up to the house with Miss Marple ... fetch them home. I was just standing in the hall, wondering whether I would not even now ... and join them, when the door bell rang.

I turned and saw there was a letter in the box and presuming ... it was the cause of the ring, I took it out.

As I did so, however, the bell rang again, and I shoved the letter hastily ... my pocket and opened the front door.

"Hullo, Col. Melchett.

"Hullo, Clement. I'm on my way home from town in the car. Thought ... I'd look in and see if you could give me a drink."

"Delighted," I said. "Come into the study."

He pulled off the leather coat that he was wearing and followed me into ... I fetched the whisky and soda and two glasses. Melchett was ... in front of the fireplace, legs wide apart, stroking his closely clipped ...

"I've a bit of news for you, Clement. Most astounding thing you've ever ... But let that go for the minute. How are things going down here? ... old ladies hot on the scent?"

"They're not doing so badly," I said. "One of them, at all events, thinks ... there."

"Our friend, Miss Marple, eh?"

"Our friend, Miss Marple."

"Women like that always think they know everything," said Col. Melchett. ... probably unnecessary interference on my part asking," I said. "But ... somebody has questioned the fish boy. I mean, if the murderer left ... front door, there's a chance the boy may have seen him."

"That's exactly what I mentioned him right enough," said Melchett. "But the boy says ... didn't meet anybody. Hardly likely he would. The murderer wouldn't be ... observation. "No?" I said. "I suppose it would be."

"On the other hand," went on Melchett. "If by any chance that rascal ... did the job, and young Fred Jackson saw him about the place, I doubt ... whether he'd let on. Archer is a cousin of his."

Good morning!

Enslaved as producers are to the passion for renaming screen adaptation of books and plays, how in the world did the makers of this movie pass up the chance to call it "The Saint of the Saloon?" Now there's a grand, alliterative appelation, positively bursting with box office appeal! As it DOES describe the heroine—I suppose it's out, for one of the eccentricities of the retitling passion is the dogged notion that never, never shall a title have any bearing on the film it captions. Well, anyhow, I'll sell my entry for half price, should the owners want it.

"Girl of the Golden West" has been screened from the old stage play which Blanche Bates played with such success, giving, I imagine, an interpretation that was somewhat different from Ann Harding's seraphic rendition of Minnie, owner of the Polka saloon, pal, confident, banker, critic, mother, sister and teacher of the rough miners who patronize her place and greatly desired by Jack Rance, gambler, who would her wed despite the fact that he has a wife somewhere else.

Minnie is adamant to all sentimental advances, until the handsome bandit with a price on his head and calling himself for utilitarian purposes, Dick Johnson, comes to rob the Polka and remains to worship its mistress.

Doings attendent on the romance between the saint and the sinner from the body of the picture's action.

As screened, "Girl of the Golden West" manages to be fairly exciting, despite its Godey's Lady Book flavor. James Rennie makes a noble and picturesque bandit. Harry Bannister, husband of Miss Harding, draws Rance strongly and with a sympathetic touch. Minor rôles are pleasingly handled.

As for Miss Harding's Minnie—she looks like an angel, exhorts like an evangelist, loves like a lady, enunciates like Mis Jones of Tompkins' Corners and is brave like a lion. She gives a very sincere performance and, as always, is almost too beautiful to be true.

Technically the picture is satisfactory and, I've been told, has been pretty true to the play.

[If it hasn't, I'll be hearing from you, Old Timers!]

Well, if his employers want to waste that grand clown, Joe Brown, on a tiresome farce-comedy-with-music such as "Top Speed." I guess it is most certainly their business.

The film's a bore.
I'll say no more.

BUT, don't forget to remember that Hack Wilson and Gabby Hartnett are at the Oriental this week!

See you tomorrow.

Chicagoan Made Secretry of Hotel Men's Association

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Re-election of Thomas D. Green of New York as president and selection of Boston as the 1931 meeting place completed business of the convention of the American Hotel association here today. Frank W. Baring of Chicago was elected secretary.

State Universities Lauded by President of Illinois Institution

Dr. Harry W. Chase, president of the University of Illinois, last night addressed 250 members of the Commercial Club of Chicago and the Industrial club of Chicago at a dinner at the Blackstone hotel. His subject was "The Significance of a State University."

"State universities," Dr. Chase said, "have a history, a philosophy, and a mission. They are now taking the leading part in the education of America's youth. One million students are now in the 45 or 46 state institutions, or one student out of five. One bachelor's degree out of four and one advanced degree out of three are conferred by state universities."

Dr. Chase detailed the history of state schools, emphasizing that the successful university is founded on the doctrine of state control but not state interference. "Each university," he said, "must have the freedom to teach and to inquire into truths. The state school is the heritage of the past and is the best guarantee and investment of the state of today to the state of tomorrow. It is of the people and for the people."

Funeral services for Peter Klein, prominent Aurora banker and former publisher, will be held at his home in Aurora at 2:30 o'clock Monday, instead of today, as mentioned in THE TRIBUNE yesterday. Mr. Klein died Thursday at the age of 81.

Speaker Shanahan did not attend a Thompson-Prosperity banquet at the Hotel Sherman Thursday night at which THE TRIBUNE yesterday erroneously listed him as one of the speakers. The information that he spoke there was given to a reporter by one of the banqueters.

Yesterday's TRIBUNE gave the address of the Michigan Boulevard Safe Deposit company as the Wrigley building. The company is located at 30-32 North Michigan avenue.

Bulgars' King in Italy for Royal Wedding

Arrives Incognito; Two Church Ceremonies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Oct. 10.—King Boris is in Italy incognito, it was reported today from reliable sources. So preparations are being made at the royal villa at San Rossore, near Pisa, for the approaching marriage of the Princess Giovanna and the Bulgarian king.

The Italian royal family is assembled at the favorite fishing and hunting spot of King Victor Emmanuel, on the beautiful Tyrrhenian shore between Pisa and Leghorn. There, according to today's reports, the first part of the marriage ceremony will take place with the Roman Catholic rites, Peter Cardinal Maffi, archbishop of Pisa, officiating.

Cardinal Maffi was received at San Rossore by King Victor Emmanuel yesterday and the details of the approaching ceremony were arranged.

Following the Roman Catholic marriage ceremony in Italy, the royal couple would go to Sofia, where the Greek Orthodox church marriage will be performed.

From some sources it is also reported that the marriage ceremony at Sofia will be followed by the solemn coronation of King Boris and his queen.

It is understood that all details relative to the religious ceremonies were carefully gone over by Pope Pius XI, himself, who received this morning immediately after his arrival from Bulgaria, Msgr. Ronealli, apostolic visitor in that country.

Plans Ultra-Violet Rays with Lighting for Ordinary Homes

Richmond, Va., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Invention of an experimental electric light of a new type to produce ultra-violet rays from an ordinary lighting fixture was reported to the annual convention of the Illuminating Engineering society here today.

The lamp is a double bulb, resembling exactly a pair of ordinary size lamps screwed into a two way socket, and it may be used wherever such a socket will fit. It is not to be put on the market for at least two years.

"This lamp," said Dr. J. W. Marden, research engineer of the Westinghouse Lamp company, "is designed to send out small quantities of healthful ultra-violet rays. It produces a very mild sunburn or redness of the skin on one's arm held about five inches from the lamp for 15 or 20 minutes.

"Since these lamps probably will be inserted in our regular fixtures and used at greater distances, they can be left burning all day or all evening without imparting anything more than a mild tan. We actually can get sunlight in our parlors now.

"At a distance of three feet fifteen hours or more exposure would be necessary to produce sunburn.

"Recent developments in knowledge of effects of ultra-violet rays on health, such as the work of Maughan and Smiley of Cornell university, who obtained a reduction in colds among cold susceptible students by a few minutes' artificial ultra-violet each week, have created widespread interest."

One of the paired bulbs emits the ultra-violet and the other, while giving ordinary light, serves as resistance to cut down the voltage of its twin. Thus the ultra-violet ray actually comes from a lower voltage than that of an ordinary house current.

Von Stroheims Return from Europe; Vienna Is Called Dead City

Accompanied by his wife and young son, Eric von Stroheim, motion picture director, passed through Chicago yesterday en route to his home and work in Hollywood, following a sojourn of three months in Europe.

Europe, observed Von Stroheim to interviews at the Union station, was like a once beautiful woman now dead. Vienna, particularly, he said, was a dying city. Vienna was Von Stroheim's home and his visit was his first in eight years. The Von Stroheim's were granted an audience with Pope Pius XI., who decorated the son, Joseph, 8 years old, with the Order of St. Theresa.

Other well known Hollywood persons who stopped in this city yesterday were Charles Mack, blackface comedian, and Ruth Roland, a screen star of other years. They were en route to New York.

WOMEN ARE BUSY PLANNING THE WINTER SHELTER FOR JOBLESS

"We are not sentimental sob sisters, intent on making paupers. We are trying to help self-respecting unemployed men in an unemotional and businesslike way. We want it understood that we are not encouraging professional panhandlers."

Thus Mrs. Dale Bost of the Lake Shore Drive hotel defined the position of the Tower Town Food and Shelter Fund, Inc., a group of near north side women who met yesterday in the Seneca hotel to complete plans for caring for unemployed men this winter in the abandoned county jail and Criminal Courts building at Austin avenue and Dearborn street.

The organization early next week will put on sale 100,000 "Tower Town tokens." They will sell for 25 cents each. They will be sold to persons who wish to help unemployed men by giving them the tickets, which may be exchanged for food and shelter in the old Criminal Courts building. The Tower Town women, however, will not open the building for general use until after Nov. 15. Therefore they ask that persons who purchase the tickets next week will keep them until that time.

The following officers were elected yesterday: Mrs. T. D. Collins and Mrs. Richard C. Folsom, co-chairmen; Mrs. Dale Bost, vice chairman, and Mrs. Paul Meyers, secretary, in charge of food donations. Mrs. Robert W. Mellin will be in charge of private subscriptions. Mrs. Edward R. Fifield and Mrs. Margaret Willey will be in charge of the sale of tokens.

"I just must tell you, girls, that we have $90 and a truck already," Mrs. Collins reported to the meeting. "The truck is a second hand one and it runs. That's our only overhead—the salary of a truck driver. We couldn't find any truck drivers out of jobs or we wouldn't have that. All the other work done for the Tower Town fund is volunteer work."

The Criminal Courts building is being scrubbed from top to bottom by 100 to 200 men. They are doing the work for two meals a day and a place to sleep, Mrs. Folsom reported. The city welfare department has contributed 200 cots and 350 blankets from the municipal lodging house, which has been discontinued. Mrs. Anna Smith, commissioner of public welfare, will direct the shelter.

"Our men are fine men, the most of them," Mrs. Collins said. "More than half are ex-service men and two are university graduates. We're registering them and their occupations and will coöperate with free employment bureaus in getting them jobs."

The following hotels now are supplying food for the men in the shelter house, the truck being used to collect the food:

Seneca, Belmont, 900 North Michigan, Palmolive Building restaurant, Lake Shore Drive, Knickerbocker, Pearson, Auditorium, Congress, Morrison, Palmer House and Sherman House, and the Chicago Women's Athletic club, Illinois Women's Athletic club, the Tavern club, and Standard club.

Opera Singers Boost for Chicago's Own Opera Week

Efforts to make civic opera week, Oct. 12 to 18, the greatest in the history of Chicago opera were the object of a meeting last night in the Palmer house. The Associated Civic Opera clubs of metropolitan Chicago met to hear plans of Miss Dema Harshbarger, who introduced Miss Mary McCormic, soprano, and Charles Marshall, tenor, of the opera company.

Two boys and two girls, the youngest 4 years old and the oldest 6 years, presented a pantomime of Carmen.

William Tyroler, assistant conductor of the Chicago Civic Opera company, sang two numbers to which he played his own accompaniment.

Doctor Views Men's Clothing as Health Peril

Advises Sacklike Garb for Women, Too.

A loose, flowing garment, "with no obstruction at the waist or neck," was suggested yesterday as the ideal universal clothing to be worn by men and women, to replace the present fashions.

The suggestion was made by Dr. Albert Bachem, professor of biophysics at the University of Illinois College of Medicine. He was guest speaker at the afternoon session of the American Physical Therapy association's annual convention in the Hotel Sherman.

"The errors in our mode of clothing interfere with the normal temperature of the skin and the evaporation of perspiration, causing abnormal conditions which often result in diseases," he said. His paper was titled "Environment, Health and Disease."

"There are two ways I would suggest to improve our clothing. Either it could be made more porous, and consist of possibly one layer so as to permit evaporation and irradiation radially, or it could be worn very loosely, in order to allow tangential circulation from the feet to the head.

"Men's dress, as is, is the worst that could be designed."

In variation of temperature and humidity, our climate is second only to Siberia, Dr. Bachem said.

"Even exposure to the wind and a strong fluctuation between heat and cold is not so harmful. In the course of racial development this fluctuation in temperatures may mean the creation of vigorous races, like those in north Europe and North America.

"Excessive chilling is to be avoided by clothes and heating rooms. There is no doubt that in our civilization, clothing is too thick and rooms are overheated."

Men's winter clothing, he continued, creates a temperature of 88 degrees Fahrenheit, and a relative humidity, under the clothing, of 70 per cent. In summer the figures run higher. Women's clothing is much more reasonable, he said.

"We men, under our garments, are practically always living in a tropical climate," he said. "In summer this becomes entirely unbearable and many prostrations and fatalities occur during heat waves.

"Even the greatest extremes of heat and humidity could be endured outdoors with loose, light, and transparent suits, and indoors with a part of the body exposed to an air current from a fan.

"It is surprising how much we know scientifically and how little do we put our knowledge into practice in regard to environment," he said. "It is amazing to see how every invention has brought with it certain harmful changes in the environment. For instance, the discovery of fire meant that by cooking our food we lost many valuable vitamines, damaging the teeth and decreasing peristalsis.

"The invention of clothing cut off light and air circulation, both of which are permitted by the fur and plumage of animals. Glass windows cut off ultra-violet rays, and closed automobiles did the same for us out of doors.

"Automobiles also did away with walking, the most valuable form of exercise, and labor saving devices have done away with women's exercise in the house. The only task remaining for her to do by hand is to scrub the bathtub. The business man has disposed of all mechanical exercise and replaced it by mental stimulation as provided by his business, sport news and the stock market."

We are living in what Dr. Bachem described as "the dirtiest age in the history of civilization," our air filled with dust, dirt, smoke and toxic gases. He predicted a period of cleanliness when the shortage of coal and the development of water power, the general electrification of everything, with the separation of industrial and residential communities, we would abhor the atrocities we permit today.

Speaking of the noise we live in, however, which "affects the whole mental condition of men," he said that "the peak of this barbarism" has not yet been reached."

The health department of Chicago, however, he added, "declines to listen to complaints of noise and suggests that one consult a lawyer."

Navy Experts Ready to See Sun's Eclipse

NIUAFOU ISLAND, South Pacific, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Having traveled several thousands miles and labored more than two months setting up apparatus on "Tin Can Island," United States naval and other scientists are ready to observe the 93 second total eclipse of the sun here Oct 21.

Under direction of Commander C. H. J. Keppler the 65 foot camera tower was completed and the 2,500 pound Einstein camera mounted on concrete pillars. A dozen other pieces of apparatus were set up by the eight scientists.

In addition to the naval scientists, the eclipse will be observed by Prof. S. A. Mitchell of Virginia university, his assistant, H. P. Fales and Dr. T. A. Jaggar, noted volcanologist of Hawaii.

The expedition is located in the village of Angaha, Niuafou island, in the Tongo group.

A field radio set keeps the expedition in communication with Tutuila, and press news and time signals are received several times each day from San Francisco and Washington.

Calls the Methodist World Service Fund Million Below Needs

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—The stock market crash and the business depression, said Dr. Ralph A. Ward of Chicago tonight before the Methodist women of the United States jubilee congress of the Home Missionary society, have greatly affected the church's world service program. The church business year closing Oct. 1, 929, showed $914,000 below the requirements of the program and that lack has been growing weekly. To date $450,000 has been added to that sum, so it now is $1,360,000

"At 11 a. m. each day in the remaining days in October," he said, "a bell will sound in our world service offices in Chicago. Typewriters will stop absolutely, telephones will be disconnected, all conversation will cease for five minutes. Until the bell sounds again there will be absolute quiet for the privilege of prayer and meditation."

Fears Poison Gassing of Civilians During the Next Great War

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Oct. 10.—There is almost no hope of protecting civilian populations from poison gas in the next war. That was the opinion expressed today at the 14th international Red Cross conference here.

It will be impossible to prevent the manufacture of poison gas since any chemical plant may be transformed into a gas factory in case of war, Prof. Mayer of Paris said. Even the most rigorous measures to protect civilians will be ineffective, he declared.

The conference urged again the ratification of the Geneva protocol prohibiting poison gas for war use and expressed the hope that the governments would study the aerial defense of large cities for the protection of civilians.

Gives Party in Old Home of Geo. R. Thornes

BY THALIA

Sentiment apparently means as much as sociability to the former Mrs. Donnelley, as the party she and her husband, C. Pardee Erdman, gave in Lake Forest last night was thought with both qualities. Besides it was an innovation in social affairs. The Erdmans have come on from the west to dismantle and close the home Mrs. Erdman inherited from her grandmother, the late Mrs. George R. Thorne. In it she and her father, the late Reuben H. Donnelley dwelt before her marriage.

At a final gesture before the preparations for abandoning the residence are begun, they invited a group of friends to a dinner dance, indicating in the invitations that the affair was to be a "house cooling." As the Erdmans have a residence in Pasadena, Cal., and spend their summers at their dairy ranch at Big Horn, Wyo., they are putting the Lake Forest place up for sale. They brought their baby, Laura Thorne Erdman [Mrs. Erdman's mother was Laura Thorne Donnelley] with them to be seen for the first time by various members of the large Donnelley clan and are to be here for about 10 days.

Mr. and Mrs. James Van Rensselaer Stewart, who now reside in Nice, France, announce the marriage on Oct. 9 of their daughter, Beatrice Stewart MacClintock, to George Robb Collins, son of former Judge and Mrs. Lorin C. Collins of Chicago. Mrs. Collins is a niece of Mrs. Silas H. Strawn.

The Vicomte and Vicomtess de Sibour [Beatrice Selfridge] have returned from another of their airplane hops, according to our London correspondent. On this trip they flew over Abyssinia, a bold procedure, as the king has made a law that no planes are to traverse his country. They got a special permit, it seems, on condition that they offer the plane to the king for purchase. This they agreed to do, and the vicomtess is reported to have said, "It turned out happily for every one, because the king had very exaggerated ideas about the amount he should give for a light aeroplane." They made the trip back to the railway by motor lorry.

Mrs. Hal Crompton Bangs of 1336 North State parkway has returned from California. There she has been during the summer with her son, H. Crompton Bangs Jr., who is a student at Leland Stanford university.

They spent much of their time in England with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William de B. Whyte, and with the latter and their two daughters were on the Belgian coast for several weeks. Amicie, the Whytes' oldest daughter, is attending boarding school at Montreux, Switzerland, this winter.

At a meeting held yesterday by the trustees of the Orchestral association, supporting the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Mr. Chalkley J. Hambleton was elected secretary to succeed Philo A. Otis, who died Sept. 23. Mr. Hambleton has been a member of the association for many years.

Cotton Fabric, Ermine in the Same Gown at Maine Fashion Show

Poland Springs, Me., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Formal cotton gowns of black velveteen and white ermine featured the fashion promenade of the Cotton Textile institute at the opening of the convention of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers here tonight.

Other gowns included an afternoon dress in "sheer chambray," a new creation in a maize tone, with eyelet embroidery; cotton tweed in a colorful plaid design in a youthful jumper frock; a sports suit in tweed printed corduroy in rich shades of brown highlighted with bud green. This last featured the collarless neckline with separate scarf. Rounded decolletage and drop shoulder were outstanding points in the formal gowns.

The spring and summer fashions of 1931 were forecast in "Texas" overalls of printed broadcloth and a hostess pajama costume in wine tone velveteen and lemon yellow, with a tricky bolero jacket which repeats the circular lines of the trouser skirt.

Susan L. Bates, trade counselor of the institute, said:

"It is the novelty weaves which have aroused the interest of the feminine world. The coming year shows every indication of being a great season for novelties."

Lauds Yankee Efforts to Reduce Blindness; Urges World Follow

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Lewis H. Carris of New York, managing director of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, in an address today told that international association the world's blind population number between 3,000,000 and 6,000,000, but probably could be reduced to half that within a generation by scientific effort.

Carris urged creation of national societies similar to that in America, in all countries throughout the world. He outlined the work done in the United States. There, he said, thousands of babies had been spared a lifetime of blindness through state laws adopted in recent years.

He also discussed the industrial side of causes of blindness, saying in the United States approximately 15 per cent of the blind are so because of industrial accidents.

Slipping Sly Glance in Male Direction Bears Good Fruit

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I gave up everthing for him," the girl writes. "I gave up all of my friends. I wouldn't look at any other man and he knew it. Etc., etc.

The story of a girl left in the lurch after three years of steady courtship. Also, the story of a girl who never knew that the one way to surfeit a man is to give up everything for him. To give up all of her friends and never to slip a sly look in male direction so that she would still seem desirable.

The worst mistake a girl can make is to attempt to isolate herself and the man from all other social contact. Isn't a good deal of the infatuation that a man has for a girl built around her popularity with others and the glamour of being desirable in the eyes of other men? Not that an engaged girl is expected to carry on flirtations that might prove dangerous to the romance in hand—but she cannot drop out of the popularity picture entirely without serious detriment to herself.

"By giving no reason for vigilance, there is every reason for indifference," as the epigram says.

One would have to be involved in unusually clever work of a character that would bear interesting reporting to be entertaining for three long years. Even then, a change of theme would be welcome and here is where the need of keeping up with old friends comes in.

After marriage one could manage the isolation better were children to enter on the scene and the interest in home building were shared equally. But in marriage, discarding all friends is never advocated. On the contrary, it is reckoned the quick and easy system of two people becoming terribly bored with each other.

Another objection to turning the back on old friends and interests is the need of diversion to prevent one human being from becoming too firmly attached to another human being. The strain of this is often seen in the relations betwen a mother and daughter, where the mother eliminates her old friends and former social activities. The very burden of such social activities. The very burden of strained relationship is a deadly strain on affections.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

USING CHEAP HELP.

Many jobs about the yard and garden beckon attention during these Indian summer days. Raking and burning leaves, trimming of trees and hedges, transplanting of perennials, top dressing of lawns, mulching of the gardens, spading of borders, and other little specialties that take time should be done now.

Of special importance are these tasks this fall, when so many workmen with mouths to feed and a dismal winter ahead, are out of work in their regular pursuits. These people are asking for an opportunity to work, and are willing to price their services so low that hundreds of them should find work about Chicagoland homes.

Families where the man is busy all day, and the housewife finds such work calling for physical strength, can well afford to avail themselves of this opportunity to employ worthy labor. Those who wish to get in touch with such unemployed may call upon local charity organizations, who are in position to recommend from an intimate knowledge of needy families.

Many who have planned repairs or improvements about the home or yard, such as fences, sidewalks, porch and step repairs, lattices, painting, rock gardens, mending and changing windows and the like, may wisely have this work done now instead of next spring. Almost all lumber yards have a list of reliable carpenters who can quote prices on these intended projects, and who have in many cases been without work for weeks or months.

There's a Reason for This Little, Self-Made Hero

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Short reading reference for the expectant mother will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A letter and answer fill the column today.

"My dear Mrs. Bevans: I have a Sunday school class of about twelve children. They are all 7 years of age or under. A little problem has arisen on which I would appreciate your advice.

"One 7 year old boy in particular seem to derive great pleasure in telling exaggerated stories. He likes especially to imagine stories which show his heroism. His folks have told me they have difficulty with him at home and that they have tried so hard to break him of the habit.

"Will he outgrow it, or is there anything one could do or say when he tells these things, which would tend to correct this habit?"

The answer:

The little 7 year old you write me about may tell these stories of heroism about himself for several reasons. One of them may be that something has frightened him or that he is timid. He would enjoy being just the opposite, so realizes his wish in a story.

Another reason may be that he is not made enough of at home—that his parents may not show their love and pride in him, make much of him and take him into their lives enough. So he fells small in their estimation, of little account at home. Therefore, without deliberation, but because he craves to be more important, he imagines himself a young hero or tries to make them think he is one. Every child needs the love and admiration of his parents.

I should say this little boy needs praise, affection and interest from his father and mother. If he receives this, and understanding, I think he will outgrow the habit.

Sleep Will Erase Wrinkles When Taken in Time

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Crow's feet and the wrinkles from the nostrils to the mouth corners come on the faces that welcome them not at all. Why young faces have these, as they so often do, is often a matter of general health, or rather, lack of it.

When one loses weight in a hurry, the aforementioned wrinkle characteristics are noted frequently. Especially the nostril-to-mouth-corner-wrinkles are frequently removed by the simple process of filling out the cheeks along with better body padding.

The crow's feet may and unfortunately often are the result of late hours, and if one is well inducted into the cocktail habit or any other such stimulant, the lines around the eyes are often the barometer of an alcoholic appetite. Eye strain may cause them, but more often it is bad personal management more than anything else.

If one is young, a week of good, solid sleeping hours may correct the lines, since the skin of youth is nothing if not resilient. But if one find they are deep-set, other treatment may be needed to add to the regular hours of sleep. In any remedial treatment, sleep must be included.

A good, rich cream should be applied around the eye edges where the fine lines appear, before manipulating the muscles. Rather than using separate hand motions I think it more effective to use both palms and work them in opposite directions up and out toward the temples. Use a fairly firm pressure with the movement. When you have made, say, twenty strokes as prescribed, tap the area lightly with the fingertips.

Then let a bit of the cream remain on overnight. In the morning give a minute or two to more palm treatment along with the tissue building cream.

The deep furrows from nose to mouth corners may be "palmed," too. Send the palms well greased on and up and out stroke, letting go at the end of the stroke and beginning over again where the lines appear. Work upwards always. Then, you can give a little exercise to the part by "blowing up" the flat half tires there, whistling, if you would have music with the blowing.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

K. S. D.: IT IS UNWISE TO attempt to express blackheads before the skin has been thoroughly cleansed and softened. Forcible removal will leave the skin bruised and lasting discolorations may result.

JOSEPHINE P.—INCREASE YOUR weight generally and your face will take on its share of fat. My weight gaining booklet may be had for a stamped addressed envelope.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

His Visits Ceased.

"Dear Miss Blake: My friend proposed, but I didn't give him a definite answer, so he stopped coming to see me. Please advise. WORRIED."

Apparently he has interpreted your silence as a rejection. He's entitled to a definite answer.

Food Talk.

Roast meat or fowl may be done to a turn and have that tempting rich brown exterior, savory smell, tenderness and all other traits necessary to make the meat good, but unless it is served with delicious gravy it is not perfect. This is not just the opinion of boys and girls and ordinary folks with big appetites. Real epicures often go so far as to judge the whole meat dish by the delicacy of the gravy. The choicest cut of meat cannot give satisfaction to the taste if it is not accompanied by a gravy and the most inexpensive cut may be relished if the gravy is excellent.

We judge the degree of excellence of a gravy not only by its flavor but also by its smoothness, consistency and rich color. Some people prefer the natural meat juices for gravy, such as we find on roast beef or beefsteak. Usually there is only a small amount of this so thickening and liquid are added to extend the gravy. The making of gravy is not a hit or miss proposition with success one time and failure the next. Gravy must be prepared with just as much care as is the meat from which it is made. For any kind of meat or poultry we use the fat and liquid remaining in the pan as the base. For each tablespoon of fat [four tablespoons are sufficient for garnishing an ordinary sized roast] add one tablespoon of flour. The fat is heated and browned slightly. Then the flour, salt and pepper to taste are added, mixed well with the fat and browned. Let me emphasize that "mix well with the fat and brown," for this process is most important. If the flour is browned too much we get a burned, unpleasant taste. The mixture should become a rich, light brown. Water in the proportion of one cup liquid to two tablespoons of fat is added slowly, stirring constantly. The mixture is cooked until smooth and of the desired consistency. Cooking requires at least five minutes. Many people do not cook their gravy long enough. If gravy becomes too thick during cooking, water may be added until the right consistency is obtained.

This basic recipe may be varied by using milk or meat stock instead of water or a bouillon cube dissolved in each cup of water. When there is an insufficient amount of fat in the meat juices butter may be added to give richness to the gravy. Chopped mushrooms or giblets are also a pleasant addition. Many cooks strain the gravy, but that is unnecessary unless through carelessness a gravy too lumpy to present has been obtained. Straining a well made gravy removes some of the tasty and nutritious sediment which is highly pleasing to most people.

STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS.

6 green peppers.
2 tablespoons butter.
1 large onion.
½ cup cooked tomatoes.
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
1 cup cooked rice.
Pepper and salt to taste.
½ cup grated American cheese.

Cut the tops off the green peppers. Remove all the seeds and pulp. Put them into cold water in a sauce pan and let them come slowly to a boil. Then let them boil for about two minutes. Remove the peppers from the water and set them aside to cool. Put the butter into a frying pan. Slice the onion thin, and fry it to a light brown in the butter. Add the tomatoes, seasoning and rice. Simmer for two or three minutes. Add the cheese just before removing the mixture from fire. Fill the peppers. Sprinkle a little grated cheese on top and bake in a moderate over [375° F.] until brown. Serve with tomato sauce.

Yield: Six servings. One serving: Total, 129 calories; protein, 19 calories; fat, 69 calories; carbohydrates, 41 calories.

Dream Costume of Pale Pink Velvet and Sable

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The evening clothes proposed by the Paris couturiers for our winter consumption are growing more luxurious all the time. They just refuse to consider hard times, or perhaps they favor a little sartorial Coué as a remedy for them. Whatever their motive, when they don't use lamé at goodness knows how much a meter, decked with mink or marten, they tempt you with an ermine coat or with a costly bit of velvet trimmed with sable.

Sable, in fact, which had become almost a mythological animal, is freely used to trim evening coats—when it does not entirely make them—and to form the hems of chiffon, lace or lamé frocks.

The evening ensemble from Paul Poiret, sketched above, is luxurious enough to fulfill the wildest dreams of our modern Eves, though it hides behind a mask of apparent simplicity. The short wrap is of pale pink panne velvet trimmed with bands of sable. It is fitted like a jacket in front and the right side of the front continues into a long fur edged scarf thrown over the left shoulder. The cape back turns into bell sleeves also bordered with the fur.

The dress on the small lady at the left shows a modern interpretation of Egyptian drapery. It's of pale pink georgette. Its right side has seven groups of horizontal tucks disposed between the shoulders and the knees, where it begins to flare toward the floor. The left side is formed by a long, plain panel, and the five graduated petal shaped panels, piped with the georgette, outlining the left armhole, are held on the left shoulder by a diamond buckle.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 10.—The U[niversity] of Notre Dame tonight dedicated its [$750,000 football] stadium before a gathering of [50,000 persons. It was something more than a mere formal opening of an athletic plant—a solemn ceremony that caused the spectators to sit silently attentive though they had come for a noisy evening.

THE REV. CHARLES O'DONNELL.

There has been something about the name [Notre Dame] partly applied to the football team's "The Ramblers"—that the folks at Notre Dame haven't quite cared for. In it was the implication that the fighting Irish were nomads—wanderers who had no athletic home. Notre Dame had an athletic field, it is true, but it was inadequate. And the fighting Irish did do much wandering [during] on this account.

Rockne Opens Program.

So Notre Dame was justly proud last night. Notre Dame was officially opening a great football home to carry on a great football tradition—a tradition established in the days before Notre Dame played to $400,000 gates, before Notre Dame outgrew old Cartier field and became "The Ramblers."

The first speaker was Coach Knute K. Rockne, an eloquent orator on the rostrum, though his greatest oratorical heights have been ascended in dressing rooms between halves. Mr. Rockne devoted his speech to praise of the faculty and alumni rather than to the expected reminiscences on Notre Dame athletic triumphs.

It remained, however, for the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of the University of Notre Dame, to furnish the climax of the ceremonies. Father O'Donnell, widely known for his eloquence, opened his address with an acknowledgment of many floral pieces, the donors of only one of which he named, Southern Methodist university, whose team was defeated at the informal inauguration of the stadium last Saturday.

Pay Tribute to Gipp.

Father O'Donnell, after extending thanks to all who had aided in making the new structure possible, recited a eulogy of George Gipp, hailed [as] many as Notre Dame's greatest football star, who became ill after a Notre Dame-Northwestern game and never recovered.

Father O'Donnell's reference to Gipp was an emotional tribute that still [held] the whole audience, but when he had finished the crowd, led by 3,000 students, burst forth into a stirring demonstration for a Notre Dame athlete here who died in service.

Officials of the United States Naval academy, including Rear Admiral S. [E.] Robison, superintendent, who accompanied the Navy team here for tomorrow's game, 6.

There Are Disadvantages.

Harve: It's pretty soft for you to pick football scores on Saturday games. Of course, you do get a lot of winners and then again you have some pretty vagrant guesses later in the season. But here's my point. When I like a team and lose a bet on it, I just lose my bet and am wrong. But you, Harve, have a chance on Monday to call it a "form upset." Big Ten.

KID BERG BEATS BILLY PETROLLE IN TEN ROUNDS

New York, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Jackie (Kid) Berg, sensational British lightweight, won a ten round victory over Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express, at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Berg punched out a clean-cut decision over the heavy hitter from the west who once scored a five round technical knockout over him in Chicago. Berg, though he never stopped clouting, did not carry enough power in his guns to floor Petrolle.

Petrolle, hardly Berg's equal in stamina, but a far stiffer puncher, was always dangerous. Several times he stopped the Englishman short with left smashes to the body and straight, whistling right hands that crackled on Berg's chin, but the never ending stream of leather Berg piled on his foe wore him down and left Petrolle a weary warrior at the end.

Petrolle won the second, fourth, eighth and ninth rounds, and Berg won the others.

The attendance was 11,000 and the gate receipts were $35,633. Berg weighed 135¾ pounds and Petrolle 137.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 10.—The Cardinal of Wisconsin and the Maroon of old Chicago meet for the thirty-fourth time tomorrow afternoon at Camp Randall stadium.

In 1894, two years after A. A. Stagg had greeted his first football squad on the Midway, and only four years after the organization of the first team at Wisconsin, the universities began their series of gridiron battles which in length and intensity of rivalry have had few equals in the central states.

Excepting 1906 and 1907 and the war year, 1918, when Western conference elevens played makeshift schedules, the Chicago-Wisconsin rivalry has been continuous. Fifteen times Wisconsin has triumphed. Chicago has won 14 games, while at four meetings the teams have tied. Wisconsin has taken the lead in the series, now well into its fourth decade, by winning four of the last five games.

Expect Crowd of Only 30,000.

Strange it is, then, that these old enemies open their Western conference campaigns against each other. These traditional games usually are played later in the year. It is stranger still that only 30,000 are expected tomorrow at Camp Randall stadium, which can accommodate 42,000 spectators, and that 800 tickets have been sufficient for the demand of Chicago alumni and students.

Perhaps the repeated tales of Chicago's athletic distress account for the apathy of sports followers. Or it may be that Wisconsin fans want to test their team, which defeated Chicago last year for its only Big Ten victory in five games and on four successive Saturdays was held scoreless by its foes—before coming to the stadium in large numbers. Whatever the reason, both thoughts are uppermost in the minds of Wisconsin's players tonight.

All week Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite and his assistants have drilled

Kings of Turf to Race Today for $30,000 Gold Cup Stake

BY FRENCH LANE.

Old Hawthorne becomes the center of the turf activities of America this afternoon when the Hawthorne Gold Cup at a mile and a quarter, which will gross more than $30,000 will be renewed.

The race, which may decide the handicap championship of the year, will be witnessed by all the people who can jam their way into the ancient racing center, which means it will be viewed by about 30,000.

Sun Beau, which ran a sensational mile and a quarter in 2:01 3-5 to win the cup last year, is back to defend his title. But last night as the turf followers from the east and the west and the north and the south gathered to discuss the race Sun Beau was not the favorite.

Spinach Is Favored.

Spinach, a 3 year old son of Sir Martin, was the choice and if he wins the cup there will be no denying him the place next to Gallant Fox in the ratings of 3 year olds this season. The price against Spinach was 2 to 1, his victory in the Havre de Grace cup in Maryland a week ago causing him to muster many backers. In the Maryland race at a mile and an eighth he beat Sun Beau by four lengths and did it quite easily. And all the other stars of the east were straggling along behind them.

But while the easterners were making much loud talk about Spinach and Sun Beau the westerners were quietly backing the four year old filly, Lady Broadcast.

She has supplanted Princess Doreen, Rose O'Sharon and other famous western racing mares in the eyes of western racegoers and whether the westerners bet on her or not, they are going to give her a rousing ovation if she wins. She won the $25,000 Lincoln handicap at Lincoln fields only a few weeks ago. She is owned by Rogers Caldwell of Memphis.

Nine Horses Named.

Nine were named over night for the cup race. Alcibiades is coupled with Pigeon Hole as the Hal Price Headley entry. Plucky Play, Jim Dandy, conqueror of Gallant Fox, Saxon, and My Dandy were the outsiders. The track was good at Hawthorne yesterday and a warm sun was beating down. If there is no more rain it will be lightning fast when the cup is run about 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The cup race held most of the attention of the big crowd at Hawthorne yesterday yet it was forgotten for a time when Deerfield, running in the silks of Congressman Stanley Kunz of Chicago, won the mile and seventy yards event, which came second on the program.

Deerfield paid $73.84 when he led ten other maiden 3 year olds to the line of finish.

Buddy Hanford who rode Deerfield was so aroused over the victory he dismounted before saluting the judges. They made him climb back into the saddle and salute before he was permitted to unsaddle.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 10.—An impressive crew of athletes wearing the football insignia of Purdue scampered around this afternoon on the turf of Michigan stadium, took a good look at the scenery, and then departed.

Meanwhile the Wolverine squad, not feeling in the need of looking at their own grounds, were chased up and down nearby Ferry field by a youthful coach who hoped to make eleventh hour discoveries which would aid him in determining the occupants of several of eleven positions.

All this, Purdue in one spot and Michigan in another, constituted the dress rehearsals for tomorrow's struggle which either will send the Boilermakers off on another Big Ten title hunt or reveal the Wolverines far stronger than they have indicated.

Purdue Far Advanced.

Michigan not only is still groping around trying to find itself, but is being called upon to outpoint a football machine that is almost perfect for this time of the year. Purdue's line is practically the same as that which tore to a title last fall. A couple of stars have vanished from the back field, but they have been satisfactorily replaced. These backs can run, plunge and pass. That's a formidable attacking combination to place behind a stone wall. To aggravate it, from a Michigan standpoint, there is a second set of Boilermaker backs available if, or when, the starting quartet grows weary.

Against this experienced, capable lineup, Michigan will have to place its dependency in a team more or less green. Still the youthful Kipke persists in predicting Michigan will spring a surprise. Not a little of his optimism is due to the fact that he believes the Wolverine defense will be tougher than Purdue anticipates.

Hoser to Play in Line.

After the final workout this evening, and just before he sent his fellows away for a night of quiet at a nearby country club, Kipke said he had decided definitely about one change over his starting layout of a week ago. He is going to place Hoser at left guard instead of La Jeunesse.

Another Michigan alteration which probably will be in effect at the kickoff is the employment of Draveling at right end in place of Daniels.

Still another late newcomer in the scramble to find an end to take the place of Hewitt, who broke an ankle last week, is Roddy Cox. He wanted to be a full back but this week he was given a whirl as a wing man and there now is reason to think that by tomorrow afternoon he may be judged good enough to start. Kipke wants Cox in because he is a pretty fair passer.

Michigan's chances of succeeding with a running attack depend considerably on the blocking ability of Willie Heston, who will start at left half, probably to be relieved by Debaker.

Purdue will open fire with its 1930 edition of the four riveters made up of White, Purvis, Pope, and the battering Yunevich. The other quartet consists of Weaver at quarter, Risk and Kissell at the halves, and Horstman at full.

Otto Von Porat Stops Snyder; Loses on Foul

If a round lasted four minutes instead of three, Otto Von Porat, Norwegian heavyweight of Chicago, would have won on a knockout at the Coliseum last night. But instead he lost on a foul to Angus Snyder of Dodge City, Kas., in the first round.

After the gong had sounded to end the opening session, Von Porat continued to rip punches to Snyder's head and body, unable to hear the bell over the roar of the crowd of 4,500 which paid $7,500 to see the show promoted by Matchmaker Jim Mullen. Snyder caved in under the impact of the blows and was carried to his corner, completely out.

Fails to Hear Bell.

Observers at the ringside blamed Referee Ed Purdy for not stepping in and others censured Timekeeper Lavin for not pounding the bell and thus attracting Von Porat's attention. Purdy said he had called "time," but perhaps the lanky Norwegian's hearing was impaired by his one round knockout at the hands of Young Stribling three months ago.

Von Porat rushed out at the start of the round and smashed a right to the stomach and then permitted his opponent to take the lead, with the result that the Kansas heavyweight earned a shade in the round. While forcing the fighting Snyder opened a cut over Von Porat's eye.

Rallies as Round Ends.

With only a few seconds of the round remaining, Von Porat stung Snyder with a right and he set out to end the fight then and there, regardless of how many bells were clanged. But he left the ring a beaten man as far as the record books are concerned.

The best bout of the evening involved Eddie Ran, up and coming Chicagoan, and Johnny Hayes of Philadelphia, who met at 148 pounds. Ran proved the better sharpshooter, especially in the last two rounds, when he had his man groggy, and carried off the eight round verdict.

The vote of the judges and referee gave Edgar Norman, Chicago 170 pounder, a decision over Chick Raines, Snyder's sparring mate, but the crowd was surprised at the officials' findings.

Bud Doran of Chicago stopped Colognato Orsato of Italy in the seventh round of the opening bout, and Domenico Bernasconi of New York stopped Sid Torres, a Filipino, in the third round of the closing fight.

WESLEY FESLER.

Northwestern university's football team will make its first major sortie of the 1930 season against Ohio State at Dyche stadium today. Forty thousand spectators will witness the clash, which will determine whether the Wildcats are as wild as pre-season reports have made them.

Both teams have appeared impressive in their appearances to date and success in today's encounter will add considerable prestige to either squad. The Buckeyes' convincing victory over Indiana last week has boosted the stock of the visitors considerably. Whether this win indicates a vastly improved Ohio team or a weak Hoosier eleven will be largely determined by the outcome of today's engagement.

Northwestern followers look to Capt. Hank Bruder to decide the issue in favor of the Wildcats. The Purple leader provided the major offensive in the win over Tulane last week. An attack of the grip kept him out of practice most of the week, but he has recovered sufficiently to warrant his starting against the Buckeyes.

Russell Is Ineligible.

The regulars sustained several injuries in last week's opener, but a more definite cause for concern became known yesterday when it was learned that Reb Russell, 200 pound full back, is ineligible to play. A technicality has arisen concerning his status and he will be out of the lineup until Oct. 25.

Loss of Russell, however, will not affect the starting lineup, since Hanley had already decided to open with Pug Rentner, former Joliet prep star. Al Moore will occupy his old job at right half, with Lee Hanley at quarter and Bruder at the other wing back.

Both teams have powerful lines. The Buckeyes' forward wall has been strengthened this year by capable sophomores and still has Wesley Fesler, all-American end for two years, as a steadying force. The star flankman has made several appearances at full back this year, but it is expected that he will start at the position where he has gained most fame.

Purple Line Has Edge.

The Purple forwards, all veterans of at least a year's service, are expected to have an edge over the invaders. From end to end there is not a weak spot to be found. The tackles, Marvil and Riley average 216 pounds, while the guards, Woodworth and Kent, are far from infants.

With both teams employing the Warner system, the game will be a test of which has the best defense for its own offense. The unbalanced line will be used by both elevens. Instead of the orthodox lineup of three men on each side of center, the Warner formation places the left tackle adjacent and to the right of the right tackle.

Another peculiarity of the system places the half backs a yard in the rear and a yard outside the ends. Thus they get the name of wing backs. Because of their peculiar position it is necessary for the offense to employ numerous reverses and double reverses to get the ball carriers into the open.

N. Y. Suspends Maloney for Fighting Carnera

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 10.—Thirty-three bronzed sons of the Pacific coast, representing Leland Stanford university, detrained this morning for a day's rest before their intersectional football battle tomorrow afternoon at Memorial stadium with the University of Minnesota. Accompanying them were the usual train of managers, faculty representatives, assistant coaches and Glenn [Pop] Warner, one of the picturesque figures of American gridiron coaching.

Welcome to the middle west was extended by a crowd of several hundred persons at the station, composed of Stanford alumni, various local reception committees, and curiosity seekers. Then the visiting stalwarts were loaded into buses for a trip to the Lafayette club at Lake Minnetonka, where they will remain until time to leave for the coast. Original plans to practice on Northrup field this afternoon were abandoned because of the distance.

They're the Football Type.

In their street clothes these thirty-three bronzed young men, thirty-one of whom received their early football training in California prep schools, looked big, strong, and healthy. In their football togs at Lake Minnetonka in the afternoon they appeared that athletic type which is the delight of football instructors—tall and rangy with plenty of weight which their stature might cause one to underestimate.

About these visitors who are here to demonstrate the acknowledged prowess of the Pacific coast game there was an air of condescension toward the green eleven they are to face. In fact those players who chanced to talk to newspaper men were modest in their attitude and words. They professed respect for the Gophers. Behind those kind words, however, could be detected confidence, confidence of seasoned men to whom victory is no stranger. Coach Warner, of course, stated his appreciation for the foe in the orthodox manner of men following his profession.

What's Gophers Attitude?

Minnesota partisans are anticipating the highest exemplification of the art of plunging, passing, punting, and deception. Against it they will pit what is generally believed an eleven below the usual Minnesota average. What then is their attitude?

Minnesota merely hopes for the best. Compositely alumni and undergraduates are resigned to defeat. They trust it will not become a rout. Warner, at a Rotary club luncheon in his honor, modestly and tactfully recalled a time more than two decades ago when he brought a Carlisle Indian team here which was picked by all critics to win by a large score, but did not win. Crisler, in reply, did not tell the assembled Maroon and Gold sympathizers the Gophers had a great chance.

He told his hearers he was asking the squad to give its best. That best, he said, would not yield a score as large as that of Vanderbilt a week ago.

No Gloom at Minnesota.

Persons at a distance might imagine there is nothing but gloom in the home of the Gophers. That is not so. It is more the feeling which University of Chicago partisans have been forced to adopt in recent years—that the coach is doing the best possible with the material available. Minnesota's material, however, is not poor, not even mediocre. But it is inexperienced and has not had time to assimilate a new coaching system. Crisler and Tad Weiman are not blamed for that.

Final signal practice for the Gophers was held in the late afternoon on the practice field, to which the student body was admitted for a half hour while the student band blared forth football airs in support of a pep rally.

Gophers' Backfield Changed.

Minnesota's starting backfield, as herewith presented, varies a bit from what had been expected. It is formed to get as much weight into action at the start as possible. Riebeth, not in his best physical condition, certainly will appear at some part of the fray. Capt. Tandy of the visitors, nursing injuries, is not expected to be used.

Marquette Is 12 to 0 Victor Over Drake

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 10.—Two intercepted passes gave Marquette university's football team a 12 to 0 victory over Drake university here tonight. The first score came early in the initial period when Joe Fitzgerald, end, intercepted a lateral pass and raced 95 yards for a touchdown. Francis Linscott, full back, intercepted a Drake forward pass and ran 45 yards for the second touchdown in the fourth period.

The victory was the third straight for Marquette this season. Fifteen thousand persons gathered at the Hilltop stadium to see the contest.

Drake Makes 17 First Downs.

Drake outplayed Marquette at straight football, making 17 first downs to seven for the home team. The losers made two first downs when Marquette was penalized. Marquette made one the same way.

During the first quarter Marquette resorted to punting to thwart the furious line plunging of the invaders. McElligott and Deig did most of the punting for the Hilltoppers, while King performed in a similar capacity for Drake.

Drake took the first kickoff and advanced the ball by straight line plunging to Marquette's four yard line. It was at this juncture that Fitzgerald intercepted Capt. Lynn King's lateral pass intended for Chuck Van Koten and galloped away for the first score.

Stage Punting Duel.

The second and third periods consisted largely of punting duels. Only in the fourth period was Marquette able to gain by rushing. Drake, on the other hand, began hurling forward passes in an effort to score. Seiberling tried a series of long tosses, and it was one of these that Linscott intercepted and ran for Marquett's second score.

The victory wiped out a 28 to 7 defeat Drake handed Marquette two years ago. Lineup and summary:

DISPUTED STRIP OF LAND SOLD TO TURF CLUB

The legal cloud hovering over the main automobile entrance to the Washington Park race track was lifted yesterday with the announcement by James J. Parker & Co. of the sale of 400 feet of the old interurban right of way to the Washington Park Jockey club. This sale, involving the strip lying between the track and South Halsted street, removes the litigation instituted by the jockey club last May. The title is now guaranteed by the Chicago Title and Trust company.

The dispute over the property started shortly before the opening of the Washington Park meeting last spring. The club started court proceedings against the trust company and Dr. and Mrs. R. V. Spencer. The latter claimed ownership of the land and erected a fence across the main automobile entrance to the track. Superior Judge William J. Lindsay then granted the club a temporary injunction restraining the trust company and the Spencers from blocking the entrance.

The property involved is to be used by the club for three main entrances to the track which will be built and landscaped for next year's meeting.

KIRBY TO ARRIVE TODAY FOR BOUT WITH LEVINSKY

Arrival today of Tom Kirby, Boston heavyweight, and Kid Francis, Paris bantamweight, will bring all the lighters on the Stadium's card Tuesday night into Chicago gymnasiums for final workouts.

Al Singer, world's lightweight champion, and his opponent, Eddie Mack, arrived Thursday. King Levinsky has been in training for two weeks for his ten round bout with Kirby.

Harry Fierro meets Francis in another ten round fight. These three bouts will be supported by two six rounders, bringing together Sammy Binder, lightweight from New York who came on as Singer's sparring partner, and Barney Ross, stablemate of Earl Mastro, and Dick Sisk and Jackie Phillips, two Chicago punchers.

If Francis defeats Fierro, he will be matched with Mastro for a bout at the Stadium, Matchmaker Nate Lewis said yesterday. Kid Chocolate, in a telephone conversation with Lewis from Havana, agreed to meet the winner.

the varsity on Chicago's formations.

"Forget the newspaper reports that Chicago's line is weak," the coaches have exhorted. "Remember the veteran backs, Stagg, Van Nice, Knudsen, and Temple. Remember last year when your victory, 20 to 6, was made easy by two blocked kicks which resulted in touchdowns."

What Happened Last Year.

No words are needed to recall last year's record to the players' minds. Northwestern, Notre Dame, Iowa, and Purdue held them scoreless. Minnesota also triumphed, albeit by one point, 13 to 12.

What chance of victory does Wisconsin have tomorrow? What will the team accomplish against Pennsylvania a week later, and then against Purdue, Ohio, Northwestern, and Minnesota?

These campus questions, so far, have received no answer, save this:

"Wisconsin's first line has five varsity letter men. Three of the first and second back fields have received the 'W.' The sophomores are promising."

Wisconsin attacks from an unbalanced line with two wing backs. Sammy Behr and Francis McGuire, both left hand passers, play the right wing back. Joe Linfor, a sophomore, and Russ Rebholz are stationed alternately at the left wing back. Charles Goldenberg and James Wimmer, both new men, are detailed to the quarterback berth.

Defensive Stars to Start.

John Schneller, Bill Lusby and Tury Oman are the full backs. Linfor, Schneller, Goldenberg, and Behr likely will start tomorrow. Behr calls the signals. Thistlethwaite favors these backs for superior defense against passes.

Plays are called in a huddle. Last night's scrimmage gave evidence of powerful off-tackle plays with average plunging strength. Because of the formation, Wisconsin should be able to pass well. Schneller and Lusby at present are the passers, although other plays later will use the wing backs for this duty. Capt. Milt Gantenbein, at end, and Behr are rated the class of the receivers.

Gregory Kabat and Edward Swiderski, guards, are the only sophomores in the line. Notwithstanding veteran material, the line is a target for questioners. If the line develops, Wisconsin will have a great team.

Coach Thistlethwaite is enthusiastic, markedly so, and as a result, he no longer is called "Gloomy Glenn." George Little, director of athletics, expresses this view of the football situation:

"If a conference team, in this day of competition, can win 60 per cent of its games I would rate it successful."

Measured by this standard, there can be slight doubt of Wisconsin's success.

Becker Tells of Hunt for Birds Against Moon

BY BOB BECKER.

This week produced several ideal nights for outdoor fans to go bird hunting on the moon. Clear weather during the evening, the moon at full and the time of the year when the migrants are pushing southward, have combined to make moon gazing an interesting sport, as we outlined Tuesday evening over the radio station W-G-N. Small song birds, herons, ducks, mudhens, and other birds can be seen speeding over the sky boulevards at night whenever they fly between the observer and the moon.

From Yerkes observatory comes word of excellent success with the small telescope in searching for night flying birds against the full moon because the "hunters on the moon" have had good luck this week. Last Wednesday night was a very good night, according to Dr. Paul Jenkins, who lives just a step from the observatory at Williams Bay.

He writes as follows of the results of a vigil at the 12 inch telescope:

"Wednesday night being considered a good one, we got at the 12 inch telescope fairly early in the moon's ascent and in an hour's time Dr. Crump and I, both looking through the parallel tubes, and thus checking one another observed 23 birds crossing the moon's surface. All but two were headed south. The other pair, oddly enough, were traveling north.

All were at a considerable distance, from 1¼ to 3 miles away from us and most of the migrants were close to a mile high, as calculated by the astronomers in the method with which you are familiar. I felt fairly sure of the identification of two of the birds, one a heron and the other a good sized duck.

Interestingly enough, another observer, using the comet seeker, which gives a view of a larger part of the moon's surface than we could see with the 12 inch telescope, saw more birds than we did."

Although a large telescope is best suited for watching birds against the moon, a small "home" sized telescope will do the trick or even a pair of high power binoculars.

VETERAN BUTLER ELEVEN TO FACE ILLINOIS TODAY

Zuppke to Try Ovelman, Bauer in Line.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—A brisk struggle with Butler is predicted for tomorrow, when the University of Illinois players appear in their last preliminary game before opening of their Big Ten season.

Bill McClure, Zuppke scout, who saw Butler lose a close game to Ohio university, Buckeye conference champions, and then observed the Illini in their victory over Iowa State by a single touchdown, thinks that Butler probably is stronger than the Ames team. Another factor that may help Butler, in Coach Zuppke's opinion, is that the Illini are thinking more about the Northwestern game than the impending contest.

Butler Has 13 Veterans.

Coach Harry Bell, formerly of Lombard, who succeeded Potsy Clark at Butler, brought a squad today that included 13 veterans, and will probably outweigh the Illini in the line. The Butler band of 60 pieces will head their rooters.

Looking toward the Northwestern game, Coach Zuppke will try out two linemen who were not considered in the first rank hitherto, John Bauer, a 158 pound center, who played at Crane Junior college, Chicago, and John Ovelman, a guard. Red Owen, sophomore end, who was held out of the Iowa State game, is scheduled to start.

Fuzzy Evans, disabled until now, and Chuck Hall, halfback, and Bob Conover, a guard transferred to full back, will probably appear at the start with Yanuskus, Berry, and Schultz in reserve. Root, Perrine, and Chattin will probably alternate at quarter back.

Robinson Unable to Play.

There is no chance that Capt. Robinson will play. Zuppke will be satisfied if he is able to appear against Northwestern. The probable line-up follows:

ILLINOIS.		BUTLER.
Swanson	L. E.	Brock
J. Bohman	L. T.	Mecum
Jones	L. G.	Ruffi
Bauer	C.	Puett
Ovelman	R. G.	Heddon

Owen	R. E.	Miller
Root, Perrine	Q. B.	Reynolds
[illegible]	L. H.	Raber
Hall	R. H.	Boos
Conover	F. B.	Hinchman

A.A. Clubs Ask More Money for Players

Cleveland, O., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Agreement on the universal draft principle for purchase of players by major leagues from the minors, but a deadlock on the terms of purchase, was reported tonight as a conference between officers of the groups here ended.

The two baseball groups reported a deadlock practically as strong as the one at the conference in Frech Lick, Ind., when the minor leagues suspended the limited draft for selection of baseball players by the majors.

The groups must reach an agreement by Dec. 1 or break off relations, it was said. This also applies to dealings between the minor league clubs where players are farmed out by the majors.

The terms of acceptance of the universal draft, which the minors offered the majors today included that the price paid for players in the class AA leagues be increased from $5,000 to $10,000. The price for players from minors of lower classification would be graduated according to the class.

The minor leagues represented were the American association and the Pacific Coast and International leagues.

NORTH CENTRAL TO PLAY MAROON RESERVES TODAY

University of Chicago football fans who will be unable to make the trip to Madison for the Wisconsin game this afternoon can watch the Chicago "B" team play North Central college of Naperville on Stagg field at 2 p. m.

North Central tied for the championship of the Little Nineteen conference last year, but forfeited the title for using an ineligible man. This season the Naperville team has defeated Oshkosh Teachers, 21 to 0, while losing to Monmouth, 13 to 6. Gordon Fisher, former Minnesota player, is coaching the visitors.

BEARS DRILL ON SIGNALS BEFORE GIANT CONTEST

The Bears will be called out for a signal drill this morning in preparation for the clash with Benny Friedman's New York Giants tomorrow afternoon at Wrigley field.

The entire squad, with the exception of Dick Nesbitt, is in excellent shape. Nesbitt, who injured his shoulder two weeks ago in the opener with Brooklyn, has practically recovered and could play if necessary.

The Giants arrived in town yesterday.

Elmhurst Eleven to Play Mt. Morris College Today

Mount Morris, Ill., Oct. 10.—Mount Morris college will open its Little Nineteen conference schedule here tomorrow against Elmhurst college. Coach Fred Parker has been drilling his squad on passing all week and will rely on the air route to overcome the handicap of Elmhurst's weight.

117th Cavalry Will Hold Horse Show Tomorrow

JUDGE DECLARES SECOND MISTRIAL IN HOCKEY SUIT

For the second time in as many weeks, the $700,000 damage suit of Edward J. Livingstone of Toronto, Canada, against Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, owner of the Chicago Blackhawk hockey team, was declared a mistrial yesterday.

Attorney Cecil C. Erickson, counsel for the plaintiff, made the motion for a non-suit because of the "fragmentary manner in which the evidence was allowed to go in." After the motion was granted, he said he would refile the suit.

Livingstone seeks damages on the charge that Maj. McLaughlin conspired to lure away players from his Cardinal hockey team and also to cause cancellation of the Cardinal team's lease of the Chicago coliseum for exhibition purposes. The first trial was declared a mistrial last week when Maj. McLaughlin told Judge George A. Carpenter that a juror had approached him with improper remarks.

Refit Schooner Blue Nose for 2d Cup Race Today

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 10.—(AP)—This was a day of preparation for the schooners Blue Nose, out of Lunenburg, N. S., and the Gertrude L. Thebaud, pride of the Gloucester fleet. Tomorrow they will sail in the second race of a two out of three series for an international fishermen's challenge trophy donated by Sir Thomas Lipton, and cash prizes.

After her victory in the opening race yesterday, Capt. Ben Pine, skipper of the Gertrude L. Thebaud, found little to do aboard her, so he and his crew took her out for a between-race workout.

There was much to be done aboard the big Canadian schooner. Her sails were recut and refitted. They fitted woefully yesterday and to that factor many blamed her 18 minute defeat.

Notre Dame Dedicates Its New Stadium

row's game, took part in the ceremonies.

The Navy team, rear admirals, ensigns, and others bringing the total of the party to an even eighty, not including the Navy goat, arrived here shortly before noon and the Notre Dame dedication excitement opened with a bang.

After pitching camp at the South Bend Country club, the service men monkeyed around the grounds for a while, ate lunch, and then went to the Notre Dame practice field, where they held a workout beginning at 2 o'clock.

Neither Coach Bill Ingram of Navy nor Coach Knute Rockne had any bear stories, although three of Notre Dame's stars, Mullins, Donoghue, and Leahy, will not be in uniform, Mullins and Donoghue being out on account of injuries received in the Southern Methodist game last Saturday, while Leahy is still on crutches as a result of wounds received in practice ten days ago.

As all Notre Dame followers readily will perceive in looking over the starting lineup, Coach Rockne is planning to follow his usual practice, that of starting shock troops.

Names First Team.

The first string is named as follows: Kosky, left end; Culver, left tackle; Kassis, left guard; Yarr, center; Metzger, right guard; Kurth, right tackle; Conley, right end; Carideo, quarter back; Schwartz, left half; Brill, right half, and Savoldi, full back.

All of these men are reported to be in excellent physical condition and prepared to give the dedication crowd of 55,000 an excellent show. Notre Dame is pointing toward the Carnegie Tech game and it is said the first team wants plenty of work tomorrow, even at the risk of injuries.

Citizens Entertain Visitors.

Following the ceremonies tonight various groups of visitors and Notre Dame patrons were entertained at homes of South Bend citizens.

South Bend residents have responded to the housing emergency in a way that brought commendation from the university authorities.

Faced with the handling of the largest crowd that ever visited South Bend, the hotels of the city were filled to overflowing by noon today, making it necessary for the later arrivals to go to private homes which had been listed by committees which had headquarters in the lobbies of the packed hostelries.

The game will start at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, but it is expected that most of the 55,000 ticketholders will be in their places shortly after noon.

CANOE HEADS MEET.

Executives of the American Canoe association this morning will assemble for their 50th annual meting at the Bismarck hotel. Dr. Howard Wakefield of Chicago, who was recently appointed national commodore, will preside.

Opening City league games between Marshall and McKinley in the west section and Tilden and Hyde Park in the Central division resulted in scoreless ties. Marshall was in a position to score twice in the second quarter of its game with McKinley, but the latter held on the six yard line shortly before the half ended. Saracco of McKinley and Barron of Marshall featured.

In the central section game, Tilden had its scoring opportunity in the second period after a 37 yard run by Kirchner brought the ball to the Hyde Park one yard line, but Coach Hasan's team stopped the Techs there.

De Paul, playing its second Catholic league game, overwhelmed Weber, 45 to 0, at De Paul field. Holmes, Napolilli and Refram each scored two touchdowns while Leo Zeck, De Paul center, broke into the scoring column by intercepting a Weber pass and running 80 yards for a touchdown. GET THE JUMP ON WINTER

Protect your car NOW with Eveready Prestone . . . the ONE-SHOT anti-freeze

Put it in early . . . it won't boil off!

Tested and approved Contest Board American Automobile Association

IT MAY SEEM a little early to begin taking winter precautions for your car, but your memory will tell you that the first cold snap always brings a lengthy line of cars to every service station. That means delay, bother, possibly danger to your engine-block.

You can't prepare more than a few hours ahead with the ordinary anti-freeze . . . you're apt to lose it if the weather grows warm. But with Eveready Prestone, the ONE-SHOT anti-freeze, you're all set for Indian summer or an early skating season.

Used by Byrd Antarctic Expedition

With every type of anti-freeze to choose from, the Byrd Antarctic Expedition used Eveready Prestone.

Constant research by the Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation laboratories has further increased the efficiency of Eveready Prestone. This year it is actually superior to the Eveready Prestone which more than a million motorists used to their complete satisfaction last year. So that you may easily identify Eveready Prestone, it is now green in color.

Economy Plus Protection

The economy of using Eveready Prestone lies in these two facts: 1. A single filling will last all winter, irrespective of temperature-fluctuations. 2. Eveready Prestone is an undiluted anti-freeze. Compared with other anti-freezes, a considerably smaller quantity is required to give your car complete all-winter protection. For example, if the radiator capacity of your car is three gallons, you can get complete protection from early fall to late spring for a cost of $2.50 to $7.50, depending on whether you live in a moderate or extreme climate.

Go to your dealer or garage-man, before he gets swamped with work during the first cold snap. Have him prepare your car for winter, taking the simple precautions necessary to make the cooling-system water-tight.

You can put Eveready Prestone in today. It's always in tune with the temperature.

Tune in the Eveready Hour every Tuesday evening at nine (Eastern standard time) over the N. B. C. network.

NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY, INC.
General Offices: New York, N. Y.
Unit of Union Carbide UCC and Carbon Corporation

9 POINTS OF SUPERIORITY

1. Gives complete protection.
2. Does not boil off.
3. Positively will not damage cooling-system.
4. Will not heat-up a motor.
5. Circulates freely at the lowest operating temperatures.
6. Will not affect paint, varnish, or lacquer finishes.
7. Non-inflammable.
8. Odorless.
9. Economical—one filling lasts all winter.

W-G-N ASKS FOR AIR ALLOTMENT OF 50,000 WATTS

Requests Power Befitting Radio Metropolis.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Chicago, as the musical, cultural and art center of the United States, with its favorable geographical situation and its wealth of financial and program resources "was inevitably destined to become what it is, the natural and logical broadcasting center of the country."

That is what W. E. Macfarlane, business manager of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, told the federal radio commission today in opening the case of station W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE pioneer broadcasting institution, for the present maximum power of 50,000 watts—power that would enable it to serve its programs to greater audiences with better signal strength.

Mr. Macfarlane emphasized Chicago's strategic location as "a radio metropolis." "It is the nearest metropolis to the center of population in the United States," he said. "It is a talent center second only to New York in both the quantity and quality of artists and musicians capable of producing a good broadcasting program. In the winter it maintains its world renowned Civic opera, in the summer its equally renowned opera at Ravinia park. Chicago has a symphony orchestra second to none in the world."

Seeks to Double Power.

THE TRIBUNE executive appeared as the first witness for station W-G-N, over which he has direct supervision. The station is one of eight applicant stations in the middle west seeking to obtain authority to use the highest allowable broadcasting power of 50,000 watts. Only two such channel assignments remain available for stations in this zone, and the applicant stations, supposedly, are competing for these assignments on the basis of excellence of service to the public.

Station W-G-N, although now one of the premier stations of the country, by virtue of its exclusive channel assignments, broadcasts with 25,000 watts power. It is seeking to have that output doubled, to permi it to reach into the rural areas of Illinois and of neighboring states with good, consistent signals, unaffected by fading, static and other interferences.

That there might be no question about the "financial responsibility" of THE TRIBUNE, Mr. Macfarlane recited that The Tribune company, as of Aug. 31, 1930, had a net worth of nearly $20,000,000. And this figure, he said, consists of actual tangible assets and does not include any good will, franchises, patents, copyrights or other intangible assets.

"We have no connection either by stock ownership or otherwise with any public utility, with any so-called trust, radio or otherwise, and are not financed by any bankers," he testified.

Cites Large Circulation.

The history of THE TRIBUNE, from its inception in 1847 to its present status as the newspaper with the largest circulation of any standard sized newspaper in the United States, was recounted by Mr. Macfarlane for the commission's benefit. Affiliated publications, such as Liberty Weekly, the New York News, and the Chicago Tribune Ocean Times—the bulletin news service supplied to more than 100 vessels on the high seas—were enumerated.

Station W-G-N, the witnes testified, is a merger of three separate radio broadcasting stations—W-G-N, WLIB and WTAS—which until the late summer of 1928 had the use of two separate wave lengths. W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE station, extends back to 1922, less than a year after broadcasting was born.

From a humble beginning, then with 1,000 watts power, this station, through consistently progressive management, now operates as one of the foremost stations of the country with 25,000 watts, he declared. But it is satisfied that a vastly improved service may be rendered with double that power, and an application to this end consequently has been filed.

Present Investment of $250,000.

THE TRIBUNE station, according to Mr. Macfarlane, represents an investment of approximately $250,000—besides depreciation on the station and equipment reckoned at $187,275.41. An additional large expenditure, of course, would be entailed by boosting the station's power to 50,000 watts, should its application be granted.

"The total expense of operating W-G-N down to Aug. 31, 1930, has been $2,078,186.35, of which $187,275.41 consists of depreciation," declared the witness. "These figures are not padded, but are conservative, since, if we were to add salaries and expenses due to work done by members of the newspaper staff who do not give full time to the station and certain other items, which the station would have to pay if it were an independent organization, we should increase the figure to a much larger amount."

In opening THE TRIBUNE'S case, Louis G. Caldwell, former general counsel of the commission, offered a motion that the commission retract its order limiting to four in each zone the number of cleared channels which may have 50,000 watts stations. The weight of the testimony at these high power hearings which have progressed over a month's period, he said, shows conclusively that high power is no longer experimental.

Wisconsin Claim Also Heard.

Wisconsin's claim for an exclusive channel and a high powered station, which it contends has been unlawfully denied it by the commission, was argued by station WTMJ of Milwaukee today, just before THE TRIBUNE case began. The Milwaukee station, operated by the Milwaukee Journal, has filed for the channel now occupied by station WLS, Chicago, operated by the Agricultural Broadcasting company, and WENR, operated by the Insull utilities through its subsidiary, the Great Lakes Broadcasting company.

Two other Wisconsin stations, however—WEBC at Superior, and WISN at Milwaukee, operated by the Evening Wisconsin company—intervened in the hearing, protesting against the WTMJ application.

WIFE SAYS SHE SLEW HUSBAND; POLICE DOUBT IT

Question Her Father About Killing.

Rockford, Ill., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Michael Abena of Chicago was brought to Rockford tonight for questioning in the slaying yesterday of his son-in-law, Frank Domino.

Police said they were not satisfied with the story told by Mrs. Domino today, when she said that she shot and killed her husband because he had gone off with another woman. They are also seeking Mrs. Domino's two brothers.

Police said that on the basis of Mrs. Domino's recital of the facts of the slaying, Domino was facing her in the kitchen when she shot him. The bullet wound, however, was in his back. Mrs. Domino had sworn out a warrant charging desertion and abandonment against her husband and, when he returned from a trip to Mulkeytown, Ill., yesterday, phoned to police to notify them of his presence. They arrived to find him dead and the wife gone.

Early today Mrs. Domino turned up at police headquarters, carrying one child and dragging another, and telling a tale of wandering through alleys all night. Police said they believe she went to the home of a friend, where it was arranged that she should confess the crime. She said she was alone at the time of the shooting, but police said they have information that her father and probably her brothers were with her.

DENIES ALCOHOL DIVERSION IS TEN MILLION GALLONS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Statistics prepared by the prohibition bureau last week indicating that 10,000,000 gallons of illicit liquor were derived from alcohol diversions last year were sharply challenged today by Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol and former head of dry enforcement. The statistics were prepared under the direction of Dr. Dorah's successor, Amos W. Woodcock.

Dr. Doran particularly objected to one of the calculations which indicated that 4,000,000 gallons of spirits are made annually from alcohol used in the perfume and toilet trade.

"That figure is wholly unfair," Mr. Doran charged.

According to Dr. Doran, if the toilet trade diversions were as large as the prohibition bureau estimated, they would amount to 40 per cent of the total manufactured for this purpose.

TEACHERS PICK TWO PENSION BOARD MEMBERS

Chicago school teachers yesterday cast 11,019 ballots in the annual teachers' pension board election, at which two of three candidates were chosen trustees.

The winners, both indorsed by the Chicago Teachers' federation, are Henry G. Gellen, art director of the Chicago Normal college, with 9,478 votes, and Mary B. Livingston, principal of the Horace Mann school, re-elected with 9,640 votes. The loser was Frank B. Raebig, instructor at the Bowen High school.

A report just completed shows more than $5,000,000 in the pension reserve against a total of $67,000 in the fund when control was taken from the board of education in 1907 and given to the teachers.

GUILTY OF USING PROFANITY OVER OREGON RADIO

Medford, Ore., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Robert Gordon Duncan was convicted here today of using obscene, indecent and profane language over the radio. The penalty is a maximum of five years in prison. He was convicted on the third count of an indictment charging he maligned B. F. Irvine, associate editor of the Portland Journal, and Paul T. Shaw, member of the Portland school board. On four other counts he won acquittal.

Duncan was prosecuted on the grounds he had violated federal laws in his use of the radio station KVEP in Portland, over which he spoke before the station was closed by the government.

Known as the "Oregon Wildcat," he made a series of talks against chain store operation and attacked many Portland business men.

2,000 Businesses Opened Here in 1st Half of 1930

COUNTY TO LET CONTRACT FOR S. SIDE PAVING

County Highway Superintendent Quinlan announced yesterday that the county will let a contract this fall for the paving of Avenue O from 106th street to 138th street, and of Avenue L from 95th street to 106th street. This project, connecting with Burnham avenue, will form a new traffic outlet to the south.

The plans are being prepared in accordance with the recommendations of local improvement organizations and contrary to the recommendations of the Chicago Regional Planning association. As the pavement is to be constructed, traffic will make two right angle turns on 106th street, which has street cars. The regional planning organization favored a sweeping curve for the pavement through the district, which as yet has not been subdivided. Advocates of the plan adopted by the county board contend that by following cardinal directions with the pavement the improvement will aid in the development of potential industrial property.

INQUEST OVER VICTIM OF "FAKE" MARRIAGE GROUP

Marion, Ind., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Coroner O. L. Stout will conduct a post-mortem examination tomorrow on the body of George Shriver, 45, of North Bend, Neb., who died in the county hospital this afternoon. Coroner Stout said he had been requested by Chief of Police Lewis Lindenmuth and Sheriff Jacob Campbell to determine the cause of Shriver's death, as it was not easily explained by natural causes. Shriver suffered stomach disorders after his arrival.

Rheumatic Goes Wild With Joy

Nurito Prescription Acts Like Magic, Making Bed-ridden Sufferers Get Up and Dance

Nothing has so startled the community as the effect of Nurito, a physician's prescription for rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia, sciatica and lumbago. It is now to be had at the Walgreen stores and is certainly a boon to humanity. Many won't believe such a thing possible as almost instant relief in even bed-ridden cases of excruciating pain. They say it must be a narcotic. But it isn't anything of the sort, and to prove it, get the regular package from the drug store, try it as directed and if it doesn't prove almost a miracle in driving away pain with two or three doses your money will be instantly refunded. Ask at the drug store for a box of Nurito on this money-back guarantee.

Mann committed suicide Wednesday by shooting himself in Lincoln park while he was despondent. A coroner's jury held Thrusday that he had been driven to temporary insanity through brooding over his ill fortune. Jewish services in Temple Sholom, Cornelia avenue and Sheridan road, preceded the burial.

SUSPECTS STILL HELD IN ROBBERY OF MAYOR'S WIFE

Habeas corpus proceedings yesterday did not benefit Sam Battaglia, young hoodlum and gangster who is held as one of the bandits who robbed Mayor Thompson's wife of $15,000 worth of jewels and took the star and gun of her policeman-chauffeur. Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court allowed the police to keep Battaglia in custody another day without placing a charge against him.

Attorney Julius Reznick, who asked for the writ to free Battaglia and William Carr, who was also arrested as a suspect of this holdup, informed the court he had made an unsuccessful attempt to serve a subpoena on Mrs. Thompson. A policeman and the clerk at the Barry apartments, 3100 Sheridan road, where the mayor and his wife live, prevented him from seeing Mrs. Thompson, he said. He said he wanted to show that she was unable to identify Battaglia.

Chief of Detectives John Norton said Battaglia was being held because of the identification of him by Policeman Peter J. O'Malley, Mrs. Thompson's chauffeur. O'Malley, who at first said he was unable to say positively that Battaglia was one of the men who robbed him and Mrs. Thompson, said yesterday that he was positive. Battaglia may be arraigned today, Chief Norton said.

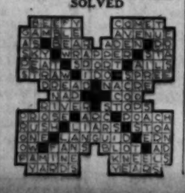
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



SPECULATION IS DEFENDED BY EXCHANGE HEAD

Too Much Fear of Bears: Whitney.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Speculation in securities is just as legitimate as merchandising and short selling in the stock market has its counterpart in contracting in building construction. These assertions were made by Richard Whitney, president of the New York stock exchange, in an address at the annual banquet of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce in the Hotel Stevens last night.

Mr. Whitney's address was broadcast over W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE'S radio station.

Mr. Whitney sharply criticized the numerous recent proposals for legislation to restrict speculation and to forbid short selling. At the same time he asserted that the effect of short selling and bear raiding on stock prices has been greatly exaggerated, as also has the effect of speculation on the credit situation of the country.

Bear Influence Exaggerated.

"The influence of bear raiding has been greatly exaggerated, chiefly because people do not understand that the stock market has grown to such a size that it is impossible for any individual or group of individuals to buy or sell securities in sufficient volume to affect the list as a whole," he asserted. "Prices on the exchange move, not because a few people wish to buy or sell, but because hundreds of thousands of people, not only in this country but throughout the world, are interested in the buying and selling in our market.

"In times of prosperity, the accumulated buying orders that flow steadily into the exchange cause prices to mount. In times of depression, the vast mass of sales which come from people who have lost confidence in the future bring about declines. When the tide of security prices is running strongly in one direction or the other, no individual or group of individuals are powerful enough to stem it.

"The exchange defends short selling because it is essential to the maintenance of a free and open market for securities. During the last year a number of people who wished to prevent further declines in the value of securities have suggested that the exchange forbid short selling. They apparently felt that prevention of short sales would immediately bring about rising security prices and general prosperity.

"But the prohibition of short selling would inevitably result, first, in a stagnant market and then a dangerous inflation, uncontrolled by the brake which short sales provide. We saw last year the disastrous consequences of inflation of security prices and I am opposed to any action which will bring about a recurrence of the conditions that existed in October and November, 1929.

"I admit that the price of a particular security may be affected by the buying and selling of a group. I do not believe it is proper for persons to sell stocks in a volume and in a manner which is calculated to depress prices artificially. The exchange does not defend or look with favor on short selling of this character.

Builder Short Labor, Material.

"Almost every week the question is asked: 'How can any one sell something which he does not own?' The answer is that he can borrow the security in order to deliver it upon his contract of sale. Such a contract to deliver in the future something which a person does not own is common to many types of business. When a builder contracts to build a great skyscraper he is literally short of every material and the labor that must go into the building. No one, however, considers he has done an unethical or improper thing in signing the contract.

"The great increase in security values in 1928 and the early part of 1929 discouraged short selling. This was one of the reasons for the severe decline in values which took place in October and November. I believe if we had had more short selling, security values would not have reached such excessive heights and the resulting crash in prices would have been less severe.

Installment Buying.

"The assumption that money borrowed for the purchase of securities represents speculative credit is false. The nature of a purchase of securities is not affected by whether the purchaser borrows part of the purchase price or not any more than the use of credit determines the nature of other purchases. One can buy almost anything through installment payments. Installment buying of securities, like other things, may be overdone, but there is no way we can present individuals mortgaging their own futures too heavily, just as there is no way that we can prevent people with money from becoming spendthrifts.

"Without the activities of merchants, the distribution of goods would be impossible. Yet merchants are, in fact, speculators. They buy their products for the purpose of resale to others at higher prices. To buy securities as a speculation and in this way to assist in making security markets broader, is that any different from the merchant who helps to extend the retail business of the nation?"

Wall Street Isn't Worrying About French Gold Hoard

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 10.—With the becoming dignity of their kind, Wall street bankers refused to become alarmed today over the cabled news that France had imported another $7,750,000 shipment of gold from Germany to add to the great hoard she is rolling up from the four corners of the earth.

They were interested in the development—very much interested—they agreed, but with a good two-fifths of the world's supply of the precious metal now either in bank vaults or in circulation in the United States they could see nothing to worry over. Certainly they could sense no sign of a world "shortage" in the situation. They have gone on record to the same reassuring effect several times here of late and, they say, they see no reason to change their views merely because France has turned to her erstwhile enemy for some of the supply she has been so steadily drawing from these shores.

This Wall street view of the situation, viz: That it is a European rather than a world-wide problem seem to receive support from cable dispatches indicating that the European bankers conference held at Basel today had been devoted chiefly to an effort to arrest the flow of gold from Germany to France.

Admit Heavy Shipments.

It was admitted that the shipments from here to Paris have been quite heavy this year, amounting to a total of $73,782,000 for the nine months ended Sept. 30 last, but that, the bankers point out, is a mere "drop out of the bucket" when compared with the $4,400,000,000 or thereabouts now held in the United States for money purposes.

This is practically double the amount on hand in 1915. It makes the United States easily the supreme repository for gold for the world and the bankers say there is "not a chance" that the outflow will be sufficient to threaten our prestige. Whatever "menace" there might be in the situation they seem to think is Europe's problem — so far — not ours. Hence, and wherefore, they refuse to get excited over the matter — even with the gold they prize so highly flowing out by every steamship that sails.

Since 1913 the increase of our holdings has far surpassed that of any other country on the globe. The gain for the period was recently computed, in fact at 101 per cent as compared with an increase of only 15 per cent for France, while Great Britain's holdings on the basis of the same recent figures were shown to have slumped 2 per cent and those of Germany 4 per cent.

September Exports.

Last month gold exports from the port of New York amounted to $10,975,000, a good part of it going to France [just how much available figures do not show] but this outflow was largely offset by imports from Brazil, Uruguay, and other South American countries amounting to $7,854,000.

On a recent visit to New York a group of French bankers denied that the accumulation of gold in the vaults of the Bank of France is the result of any fixed policy and insisted that it is due contrariwise to the working of economic and financial conditions—"the result of national developments facilitating the flow of gold into the country." However, M. George Dernis who acted as spokesman for the group, declared that "measures are now being taken to conteract the process"—just what, he neglected to explain. Apparently, however—judging from the late cable news—the "measures" have yet to start functioning.

HEAR ABOUT AVIATION

Too much money and too little business acumen has influenced the aviation industry during the last few years, according to Paul Henderson, vice president of National Air Transport, who yesterday addressed the aviation luncheon of the Illinois chamber of commerce at the Stevens hotel.

Whether the small air lines and plane factories that started before the depression succeed, will depend on the growth in patronage for air transportation, Col. Henderson said. Aviation, he said, has become a sound and important business because "people want fast transportation for themselves and for their packages and mail."

J. Paul Clayton of Springfield was elected president of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce at an earlier business session. Other officers are Walter W. Williams, Benton, vice president; Albert E. Bailey, Macomb, reelected treasurer, and Carleton G. Ferris, reelected executive vice president.

STOCK VALUES SHRINK OVER 7½ BILLIONS IN SEPTEMBER DROP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 10.—More than 7½ billion dollars in market values of stocks listed on the New York Stock Echange were wiped out in the September decline, according to the monthly report made by the exchange last night. The market value of all shares listed totaled $60,143,183,105 on Oct. 1, which marked a decrease of $7,577,903,894, or about 11 per cent from the aggregate value on Sept. 1.

Collateral loans to members of the New York Stock Exchange as of Oct. 1 amounted to 5.79 per cent of the market value of all shares listed on that date, an increase of .48 per cent over 5.31 per cent as of Sept. 2.

SEARS-ROEBUCK SALES OFF 14% FOR FOUR WEEKS

Sales of Sears, Roebuck & Co., which operates retail stores throughout the country and does the nation's largest volume of mail order business, showed a decline of approximately 14 per cent in four weeks ended Oct. 8, the tenth period of the company's fiscal year.

The sales for the period from Sept. 11 to Oct. 8, amounted to $32,837,927, as compared with $38,416,990 for the corresponding weeks of last year. The decline was $5,579,063, or 14.5 per cent. Wheat and Corn Prices Rally, Closing with Gains

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Speculators seemingly have considerable faith in the ultimate trend of the wheat market, regardless of the trend in securities in Wall street. There was a small break early yesterday in sympathy with liquidation in the stock market and in wheat at Winnipeg, but houses with eastern connections absorbed the surplus in the pit. A rally of 3@3⅛c from the inside figures followed. Some operators said they saw evidence of buying which they regarded as for Russian account.

At no time were wheat prices more than 1c under the finish of Thursday.

The market showed stubborn resistance to pressure, a house with New York connections taking May on a scale down, and while it was credited with having sold heavily at Winnipeg the market started upward around noon and was never headed thereafter. The finish was within a fraction of the top, with net gains of 1¾@2⅛c with December closing at 79¼@79½c; March, 83¼c; May, 85¾@85⅞c; and July, 86⅞c.

Grains Resist Pressure.

There was an utter absence in grain circles of the hysteria which prevailed in the stock market, and liquidation in wheat was regarded as having been completed. On Sept. 29 December wheat sold down to 75⅞c, while United States Steel was quoted that day at $161¼. When the latter touched $144½ yesterday December wheat was selling at 76⅜c. December corn at the close last night was 6½c above the low on Sept. 29, and United States Steel 12⅜ points below the high of that day. The independent action of the grain markets in the face of the general selling movement in New York led a number of operators to feel that agricultural products were to do better.

Pressure of Russian wheat in the United Kingdom was less in evidence and the Liverpool market showed a firmer undertone, closing ⅛@1d lower. It failed to fully reflect the decline in North America on Thursday, although weather conditions in Argentina were more favorable. Winnipeg was weak early and strong later, finishing 1⅞@2c higher. Buenos Aires was ⅛@⅜c lower, with February 73⅜c at the last.

No improvement was apparent in the foreign demand for North American wheat with sales finally estimated at 300,000 to 400,000 bu in all positions, largely Manitobas. Domestic mills bought 192,000 bu wheat in Chicago during the day.

Corn Has Early Break.

Liquidation by local longs carried corn prices off around 2c early with stop loss orders uncovered on the way down, but buying against bids absorbed the surplus in the pit. When wheat started upward offerings were light and a rally of 3⅛@4c from the inside figures followed. The finish was 1@1⅜c higher with December at 83⅜@82⅛c; March, 83½c; May, 85⅞@86c; and July, 87⅛c.

Selling of corn against purchases of wheat had some influence in depressing the former grain, narrowing the difference somewhat. Iowa showed a disposition to sell corn to arrive more freely and purchases of 64,000 bu were reported to arrive, while the shipping demand was less active. Charters were made for 150,000 bu to Buffalo.

New York, Oct. 10.—They turn the stock market into another witches' cauldron today, brewing potions for awed victims on both sides of the trading fence.

First the bear magicians tried their hands at an extension of Thursday's destructive work with a two hour period of terrific selling during which standard issues in both rails and industrials were thrown on the market at the lowest price in two years.

Then around noon the bulls got busy and staged a dramatic squeeze on shorts in the amusement sharing following it up with a general buying movement, that rallied the whole list and virtually wiping out the ear

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES RISE IN A LATE RALLY

Follows Earlier Period of Liquidation.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Recovery set in on the Chicago exchange yesterday but not before another set of record low quotations had been made in the distressing liquidation period during the morning. The rally did not start until late in the day and was not as broad nor as effective as the parent movement in New York.

In some instances the upturn carried stocks above the quotations of Thursday's final sales but these were the exceptions. Most of the active shares finished lower though well above their worst prices for the session.

The early selling brought severe declines in General Theaters, Atlas Stores, Insull Utility, and Commonwealth Edison. On the opening transaction General Theaters sold at 15, a new low price, and more than seven points under the previous close. The issue was later bid up to 19¾, representing a net loss for the day of 2¾ points.

Makes Modest Advance.

Atlas Stores opened 10 points under Thursday's last sale and recovered only a point as the trading progressed. Insull Utility discovered a new low below 45, but was quick to recover when the rally started and closed the day with a modest net gain.

The utility stocks as a group made a good comeback. Cities Service and Middle West Utilities each closed the day higher, and North American Light and Power, on the heaviest turnover in some time, was steady throughout the day and fractionally higher at the final gong.

A 2 point advance in Continental Chicago preferred featured the trading in investment trust shares. Dealings in the issue amounted to 39,000 shares, one of the largest turnovers of the day. The common stock and the Chicago corporation issues did not share the good fortune of the senior Continental issue. Chicago Corporation common made a new low, then rallied to 7.

Auburn Up 3 Points.

Motor shares finished near the previous day's final prices. Auburn jumped 3 points on light trade. Bendix lost a fraction. Earnings of the Bendix Aviation corporation for the current year will not be as large as in 1929, President Bendix indicated yesterday.

President Vincent Bendix, who has just returned from Europe, indicated that profit is not likely to cover dividend requirements. "With heavy inventory writeoffs during the first six months and the process of general readjustment in business, earnings of the company will show a decline from last year," he said. "However, with effected economies throughout the organization we are now in excellent position to benefit by improved conditions."

Bendix reported net profit of $1,530,936, equivalent to 73 cents a share, in the first six months of 1930.

UNFILLED ORDERS OF U. S. STEEL LOWEST SINCE MAY OF 1928

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 10.—A decrease of 255,866 tons in unfilled orders last month was announced today by the United States Steel corporation. Unfilled tonnage on Sept. 30 amounted to 3,424,338 tons, the lowest total since May, 1928, compared with 3,680,204 tons on Aug. 31, when the backlog decreased 441,851 tons from the end of July. On Sept. 30, 1929, unfilled orders amounted to 3,902,581.

The further decrease, on top of last month's sharp decline, was no surprise to Wall street, for a drop generally had been predicted, although no estimates were made on the probable size of the decrease.

Steel production, as indicated by recent figures of September ingot production, was at low ebb for the year last month, but inquiries also were below normal, despite some signs of a pickup in the month. The nearest approach to the present backlog in the last three years was at the end of May, 1928, when unfilled orders totaled 3,416,822 tons.

The floating supply of common stock of the United States Steel corporation, as indicated by stock in brokers' names on Sept. 30, increased 22,765 shares since June 30. The floating supply Sept. 30 was 1,812,599 shares, or 18.66 per cent of the total issue of 8,669,278 shares outstanding. As of June 30 last, the supply was 1,385,834, or 18.57 per cent of the total issue of 8,560,876 shares then outstanding.

Bulk of sales yesterday: 9.30@11.05

Top a week ago: 9.40@10.00

Bulk of sales Thursday, $10.05; average, $9.40.

Bulk of sales yesterday: 9.85@10.75

Bulk of sales Friday: 8.50@10.75

Bulk of sales Saturday: 7.75@ 9.65

Bulk of sales Monday: 8.00@ 8.85; average, $8.00.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today, 1,000 cattle, 7,000 hogs, 15,000 sheep, 1,500 calves.

Hogs for the week: Top prices hit one of the steepest declines of the season, when receipts exceeded trade requirements yesterday. Prices dropped to the lowest point of the week, finishing on the downgrade at 60@60c below Thursday morning. Bulk of sales were off 35@50c soon after the start, the extreme top comprising 50c at $10.05, which is only 10c above the lowest top price since Sept. 1. The general average dropped $ 0.60, but still stands 50c above the lowest day early last week.

The smaller number of packing sows and the larger proportion of top grades at recent sessions held average costs down up. Larger houses bought freely on the break, taking many good and light butchers at $9.50@ 10.05. Outsiders bought 7,000 and 3,000 were left at the close.

Hog Futures Dull.

The sharp break in the cash trade lowered the demand for hog future prices and the few bids reported were sharply below the previous session. Buyers and sellers were near a standstill basis in several months at the close.

Shorter lights were offered at $9.75 and bid $9.65 while mediums were offered at $9.80 and heavy at $9.85. January lights were offered at $9.50 and bid $9.75, while medium offers were at $9.60 and bids at $9.75.

Yesterday's meager supply of 2,500 cattle sold quickly at the highest prices of the week, top sales of yearlings equaling the high point of the season at $13.35. Quality graded unusually good for Friday. Prime 1,101 pound yearling steers reached the peak, while 1,393 lb steers sold at $11.50. Bulk of sales at $8.50@10.75 compared with $7.50@10.00 last Friday. Butcher stock sold slowly at weak to 25c lower, some cheaper grades selling with a reduction at the close. Choice yearling heifers sold up to $12.50. Cows were unchanged. Stockers and feeders were slow, but steady.

Lambs Lose Gains.

Fat lambs lost some of the sharp gains scored this week, but are still 25c above the close of last week. Yesterday ruled steady to 25c lower, most sales in mid-session and showing the reduction. Buyers were absent of the $9.00 quotation when they bought the best western range lambs at $8.75, paying the same price for only a few "hand picked" natives on first rounds.

The bulk of natives to a city butcher sold at $8.25, the day's peak. Aged ewes were steady at the week's 15@ 25c advance. Yearlings were unchanged yesterday, but show advances for the week, in spite of the fact that offerings of yearling lambs were the largest of the season this week. Feeders were steady to 25c above a week ago. Shipments at Chicago for today were reported at 1,000 cattle, 7,000 hogs, 15,000 sheep, against 211 catttle, 1,000 hogs, and 1,555 sheep on the Saturday, and 147 cattle, 1,000 hogs, and 5,05" sheep a year ago. Estimated receipts of hogs at Chicago on Monday are estimated from 25,000 to 30,000. C. Southwick marked for W. C. White and A. G. Welsh, 43,000; N. R. Denny, 47,000; Swift & Co. Waters, 46,000; W. G. Olson & Co. Wolfe, 45,00; E. S. Waterbury for J. G. Brittain, 4,,000; F. M. Sherwood and F. W. Young, 40,000; R. W. Cox, R. W. Trotter, and O. Thompson, 8,000, and G. W. Chandler.

Cattle Feeders Cautious; Purchases 25% Under 1929

Big prices an decarcity of corn in many sections of the belt, combined with unfavorable marketing conditions, made cattle feeders conservative purchasers of feeder cattle into the corn belt states in the months of July, August, and September have declined 25 per cent as compared with last year and were the lowest in twelve years. They were also 30 per cent lower than the five year average and notably less than the eleven year average. With the exception of Nebraska, shipments into all states were smaller this year. Movement into the west of the Mississippi river was 27 per cent compared with a year ago, while in the states west of the Missouri river 16 per cent below last year.

The government report suggests that there is little chance for the movement of unfinished cattle during the next few months of this being larger than during the three months from July to September. Estimates for the three months, October to December this year, are also expected to be a considerably smaller movement of the total shipments for the three months, July to December, of last year.

CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE STOCKS

Prices were mixed and trading small yesterday, the bulk being in Electric Bond & Share and Standard of Indiana, the latter making a new low at 41½, but finishing with a net loss of only ⅝. Electric Bond & Share broke early in the day to 53¼, but came back and closed with a net gain of 3¼ at 59. Pennroad Corp. "B" made a new low at 8¼ and Wrigley was off 1 at the close.

INDICATED YIELD OF CORN IS HIGHER BY 64,000,000 BUSHELS

A surprise was handed the grain trade in the government report on corn given out late yesterday afternoon with indicated yield of 2,047,000,000 bu, or 64,000,000 bu more than last month. The trade had figured on about a 2,000,000,000 bu crop compared with 1,983,000,000 bu last month, and 2,614,000,000 bu last year, but as compared with the July returns there was a loss of 755,000,000 bu. The five year average is 2,700,000,000 bu.

The corn crop is the smallest since 1901, when 1,523,000,000 bu were raised. Expectations were that there would be a moderate improvement in condition which was given as 68.8 compared with 51.6 last month and 71 last year.

The eleven surplus states have 1,498,772,000 bu as compared with 1,453,000,000 bu a month ago, an increase of 40,000,000 bu for the month, and a decrease of 369,000,000 bu from last year. Iowa estimates were raised to 344,000,000 bu, a gain of 11,000,000 bu for the month, while Illinois with 231,000,000 bu gained 5,000,000 bu over September. There were increases in Ohio, Indiana, Oklahoma and Texas as compare with September returns, but most states in the corn belt have more corn than a month ago but all are largely short of last year. Nebraska has come to the front with a decrease of only 11,000,000 bu from last year's final, while Iowa is off nearly 100,000,000 bu, and Illinois 86,000,000.

Feeding Grains, Spring Wheat Shown in Report

Production of feeding grains comprising corn, oats, rye, and barley, as indicated by the government's October returns, is 3,833,000,000 bu as compared with 3,744,000,000 bu in September, 4,193,000,000 bu a year ago, and a five year average of 4,364,000,000 bu.

The hay crop is 94,000,000 tons, compared with 155,000,000 tons last year.

Spring wheat estimates were advanced 2,000,000 bu for the month to 240,000,000 bu against 228,000,000 bu last year, and the total wheat crop is 840,000,000 bu, or 32,000,000 bu above last year's final returns and 26,000,000 bu more than the five year average.

The United States will have all the grain it can consume and possibly a fair surplus in a few instances, as production of all grains as indicated by latest returns aggregates 4,673,000,000 bu, or 92,000,000 bu over September returns, but 327,000,000 bu less than last year, and 505,000,000 bu below the five year average.

Drought has materially affected production of all grains, although losses, taking the country in all, are not serious. The potato crop has the promise of 352,000,000 bu, as compared with 360,000,000 bu last year, a loss of 8,000,000 bu.

LARD FUTURES GAIN

Lard was under pressure early yesterday, sympathizing at times with the break in grains, due to liquidation by eastern interests. Packers were the best buyers and rallied the market, making a close 2½c higher on October and 15c to 17½c up on the more deferred months. Liverpool lard, however, was 3d to 9d lower and the hog market closed 35d to 50d lower, owing to receipts being larger than the previous week's. Cash trade on meats was good but export business in lard was said to be slow. Seaboard clearances of lard were 386,000 lbs. and of bacon, 5,000 lbs. Prices follow:

CASH-GRAIN NEWS

It seems almost impossible to interest foreign buyers in North American wheat and sales in all positions during the day were finally estimated at 300,000 to 400,000 bu, mainly Manitobas. Domestic milling demand, however, remains active with local handlers selling 150,000 bu in store, presumably to local mills, while outside points bought 42,000 bu. At St. Louis the basis on wheat was firmer with No. 1 red at 12c over Chicago December and No. 1 hard at 3c over.

No change was shown in the Chicago cash wheat basis with No 1 red, $@8½c over; No. 2 red, 7@7½c over; No. 1 hard, December to ½c under; No. 2 hard, December to 1c under; No. 1 northern, December to 1c under, and No. 2 northern, 1@2c under the future. Offerings were small.

Demand for cash oats was fair with the basis steady to ¼c higher. No. 2 white brought ¼@½c under and No. 3 white, ½@¾c under December.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Friday: Wheat, 2 cars; corn, 120 cars; oats, 35 cars; rye, 1 car; barley, 17 cars.
